

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

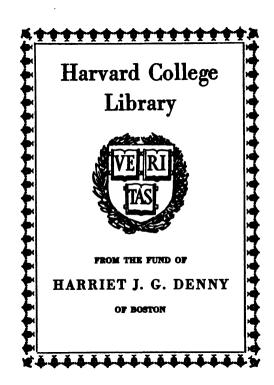

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

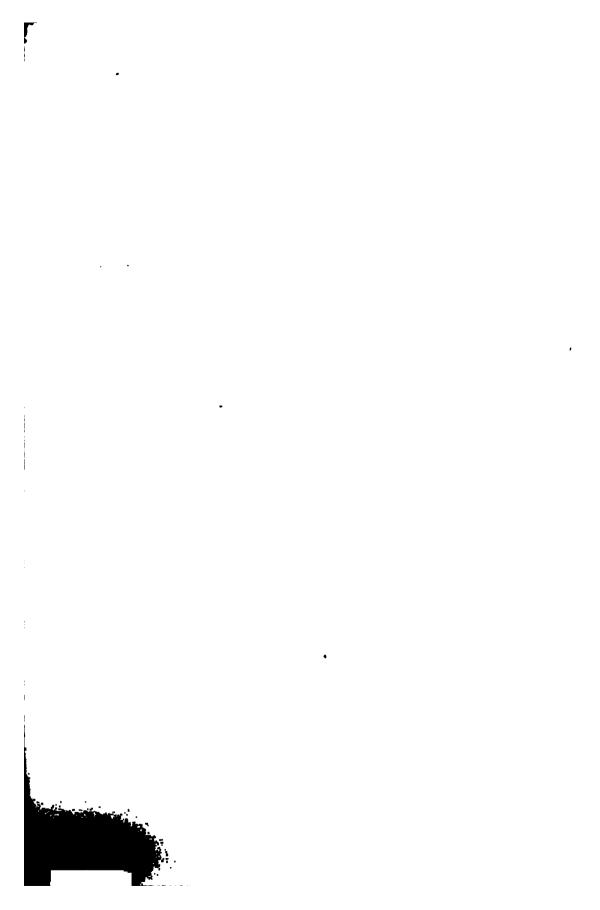

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at http://books.google.com/

THE AMERICAN
THE AMERICAN

BOOK TRADE JOURNAL

WITH WHICH IS INCORPORATED

[ESTABLISHED 1842]

PUBLICATION OFFICE, FRANKLIN SQUARE (330 PEARL STREET), NEW YORK.

Vol. XXXVI., No. 1. M NEW YORK, July 6, 1889.

D. APPLETON & CO.

Will Publish Next Week:

Days Out of Doors.

By CHARLES C. ABBOTT.

Author of " A Naturalist's Rambles About Home."

12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"Days out of Doors," like the author's preceding work, "A Naturalist's Rambles About Home," consists of a saturalist's observations in the fields and the woods, and possesses a similar interest for all lovers of nature.

The Garden's Story;

OR, PLEASURES AND TRIALS OF AN AMATEUR GARDENER.

By GEORGE H. ELLWANGER.

With Head and Tail Pieces by Rhead. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, flexible boards, $1.50.

The History of a Slave.

By H. H. IOHNSTON, F.R.G.S., F.Z.S., etc.

Author of " The Kilimanjaro Expedition," etc.

With 47 full-page illustrations, engraved fac-simile from the author's drawings. 12mo, paper cover, 50 cents.

"The volume has a distinct value to serious students of African life and manners. It is the story of a slave told by bimself, a man born somewhere about the Niger region half a century ago, who has gone through many vicissitudes since. The poor feilow tells his story in a simple, natural style, and Mr. Johnston has been very successful in keeping up the delusion. . . . Altogether, the book is well worth reading."—London Times.

Won by Waiting.

By EDNA LYALL.

Author of " We Two," " Donovan," etc.

A new cheap edition. "Appletons' Town and Country Library." 12mo, paper cover, 50 cents.

Uniform with cheap editions of "Donovan" and "We Two."

I. a. and 5 Bond Street. New York.

THE BEST KEY TO EDUCATIONAL BOOKS.

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements.

THE

For 1889 [Twentieth Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twentieth year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue has recently been remade, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and it adds all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered. The Telegraphic Code will not be continued, as the code plan is reported to us to give more trouble than it saves.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00; per 1000, $40.00.

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

 Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

NOTES IN SEASON.

John Wiley & Sons have just ready a work on "Steam-Engine Design" for the use of mechanical engineers, students, and draughtsmen, by Prof. J. M. Witham.

THE CHRISTOPHER SOWER COMPANY, Philadelphia, have just issued "The King's Daughter's Diary," a charmingly arranged daily journal, with some helpful and suggestive thought at the head of each page, selected and compiled by Adeline B. Avery and Julie E. French. It has liberal spaces for each day, and is bound in royal purple, with decorative designs in silver.

TICKNOR & Co. announce "The Moral Idea: a historic study," by Julia Wedgwood, a work which is said to be the outcome of twenty years of study, and which is described as "a history of human aspiration after a moral ideal that changes continually in the evolution of time and thought, the highest truth discovered by one age being often found by a revolt against the errors circling round the belief that was the life of a former age."

D. APPLETON & Co. will have ready next week "Days Out of Doors," by Charles C. Ab-bott, a companion volume to his "A Naturalist's Rambles About Home;" "The Garden's Story," by George H. Ellwanger, relating the pleasures and trials of an amateur gardener, illustrated with head and tail pieces by Rhead; "The History of a Slave," by H. M. Johnston, author of the "Kilimanjaro Expedition;" and a new cheap edition in the Town and Country Library of Edna Lyall's "Won By Walting" will be added to the paper editions of "Donovan," and "We Two."

THE CATHOLIC PUBLICATION SOCIETY Co., of New York, and John Murphy & Co., of Baltimore, have just ready "A Manual of Prayers for the Use of the Catholic Laity," the new prayer-book prepared and published by order of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore, held three years ago. To insure correctness as far as possible, proof sheets of this book have been sent to every archbishop and bishop in the United States for corrections and suggestions. It has been thoroughly read and revised, and all the prayers in it are in accordance with the Catholic Ritual.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will publish July 20 "An Introduction to the Study of Shakespeare, Hiram Corson, Prof. of English Literature, Cornell University. It will be an attempt to indicate to the student some lines of Shakespearian study which may serve to introduce him to the study of the Plays as plays. The commentaries presented on Romeo and Juliet, King John, Much Ado About Nothing, Hamlet, Macbeth, and Antony and Cleopatra, aim chiefly to present the points of view which are demanded for a proper appreciation of Shakespeare's general attitude toward things, and his resultant dramatic art. An attempt is made to show the moral spirit with which he worked, as distinguished from a moralizing spirit.

THESE ARE PRE-EMPTED.

BEFORE other writers gobble them up, I hasten to inform all concerned that I claim the following titles, and all rights to same, to books now going through the mill, and soon to be published:

- Robert Elsmere's Mother-in-law;
- "Robert Elsmere's Wife's Little Sister;"
- "Robert Elsmere's Chambermaid;
- "Robert Elsmere's Aunt's Grandfather;"
- "Robert Elsmere's Big Brother;"
 Robert Elsmere's Great Aunt;"
- "Robert Elsmere's Godfather; "Robert Elsmere's Coachman;"
- "Robert Elsmere's Grandfather's Yellow Dog; "Robert Elsmere's First Son's Second Baby."

I may add, also, that I reserve the right of dramatization to each and all of the above works.—Wm. H. Siviter, in Puck.

This history is supposed to have been written by Harmachis many centuries ago. The papyrus rolls upon which he wrote were taken from his tomb by an enterprising Egyptologist, who deciphered the hieroglyphics. Harmachis is a claimant of the throne of Egypt. He believes Cleopatra an usurper and that it is his mission to destroy her, and restore Egypt to his ancient line. His plot is ripe, and his opportunity to stab her at hand plot is ripe, and his opportunity to stab her at hand, when he falls a victim to her wiles, and forgets his oaths. He tells of his agony and shame, how she sets him aside for Antony, and his ultimate revenge. Charmion plays

Che Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 6, 1889.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

ed when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

THE HERALD'S BOOK TRUST.

A REPORTER of the New York Herald has been busy within the last week or two in organizing a book trust out of the protoplasm of his imagination, with the assistance of such help as he could get from interviewing a few gentlemen interested in the trade-none of whom seem to have given him very much comfort. The last heard of this threatened book trust was at the Typothetæ Convention, when one of the opponents of International Copyright brought forward the same bogie. As a matter of fact, the book trade is probably the one in which a trust is most impracticable. So long as paper, and ink, and presses, and non-copyright material are as plenty as they are to-day and are likely to continue to be, it is difficult to see how any corner can be made in books. On the other hand, so far as copyright books are concerned, whether under domestic or international copyright, the trust could do no more than an individual publisher can do to-day-that is, make terms with the individual author. The breakdown of the copper syndicate would be nothing to the smash which would come of a book trust, if it ever got large enough to make any smash at all.

The book trust which Mr. Lovell foreshadows as possible seems to mean simply an understanding among various reprinters, after the fashion of the syndicate of the school-book trade, which already exists to some extent. The competition in non-copyright literature is pretty sure to keep the price of books reasonably low; on the other hand, the rush to make cheap literature has undoubtedly resulted in offering books lower than they can properly be made. In copyright books the price must be kept down by the expectation of sale. No book trust could raise the prices in either case beyond their natural limit without killing the goose which lays the golden egg—that is, the public demand for good books at fair prices. We do not think the spook conjured up by the Herald is likely to have much influence on the book trade.

THE most important thing brought out in the Herala's interviews is the opposition to International Copyright illustrated by Mr. Hurst's remarks. He takes the view, not of the better class of printers, but of the more ignorant, that the more plates there are made the more work there will be for printers and the better, therefore, for their interest. This is confessedly a narrow and selfish view, but it is true only in the narrow sense. since it is the position taken time and time again in the history of the last hundred years by workmen who did not hesitate to mob inventors and smash their machines, on the ground that they were taking the bread out of their mouths. As a matter of fact, when these inventions were developed to the utmost, it was found that there was more to do for all workmen, because of the new demand produced. We may point out to Mr. Hurst that every new set of plates adds to the cost of a book, wastes labor, and restricts the popular demand. This narrow argument is no argument at all. It would make the Johnstown calamity a public blessing, because in destroying the products of labor it "made room" for labor; it is the gospel of waste. The printers at first feared the typewriter as the sewing-woman feared the sewing-machine, but in both cases more work has come from the improvement. It is probable that history will repeat itself in this case also.

THE "HERALD'S" BOOK TRUST.

THE New York Herald continues to work up its organization of the Book Trust of which we made note in our last issue. In its Sunday issue (June 30), the Herald prints further interviews with Messrs. John W. Lovell, Simon Brentano, and T. D. Hurst, from which we make the following extracts:

Mr. Lovell, of the J. W. Lovell Co., in concluding his interview, remarked: "I strongly urge the formation of a book trust, for two reasons. In the first place, to bring the publishing business out of the rut in which it is now and to permit a legitimate profit out of a legitimate business, and, second, because I believe it will hasten the days of international copyright. I am very earnestly in favor of this. If Congress had seen fit to give us international copyright we would not need to resort to a trust. But there is such strong opposition to it, even among some of the publishers, that it seems it may be a long time before we get it. Meanwhile a trust seems the only way out of our difficulties."

Mr. Simon Brentano, of Brentano's, believed that the statement made in the Herald of June 23, "that the trust would limit or control all productions, is a mistake. The trust would stand on exactly the same footing in regard to non copyrights that are being reproduced by the hundreds as the most obscure publisher or printer. It would cost no more for a printer or any publisher outside the trust to reprint the forthcoming books than it costs the trust, and this is one broad distinction between a book trust and trusts pertaining to other industries. If such a trust as this were formed, I think that all the important publishers would remain out. If they considered the project at all, or entered into it, they would only do so as far as their publication list that relates to

Mr. T. D. Hurst, of Hurst & Co., in answer to the reporter's question, "How would such a trust affect the international copyright question?" esid ·

"It would probably aid it. But I am opposed to international copyright, or at least to the plan proposed. I take the printers' view of the case. International copyright would decrease the amount of labor. Why, see here—take Dickens' works alone. Of that one author there is in plates and stock alone a half million of dollars invested in this country. Under the protection of copyright $40,000 would be the outside amount that would have to be invested. The difference, of course, labor loses. Take Haggard's books. There are twelve sets of plates of these now in use in this country. These produce a million and a half copies. If Harper's, for instance, had exclusive control of this author's works, they would use one set of plates and probably sell a quarter of a million copies. Their sales would be restricted by, first, their higher price, and, second, the restricted lines of trade, for even the largest house must be more restricted in this respect than a dozen houses would be. A million and a quarter less books would be sold. would be a loss to labor—to compositors, to the paper people, etc."

In answer to the question, "How is the re-printing business generally?" Mr. Hurst replied, Poor, and growing worse. We can't make much money at it now." And to the query, "What is to be the upshot?" Mr. Hurst thought "the weaker publishers will be forced to the wall. Before the first of next year I expect to see a number of them suspend. The stronger houses will stay in the business and will probably make some agreement with each other, similar to the scheme outlined by the Herald. think this will happen, but I do not know if it will be called a 'trust.'

THE AMENITIES OF INTERNATIONAL PIRACY.

This amusing little story is told by the Boston correspondent of the Book Buyer:

"An incident which may be added to the fund of anecdotes that illustrate the present workings of the international piracy, which stands in the place that should be occupied by the international copyright, happened in the Custom-House here not long since. An author who was travelling in England came across a pirated edition of one of his books, and bought a copy to bring home as a specimen. The volume, in some unaccountable way, struck the notice of the vigilant inspector who examined his baggage when he landed here, and that functionary proceeded to seize it.

"'Well.' the author said, when he was told that he could not bring it into the country where it was copyrighted, 'I wrote the book; it has been largely sold in England without my getting any royalty; I paid full retail price for it in London, and I supposed that I should be allowed the poor privilege of bringing home a copy for my own library; but if the United States Government is determined to protect my copyright, there does not seem to be any way in which

I can help myself.'

"The official answered that he had, of course, to obey orders, but he laid the book down on a trunk tray and managed to forget it, so that the author has a copy of his book in the English edition."

A NEW WORK ON AMERICAN HISTORY.

MESSES, CHARLES SCRIENER'S SONS announce a series of important works in American History -a field in which so much original work is being done, and so much public interest taken at the present time. The period embraced by the series comprises the entire history of the country, from the discovery of America to the end of Southern reconstruction after the civil war. The whole period, dividing itself naturally as it does into four "epochs," each comparatively rounded and complete in itself, will be treated in four volumes of a size and scope somewhat similar to those of the publishers' wellknown series entitled Epochs of History, which contains as yet no volume relating to American History.

The general character of the work will, however, be somewhat modified, in the direction of elaboration, as befits the importance of the subject and its special interest for Americans. It will be eminently history, as distinguished from the chronicle of annals, and explain the significance as well as recount the course of events. Philosophic, rather than purely narrative, so far as may be without departure from its thoroughly popular and literary design, and dealing with causes and inferences as fully as with incidents, it will still make especially prominent the social picture of each epoch, and occupy itself with the manners, habits, beliefs, aims, and conduct of the great public, rather than the acts of individuals however representative. It will be, in a word, a literary and philosophical history of the people of the United States.

The different volumes will treat of: First, the epoch of discovery and of colonization; second, the French and Indian War and the Revolution essentially forming one period as regards both the political current of events and many of the actors therein; third, the discussion and adoption of the Federal Constitution after the successful issue of the Revolution, and the growth in national consolidation of the different and at first discordant States; and, fourth, the sectional conflict over the institution of slavery, from the rise of the slave-power to the end of the reconstruction period.

Each epoch will be treated by a writer of eminence whose cooperation—led to solicit it by his special qualification for the individual work undertaken—the publishers have been fortunate enough to secure. The names of the authors and their respective assignments to the several volumes will be immediately made public, though the statement may already be made that every one is not only a recognized authority in American history, but a writer of acknowledged literary reputation as well. The enterprise itself has been long in preparation, and in view of its advanced condition the publishers have decided to delay its annoucement no longer.

OBITUARY.

THEODORE DWIGHT WOOLSEY.

By the death of Dr. Woolsey America loses one of her ripest scholars. The extent of his erudition distinguished him among the learned and his character insured him universal love and Dr. Woolsey was born in New York City on October 31, 1801. He was the youngest son of William Walton Woolsey, a prosperous merchant, and of Elizabeth Dwight, a sister of Timothy Dwight, President of Yale College from 1795 until his death. At the age of fifteen Dr. Woolsey entered Yale and graduated with high honors in 1820. He studied law for a time with Mr. Charles Chauncey, of Philadelphia, then read theology for two years at Princeton, and spent two more years as tutor at Yale. He was licensed to preach in 1825. In 1827 he went to Europe, spending most of his time in Germany perfecting himself in the Greek language and literature under the eminent scholars of his day. He was elected to the newly founded Greek Chair at Yale in 1831. The new professor awakened an en-thusiastic interest in the Greek language. In 1846 he was elected President of the college, and his administration for twenty-five years was one of uniform prosperity. One of the special aims of President Woolsey was to give the students a higher conception of the nature of true scholarship. In 1866 President Woolsey presented his Greek library of 1000 volumes to the college library. Since 1871 Dr. Woolsey has lived in New Haven, busily occupied in researches and studies, chiefly in political science. For several years he was one of the Regents of the Smithsonian Institution. He was also chairman of the American division of the Committee for the Revision of the New Testament, "for which position," said Dr. Howard Crosby, "his erudition, his judgment, and his clear statement on the one side, and courtesy, gentleness, and modesty on the other peculiarly fitted him."

Early in life Dr. Woolsey was favorably known by five excellent manuals, each containing the Greek text with his own English notes, of which there have been many editions prepared for the use of colleges in the United States. These are "The Alcestis of Euripides;" "The Antigone of Sophocles;" "The Prometheus of Æschylus," "The Electra of Sophocles;" and "The Gorgias of Plato." His other published works are:

"Essay on Divorce and Divorce Legislation, with special reference to the United States;" "Exemption of Private Property upon the Sea from Capture;" "Helpful Thoughts for Young Men;" Introduction to Study of International Law;" Relations of Honor to Political Life;" "Religion of the Present and the Future;" "Communism and Socialism in Their History and Theory;" "Divorce and Divorce Legislation in the United States;" "Political Service; or, the state theoretically and practically considered," etc.

The funeral took place on Friday at 3 P.M. in the college chapel. Ex-President Porter officiated at the house and President Dwight at the chapel. The interment was at Grove Street Cemetery.

STEPHEN WINCHESTER DANA JACKSON, treasurer and business manager of the Meisterschaft Publishing Co., Boston, died in Newton, Mass., June 29. He was a native of Newton, the son of the late Hon. William Jackson, and was located in business during the early part of his career in Chicago and St. Louis. During Lincoln's administration he was connected with the Treasury Department at Washington, and from 1864 to 1883 resided on the Isthmus of Panama as agent of the Boston Ice Company. He was also agent of the Atlas Steamship Company during part of that time. In 1883 he returned to Boston, and accepted the position of treasurer and business manager of the Meisterschaft Publishing Co., which position he has since held.

MARIA MITCHELL, the noted astronomer, died at Lynn, Mass., on Friday, June 28. She was born on August 1, 1818, and very early in life became so expert in mathematical and astronomical studies that she was able to assist her father. William Mitchell, the teacher and astronomer, in his labors and researches. At the age of seventeen she was appointed librarian of the Nantucket Athenæum, and throughout her long life earned a regular salary. She was a persistent searcher for comets and earned the gold medal offered by the King of Denmark to any one who should discover a telescopic comet. In 1858 Miss Mitchell visited Europe and was the guest of Sir John Herschel, Leverrier, and Humboldt. Upon her return she was presented with a large telescope by the women of America. In 1865 she was appointed Professor of Astronomy and Director of the Observatory at Vassar College. In 1887 Columbia College conferred on her the degree of LLD. Her published writings were restricted to scientific papers, with the exception of some poems contributed to a volume called "Seaweeds from the Shores of Nantucket.'

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

JOHN RUSKIN is reported to be so ill that there is no immediate prospect of his recovery.

RIDER HAGGARD'S Icelandic romance "Eric" is not to be published for two years to come.

GEORGE MEREDITH'S new novel is said to have for its theme "The Romance of Journalism," and to be in an advanced state of preparation.

MRS. S. J. HIGGINSON, author of "A Princess of Java," which was published two years ago, is writing a book on Java for the Riverside Library for Young People.

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH started for London, June 26, to settle down to finish writing a 1200 line poem of the time of Queen Elizabeth that he began a year or two ago.

According to a cablegram, dated July 2, addressed to the New York Times, Wilkie Collins has had a stroke of paralysis and is lying unconcious at the house of Mr. L. B. Schlesinger, in

COL. T. W. HIGGINSON has been appointed by Gov. Ames, of Massachusetts, to undertake the writing of a history of the State's soldiers and sailors in the civil war, as provided by the last Legislature. Five years are allowed for the task.

"WITH the possible exception of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin," writes Mr. Bok to the Philadelphia Times, "no American novel ever achieved such large success as did 'The Wide, Wide World.' In one year, something like 125,000 copies were sold, and up to the present time the sales have reached nearly 450,000 copies, as I learn from reliable figures. Yet how little one hears to-day of Susan Warner, the authoress. Few women were more popular in their time, and yet to-day she is almost forgotten. I thought of this as I stood, a few days ago, at her West Point grave. It is in the military cemetery, close by the Cadets' monument, where she was buried, in the very spot she herself selected. The grave is kept abloom by the sister of the authoress, Anna B. Warner, herself a writer. A close affection existed between the Warner sisters, and it is the fragrance of this, and almost only this, that indicates to the visitor at the West Point grave that the author of one of the best known novels ever written has not entirely passed from memory.'

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MR. GLADSTONE has an article in the Nineteenth Century for July, entitled "Plain Speaking on the Irish Union."

MR. JOHN GILMARY SHEA, the eminent scholar and historian, is hereafter to be the editor of the Catholic News.

CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK tells in Harper's Basar for June 28 what to have at lawn parties and how to make it.

THOMAS NAST, the cartoonist, has been, as he himself puts it, "planted newly with the 'Time.'"
Time is the weekly humorous journal that was first issued under the title of Tid-Bits.

LLOYD S. BRYCE has returned from Europe to look after the North American Review, in which he holds a controlling interest—the late Mr. Rice having left him fifty-one shares of its stock.

The Andover Review for July contains from A. Taylor Innes, Esq., of Edinburgh, Scotland, a full account of the remarkable movement in favor of Creed Revision which has received so great an impulse from the action of the Presbyterian Assemblies at their recent sessions in Edinburgh.

The Magazine of American History for July, 1889, contains a most interesting account of "The Story of the Washington Centennial," by Martha J. Lamb. It is liberally illustrated. A fine portrait of Mrs. Lamb, the able editor of this useful magazine, is given as a frontispiece in the same begin in Harper's Basar for July 12. The scenes of the story shift from London foot-lights to the breezy spaces of the Highlands. The story is full of fresh, buoyant life, and the hero has the fascination which belongs to youth, genius, and a generous temperament.

Wide Awake for July is an especially attractive number. One of its features is the reproduction of eighteen portrait plaques of the beauties of Washington's time (owned by ex-Mayor Hodges of Baltimore), with vivacious biographies by Mrs. Burton Harrison. The title of the article is "The American Court." Another American feature is Miss Seward's "Fourth of July at Robert College"—the American college in Constantinople, a seed-bed of American ideas in Europe.

FOLLOWING upon the July chapters of "The Life of Lincoln"—which, as already announced, describe the President's renomination and Mr. Greeley's self-suggested peace trip up Niagarathere will probably be only six more instalments of this remarkable history in The Century series. It is said that these concluding chapters deal with the most important and absorbing personal and political topics, to which Messrs. Nicolay and Hay bring a vast fund of special information. Of the interest of the last three instalments it is only necessary to say that they cover the period from the second inaugural to the death of Lincoln and the collapse of the rebellion.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have the energy and courage to add The New Review, edited by Archibald Grove, to the ranks of monthly periodicals. The first issue has ninety-six pages, containing articles on "General Boulanger." by Alfred Naarticles on "General Boulanger," by Alfred Naquet and Camille Pelletau; "After the Play," by Henry James; "Homes of the People," by Earl Compton, "National Muscle," by Lord Charles Beresford; "The Religion of Self-Respect," by Mrs. Lynn Linton; "The Unionist Policy for Ireland," by T. W. Russell; and "A Month in Russia," by Lady Randolph Churchill. New York City.--Charles L. Chase, assignee natus," with illustrations by William Small, will of Thos. R. Knox & Co., announces that he will sell at public auction, on Monday, July 8, 1889, at 10 o'clock A.M., at No. 145 Broadway, Room II, all uncollected accounts; also the right, title, and interest in and to certain books; also all claims belonging to Thos. R. Knox & Co.

NEW YORK CITY.—Thomas E. Keane, 25 Ann Street, has enlarged his stock recently, and has now on hand a large stock of miscellaneous books. He makes a specialty of school and college books.

NEW YORK CITY.—The University Publishing Co. has removed from its old quarters 19 Murray St. to 66 and 68 Duane St.

NEW YORK CITY.—The John W. Lovell Co. are removing to Nos. 3 and 5 Mission Place.

OAKLAND, CAL.—Henry J. Katzenbach, formerly with The Bancroft Company, San Francisco, Cal., has opened a book and stationery business at 219 Tenth Street. He requests book and stationery houses to send him their latest trade-lists, announcements, and new catalogues.

OGDEN, UTAH.—B. F. Steacy, bookseller, sold out.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Publication Department of the National School of Elocution and Oratory has assumed such proportions that it can no longer be conducted to advantage as an adjunct of the original institution. It has therefore been found necessary to organize an entirely separate corporation, devoted exclusively to the publishing business. This new concern has been duly chartered under the corporate title of "The Penn Publishing Company," and begins active business July 1, 1889. The change not only affords increased facilities for pushing the present line of books, but also opens the way for the development of a general publishing business. Mr. Charles C. Shoemaker, so long and closely identified with the old concern, continues with the new company in his former capacity of manager.

PARIS, Mo.—John A. Krummel, bookseller, has sold out.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Williamson & Higbee, booksellers, have been succeeded by The Williamson Law-Book Company.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—M. F. Healy succeeds T. Alexander in the second-hand book business at 605 Chestnut St. Mr. Healy was for a time assistant in the St. Louis Public Library. He would like to receive antiquarian catalogues.

SPOKANE FALLS, WASH. TERR.—Traut & Chamberlain, booksellers, have sold out.

VILLISCA, IA.—C. E. Jenkins & Son, booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

WACO, TEX.—Thomas Crawford & Co., book-sellers, have dissolved partnership.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Robert F. Miller will continue under his own name the book and stationery business of Miller & Herbert, 539 Fifteenth St., Corcoran Building.

WEATHERFORD, TEX.—S. J. Stanger, book-seller, has sold out.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have in preparation an édition de luxe of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast-Table." It will be in two volumes of the "Aldine" size beautifully printed and illustrated, and with an engraved title-page.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish at once a cheap edition of Mrs. Humphry Ward's first novel "Miss Bretherton." They will also shortly publish a popular life of Father Damien, "the leper priest," by his friend and correspondent Mr. Edward Clifford, who visited him within a few months of his death.

The late D. R. Locke ("Petroleum V. Nasby") left among his unpublished writings the manuscript of a novel called "The Demagogue." It was thought at first that the story was incomplete, but further investigation has successful the novel is in publishable form. It will be brought out at once by the Toledo Blade.

JUSTICE ANDREWS, in the Supreme Court Chambers, on June 25, granted an order requiring General Adam Badeau to furnish a bill of particulars in his suit against Charles L. Webster & Co., the publishers, for an alleged breach of contract in regard to the publication of the plaintiff's book, "Grant in Peace." The plaintiff did not oppose the application.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. will publish in the fall Mark Twain's new book, "A Yankee at King Arthur's Court," a satire on English nobility and royalty, to be fully illustrated; also "The Life and Letters of Roscoe Conkling," edited by his nephew, Alfred R. Conkling, with a steel portrait of the late ex-Senator and fac-similes of letters from many of his prominent political and military contemporaries.

A PRIZE of $500 is offered for "the best essay on the title of the miracles of our Lord to credence." One of the conditions is that it answer the arguments against miracles presented in the book "Elsmere Elsewhere." A prize of $100 is offered for the best essay on Prayer. One of the conditions is that the latter essay prove "that supplication is not merely a vehicle for aspiration; that objective as well as subjective benefits are realized from prayer." The circular is signed by F. S. Abiff as Secretary of the Committee of Award, 131 Tremont St., Boston.

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & Sons announce that they are again able to supply Mrs. Amelia B. Edwards' "Thousand Miles Up the Nile." This book, it will be remembered, is a narrative of her first visit to Egypt—a visit which marked the beginning of her Egyptological studies. When first published its cost was so high as to be all but prohibitory to the general reader, but last autumn the Routledges assumed its publication and issued it in a revised (though unabridged) form and at a more reasonable price ($2.50), the wisdom of which course became immediately manifest in the speedy exhaustion of the edition.

WALTER SCOTT has issued in his Camelot Classic series a volume of the famous "Political Orations" of England. The first of the group is that noble speech in which Peter Wentworth, the Puritan member, asserted the Liberties of Parliament in 1576; the last is Macaulay's famous speech on Parliamentary Reform. Cromwell, Chatham, Burke, Grattan, Pitt, Erskine, Fox, and O'Connell are the other orators represented. W.

I. Gage, 3 E. 14th St., New York, will supply the American market.

MESSRS. BLACKWOOD have just published a novel in three volumes by the author of the tale "Aut Diabolus, aut Nihil." which, on its appearance in Blackwood's Magazine last year, caused considerable commotion in Paris. "In the new story, 'Little Hand and Muckle Gold,' part of its plot," savs the Atherene "its laid. society of the Second Empire, and many of its characters will be readily recognizable, while the scene is latterly shifted to England. The dénoulement is a terrible tragedy. The author believes he has struck out for himself a bolder course of treatment than contemporary English novelists usually affect. Dramatic versions of the novel in French and English are in course of being dramatized, and Madame Bernhardt proposes to sustain the chief part in the former.

TILLOTSON'S NEWSPAPER LITERATURE SYNDI-CATE has arranged a series of " signed articles by distinguished novelists," specially written for the press, and to be published in the fall. Mrs. Hungerford will write on the Irish peasant; William Black will have something to say about the unknown correspondents who pester authors; George Augustus Sala's paper will be headed "Bedrooms on Wheels;" Mrs. Lynn Linton will treat of juvenile crime; Justin Mc-Carthy has not yet selected a subject; Mrs. Alexander has promised her views on the duties of mothers and daughters; W. Clark Russell, of course, finds something yet to sav about sailors; Joseph Hatton's" Scenes from Life's Great Play will come with authority; Jessie Fothergill has elected to write of people's "Ways;" and George Gissing is to describe some Christmas customs.

A BIBLIOGRAPHY of Ruskin's works has been undertaken by Mr. Thomas J. Wise, Hon. Secretary of the Shelley Society. The subjectmatter is to appear under four headings: (1) the works of Mr. Ruskin in chronological order, with special sections on "Modern Painters" and "The Stones of Venice;" (2) first appearance of separate pieces, in newspapers, magazines, etc.; (3) reprints and selections, including the American piracies; (4) Ruskiniana, under which will be comprised biography and criticism, and pub-lished portraits. The work will be printed on the finest Dutch hand made paper, and will be limited to a subscribers' edition of only 250 copies. It is proposed to issue it in about eight periodical parts of 32 pages each. Intending subscribers should address themselves to Mr. J. P. Smart, Jr., 5 Mount View Road, Crouch Hill, N. London, Eng.

Large 8vo, about 3000 pages. With Duplex Index. Cloth, $2.00.

The Trade List Annual for 1889 will contain:

- 1. The latest Catalogues of American Publishers, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names and smaller lists at the end of the volume.
- 2. A complete list by author, title, and subject of all books recorded in the Publish-ERS' WEEKLY from January to June, 1889, supplementing the ANNUAL CATA-LOGUE, 1888.
- 3. The "EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE" for 1889, which is used by the entire trade and educational interests as the most representative reference-list of School-books.

The above Lists, all bound in one volume, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase or sale of books.

The patent "Duplex Index" having given such general satisfaction, we are now applying it to all copies of the "Annual." Volumes supplied with the "Duplex Index" have the alphabet printed on the concave surface as well as on the margin of the page, which enables instantaneous reference, whether the book is open or shut.

Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be despatched by express unpaid. Parties so desiring can have their copies sent by mail, or by prepaid book-rate express for 80 cents per copy extra.

A PPLETONS' Readers make conversation a leading feature in their method of development. In the early numbers every line, every picture is made suggestive of thought for conversation. In the more advanced books each selection is accompanied with hints involving the use of language. They stand unrivalled as books for training children in the best use of the English language.

PROFESSOR Conklin's English Gram mar and Composition compasses the entire range of the usual two-book course. It is sufficiently elementary for pupils of the lowest grammar grades, and is advanced enough to cover all that is required of the highest grammar classes. The author has succeeded in making grammar an interesting study. The method is strictly inductive.

PRACTICAL Business Forms and Movement Books have been added to Appletons' Standard Series of Copy-Books. These new books make the series more than ever valuable for schools, as they not only give the pupils a correct knowledge of business and social forms, blank checks, receipts, letters, etc., but also train the muscles of the arm and hand in producing the true writing movement.

ESSONS in United States History for Younger Classes, by Dr. EDWARD EGGLESTON, will be ready early in the summer. This little book will make the study of history delightful to younger pupils by introducing them, in pleasant narrative style, to more than a score of men who are the great landmarks of our country's story. The book is beautifully illustrated with hundreds of pictures by the best artists. It will form a charming introduction to Dr.

GGLESTON'S History of the United States and its People for the use of Schools. The success of this book has been remarkable. Already it is in use in thousands of the best schools of our country. With its wealth of illustration, clearness of type, beauty and strength of binding, and interesting style of the author, it is hardly a wonder that the book is so warmly received.

HE Appletons' Series of Geographies comprises a comprehensive three-book course, beautifully illustrated, up to date. The elementary is based on the objective method, taking gradual steps from the known to the unknown. The Higher gives prominence to commercial features. The maps are unexcelled. The Physical, by ten scientific specalists, has no rival on the subject.

UR series of preparatory classical text-books is uniform in both the Latin and the Greek. Harkness's First Year in Latin, Cæsar, Sallust, Cicero, and Frieze's Virgil—all have references to Harkness's Latin Grammar. Harkness's First Greek Book, Keep's Greek Lessons, Boise's Anabasis, and Johnson's Iliad have full references to the new Hadley-Allen's Greek Grammar.

UMBERS Illustrated, by Dr. RickOFF, is a veritable object-lesson book on Arithmetic, and makes the study most interesting and impressive for children. Numbers Applied is a practical application of Arithmetical principles, the problems occurring in every-day life. A complete text-book. Numbers Symbolized, by Prof. Sensenig, is the elementary algebra of the series, to be followed very shortly by Numbers Universalized, an advanced algebra.

Educational Notes for July, 1889, will be mailed free to Teachers.

From W. H. PAYNE, Chancellor of the University of Nashville, Nashville, Tenn.

"An examination of Harper's Readers convinces me of their great excellence both in respect of plan and matter; and I regard them as the highest ideal yet reached of a series of reading-books for use in the public schools of this country."

HARPER'S READERS.

Although published less than a year ago, have already been officially adopted and are now in use in more than

ONE THOUSAND CITIES AND TOWNS

NEW YORK CITY, PHILADELPHIA, PA., BROOKLYN, N. Y. JERSEY CITY, N. J., CAMBRIDGE, MASS., FALL RIVER, MASS., JACKSON, MICH., ANN ARBOR, MICH., GALENA, ILL., LINCOLN, NEB., SHEBOYGAN, WIS. ETC., ETC.

They have been introduced as supplementary reading-books into the schools of CHICAGO, ILL, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., PEORIA, ILL., DULUTH, MINN., and many others of the best schools in all parts of the country. They have also been adopted by the Board of Education of the STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA for use in the schools of that State, and by the school officers of hundreds of counties and country districts in all parts of the Union. Teachers and the press are unanimous in their praise of these Readers.

- "I have examined and tested Harper's Readers, and find them as perfect in every detail as any I have ever seen or used."—L. J. RUNDLETT, Superintendent of Schools, Concord, N. H.
- "Harper's Readers are in all respects excellent."—J. Езтавкоокв, State Supt. of Public Instruction, Michigan.
- "I think the quality, quantity, and arrangement of reading-matter contained in these books unsurpassed."—
 J. B. Thayee, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Wisconsin.
- "Harper's Readers are giving eminent satisfaction, delighting both teachers and pupils."—D. H. CROILAND, School Commissioner, Aiken, S. C.
- "Harper's Readers are in use in the schools of Canton and Easton. The teachers are unanimous in their praise of the whole series."—WILLIAM C. BATES, Superintendent of Schools, Canton and Easton, Mass.
- "All good Americans, of whatever faith, will approve heartily of the patriotic selections, numerous and admirably chosen from the best American writers."—From The Pilot, Boston, Mass., February 23, 1889.
- "The whole arrangement and make-up of the books and their contents are so admirable for their purpose as to leave nothing to be desired."—From The Lutheran Observer, Philadelphia, Pa., Pebruary 22, 1889.

AMERICAN SCHOOL-BOOK PUBLISH-

THERE has been nothing more creditable in the history of book publishing within the last generation than the progress made by American educational publishers. Our educational literature may fairly challenge competition from any quarter of the world for its combination of scholarship and educational progress in the text, and its remarkable mechanical excellence, particularly in the matter of illustration. The German, the French, and the English educational literature each has its special excellence, the first for solid research, the second for popular adaptation, the third for high scholarship. But while we are little if any behind those nations in these particulars, we are far in advance of them in seeking to train the eye, the observing faculty, and the taste by means of the improved mechanical get-up of our text-books, especially those for younger children, in which this feature is especially recognized by educators as almost of first importance. This result has been brought about by the reciprocal influence of a progressive body of educators demanding the best, and of a competitive endeavor on the part of publishers to supply what will best meet this advanced demand. Our American school-book publishers can safely challenge competition in any world's exposition, and it is rather a pity that they are not more often represented adequately at them.

Parallel with this result has been an extraordinary cheapening in the price of this class of books, which, supplied as they are in considerable quantities for classes or for whole schools, have, when once introduced, both a surer and a wider market than miscellaneous books. An American school-book can safely be put alongside any miscellaneous book, or any school-book from any other country, of equal size, character, and wealth of illustration, if such can be found, and challenge comparison in price as well as in other respects. This is one result of the competition which has done so much for American educational literature. But there was another result of this extreme competition which in a measure interfered with the full development of this cheapening of books, and also produced more positive evil. This was the enormous machinery and consequent expense made necessary in "working" the extended school-book constituency of the country, either in introducing new books, or in holding old books in place against the attacks of rivals, or in exchanging one series for another, and so on until the end of the chapter. This required an organization of the most costly sort, because only men of a high order of ability have the intelligence and keenness to do this work, and such men must be well paid. Another type of men replaced that ability with lower cunning, and it is undoubtedly true that more or less corruption had crept into the school-book system as one result of this competition.

Some time ago some of the leading schoolbook publishers formed themselves into an association with the purpose of working in harmony rather than in opposition, that is to say, of restraining their rivalry within specific limits. They agreed to see that only "fair and honorable methods" were used in introductions, to restrict themselves to not more than fifteen travelling agents each, and in general to promote better methods of business which would correct past abuses, leaving competition as to qualities and prices absolutely free. That plan has worked sufficiently well to justify a further step, of which some mention has been made in the daily papers, looking to the abolition of canvassing agents altogether, except in such large cities as New York, which allow the schools to select from an "open list" of books, and the direct sale of books from the publishing houses, or from local offices, restricted to eight in number. It is not, in any sense a Trust, nor will it destroy competition of the right sort. Any business arrangement which undertakes to diminish competition in quality or price is against public interest and ought not to succeed. This combination, as we understand it, has the contrary purpose of serving the public by saving labor and cost. If it should go farther than this, and bring the trade into the stagnation which comes from the destruction of competition, the results would not be good, and the arrangement, we believe, would not last. There is not the slightest thought, however, of any such scheme. The usefulness and indeed the existence of such an association as this depend upon the good faith and common-sense of the weakest member of the combination. It is the old story that a chain is no stronger than its weakest link. When any house is tempted to evade the agreement and cannot hold itself back from attempting to profit by such evasion, the agreement cannot last. But the benefits to be gained by the arrangement are so much greater than any incidental advantage to be got by breaking it, that we hope to see a fair opportunity given for the full test of the experiment.

It has been a general superstition that the educational publishers have been making enormous profits and rolling in wealth. As a matter of fact. the business, which in all is probably not much above $5,000,000 for the whole country, is confined to at most about a hundred houses, of whom half a score or so do a handsome business. on which small profits aggregate considerable return. But the profit of educational publishing is really inadequate and is not proportionate to the return of equal energy and brains in other lines of business. The superstition of which we speak is ill founded; nevertheless, over and over again. one State after another has attempted, by a system of State text-books or in some other way, to "bulldoze" publishers, or to get more for its money than can be given. The result in most cases has been disastrous educationally and not successful financially. While the books have been nominally, perhaps, sold at a lower price, they have been inferior in the particular qualities which have made American educational books so remarkable, and they have cost an untold amount in clerical and other outlay concealed in salaries and other kinds of expenses. The State of California is a marked example. It is beyond reason that the individual supply of any one State can be made as cheaply as great educational houses supplying the whole country can provide it. The new arrangement should remove any just cause of complaint which the schools and public can bring against the educational publishers, and we trust, therefore, that the experiment will be fairly and fully tried.

THE SCHOOL-BOOK ASSOCIATION: AN AUTHORITATIVE STATE-MENT.

In view of the recent publication in the daily press of rumors in relation to movements of the school-book publishing houses of forming a combination and discontinuing travelling agents, it may be well for the information of the trade, and the public, to give an authoritative statement of facts in this connection.

There is not, and there never has been, anything in the nature of a trust, or pool, or trade combination of any sort controlling prices, or sharing profits, in the school-book trade. There has existed for the past six years an Association, the only purpose of which has been to regulate be a concern recently called into existence, in the school-book introduction business, which had become overladen with numerous evils familiar to the public. Each house is left entirely free to fix its own prices, as it has always done; and as a matter of fact prices of different books vary very considerably among the different houses. The only thing attempted has been to correct the evils connected with the old methods of schoolbook agency work by restricting the number of travelling agents, and by an agreement not to interfere to displace books where in satisfactory use, but to leave the educational public, entirely free and untrammelled by outside influences, to select whatever books they choose to use. Advertising, quotation of prices, correspondence. and sending sample copies is and will continue to be freely done by all houses and agents.

The recent movement in the school-book trade has been only another step in this same direction, namely, to dispense generally with travelling agents, and conduct the business from the houses or their local offices. This action has been taken simply with reference to carrying a stage further the reform which has already so long been in successful operation. Its whole tendency will be towards freer and cheaper books for the schools, and, like the whole movement of which this is a part, is quite as much in the interest of the public as of the publishers. It has absolutely no relation to prices, except as by reducing expenses it makes cheaper production pessible, to the ultimate benefit of the public.

INDIANA'S DIFFICULTY IN THE SCHOOL BOOK BUSINESS.

A WEEK ago it seemed as if the Indiana State Board of Education would be left without schoolbook supplies under the working of the new law. At that time the representative of a prominent school-book publishing house of New York is reported to have said: "The truth of the matter is, first-class modern books cannot be published for the prices required by the law.

At the eleventh hour, however, Professor Parsons, of the State Normal School, chairman of the Committee of the Whole, handed in a report, which was made up of six resolutions: (1) To reject all manuscripts submitted, because the board had no funds with which to advertise for books; (2) to accept the bid of the Indiana School-Book Co. to furnish geographies; (3) to accept the series of arithmetics proposed by the Indiana Company; (4) to award the contract to furnish copybooks to the Bowen-Merrill Co., of Indianapolis; (5) to reject the spelling-book offered by the Indiana School-Book Co., because it was not equal in size to the standard named in the law; (6) to accept the series of readers proposed by the Indiana School-Book Co. The resolutions were adopted unanimously, excepting the second and the last, Superintendent La Follette objecting in both cases. He voted in the negative on the second resolution because he "didn't believe that the geographies offered by the Indiana School-Book Co. were up to the standard.'

The Board has now reached the end of its possibilities, and histories, grammars, physiologies, and spellers are unprovided for. Under the decision of the Attorney-General it will be impossible to advertise for additional bids until the Legislature has met again and made an appropriation to defray the expense of advertising.

The Indiana School-Book Company seems to which are interested Edward Hawkins, who recently retired from the office of United States Marshal for Indiana: Josephus Collett, of Terre Haute; Wm. Fleming and R. C. Bell, of Fort Wayne; Wm. Heilman, D. C. Mackey, and E. P. Huston, of Evansville; and James Murdoch. of Michigan. It is alleged that it is a political combination that has been gotten together for the purpose of taking advantage of the present complications in the school-book affairs of the State. It proposes to supply the books specified in the act at the following prices: First Reader, 10 cents; Second, 15 cents; Third, 25 cents; Fourth, 30 cents; Fifth, 40 cents; Spelling-Books, 10 cents; Intermediate Arithmetic, 35 cents; Arithmetic Complete, 45 cents; Hotze's Physiology, 35 cents; Elementary Geography. 30 cents; Complete Geography, 75 cents; Copy-Books, 5 cents. They offer to exchange the new books for those of corresponding grade at the following prices: First Reader, 9 cents; Second, 13 cents; Third, 22 cents; Fourth, 26 cents; Fifth, 35 cents; Elementary Arithmetic, 32 cents; Complete Arithmetic, 40 cents; Physiology, 33 cents; Spelling-Book, 9 cents; Elementary Geography, 27 cents; and Complete Geography, 74 cents.

The company offers, if its bid is accepted, to contract with the board to supply within the required time the number of books called for by lawful requisition, and they have ready for filing a bond for $50,000. The proposal is signed by the officers of the company—Josephus Collett, President, and Edward Hawkins, Secretary.

The officers of the company state that "they are making this bid solely in their own behalf, and not as representing any other corporation, firm, or individual; that their purpose is, if awarded the contract, to carry it out fully, in the letter and spirit of the law, and to demonstrate the entire feasibility of the project of furnishing to the school-children of Indiana text-books in every respect equal to those now in use, at prices very much lower than are and have been for many years charged for such books."

CLUBS AND CIRCLES.

From Boone's "Education in the United States." (D. Appleton & Co.)

In its social significance, the distribution of culture is the great educational desideratum. How to make the technical and particular knowledge of the few the common experience of the many, this fixes the direction of all systems of education. Yesterday's doctrine of a class is the wide rule of conduct to day. To extend the boundaries of knowledge and obedience, and man's mastery of nature, is the function of universities and societies, of laboratories and endowed research. To the college and secondary school, the church, the lecture, and the press, are left the diffusion of this knowledge, and making more wide-spread this obedience and mastery. Looked at from the social standpoint, the latter is fundamental. The success of the undertaking conditions the health of the social body and the perpetuity of government. In homogeneity of culture are political and civil strength. "There is no ure are political and civil strength. "There is no future for a stratified civilization;" hence the need for every possible local agency for the exchange and circulation of the maturest and most saving experience. It is of less importance even that much intelligence exists than that the data of intelligence shall under wise direction be brought within easy reach of all. It is a law of life not | ries, co.lege preparatories, and normal schools.

less sociological than biological that vigor and fruitfulness are promoted by adaption and correspondence among the parts. Personal culture and special knowledge, and individual invention and local intelligence must somehow be worked down into communities crystallized into form. talked about around hearthstones, shaped into customs, and so erected into institutions. And to this end, born of the need and fed by the spirit of local self-interest, have sprung up more or less general, less or more formally organized societies. They are variously named, and even more diverse in constitution and aim; but, taken as a class, they are of greater importance as educational means than appears from a casual view.

Under the guise of clubs for intellectual and social advantage have been formed philosophical and scientific organizations, less pretentious than the learned societies; literary bodies for the study of the masters; and historical unions, with no official countenance from the large associations, but gathering up into permanent records the delicate and far-reaching but fast-wasting threads of a rich local life. Then there is the modern reading circle, including societies for home study, correspondence schools, the Chautauqua and Agassiz Associations, etc. These cannot be regarded with indifference when it is considered that they enroll nearly twice as many students as all the colleges of the United States combined, for both men and women, and as many as all the secondary institutions * taken together.

LESSONS FROM THE HISTORY OF EDUCATION.

From Payne's "Contributions to the Science of Education," (Harper & Bros.)

EDUCATION has always been moulded in accordance with political or religious needs; that is, the school, instead of dominating the State and the Church, has been dominated by them. For example, Phœnicia was devoted to traffic, and so the art of computation was made a staple of in-struction in her schools. The small states of Greece, exposed to the ever-present dangers of invasion, had need of a brave and hardy soldiery: and so gymnastic training of the military type was enjoined on all Grecian youth. Egypt was pervaded by the spirit of caste, and so the purpose of instruction was to prepare the son for following the occupation of his father. The preoccupation of the Jew was the maintenance of the sacred traditions, and so instruction became a careful process of indoctrination. The Reformation, by throwing on each human being the burden of his own salvation, made it necessary that every child should know how to read; and, to meet this necessity, schools were multiplied till all had an opportunity to learn to read. In cases where state needs were felt to be urgent, and where there was not a prompt response to the public call, there was a resort to compulsion, as in ancient Sparta, and, in a measure, among the Jews, as well as in most European states of the present day. We may generalize these facts and say that the prevailing type of education during the whole historic period has been technical or professional, its purpose being to equip men for service as agents or instruments. Side by side with this narrow conception of education there has at times appeared the wider conception of education as a process by which a human being is wrought into the likeness of the highest type of his kind. I believe this conception appeared for the first time in Greece in the fifth century B.C. Plato had such an exalted conception of the State. and of the qualifications needed for full citizenship, that, in his scheme of training, technical education and liberal education became essentially one and the same. To be a citizen of the Republic was to be a man in the fullest sense of that term as then understood. These two conceptions, the narrower and the wider, of man as an instrument destined never to transcend his environment, and of man free to transcend his environment, in obedience to his natural aspirations towards the highest type of his kind, have descended to our day, and their struggle for supremacy is involved in most of the educational polemics of the times. On this subject three opinions are held: 1st. That education is to be of the technical type, the school being a place for acquiring a trade. 2d. That education is to be of the liberal type, the purpose of the school being a general intellectual training. 3d. That the ideal education is first general or liberal, and then special or technical, or that the best type of the human instrument is to be made out of the best type of man.

THE PREPARATION OF TEACHERS.

From Boone's "Education in the United States." (D. Appleton & Co.)

It need scarcely be said that the work as a whole, and in this country, is yet only tentative. A few of the courses are painfully narrow and barren; others are subordinated—made to share both time and attention with unrelated subjects. Nevertheless, the movement is assuring and is, almost without exception, favorably regarded by educators.

"The great need of the hour," it has been said * "is to ascertain what has been done in the line of educational effort, what plans have succeeded and what have failed, and the conditions under which success or failure has come." This is one of the most stimulating services of the contemporary college-the large contributions it has made to the intelligent and systematic and comparative study of history; and now, especially, the history of education and its institutions. This involves not only the education of the states, ancient and modern, but the accompanying social and political forms, custom and creed, antecedent and environment, and the physical and other conditions which determine the institutional life. is a work, viewed from the pedagogical side, peculiarly within the province of the university.

Again, as the principles of instruction are to be sought in the nature and functions of the mind, and the general spiritual life, the conditions of education, in its deeper content, presuppose the broader coördinations of knowledge included under anthropology, ethics, and the indefinitely complex sciology in the study of institutional life. Philosophy of education is, then, a phase of general philosophy, rests upon its constituent knowledges, borrows its deductions and is conditioned by them. Theories of mind and the individual responsibility; prevalent estimates of the social life and the functions of the state; the changed interpretations of natural phenomena and forces, all contribute to the shaping of educational doctrine and its ultimate creed. The enlargement of university pedagogy on the side indicated is one of the hopeful signs of the day. Never was it more needed than now. And if the present movement shall result in calling to the universities throughout the country its best men to study these questions in their universal relations, study education as philosophy, and mark its bearings, it will have done the generation an eminent service.

EDUCATIONAL LITERATURE

One of the conditions of professional efficiency, at the present day, is familiarity with the contributing literature.

It marks economy in service, and is the starting-point for any sound original study of current conditions. This is neither less nor more true of teaching than of law, medicine, or theology. Paraphrasing the famous dictum of Matthew Arnold, it may be said the right acquaintance with the best that has been thought and said touching one's profession is a liberal professional education.

Incomplete and unsatisfactory as this literature is in the United States, most departments of modern inquiry have made some contributions.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION.

From Payne's "Lectures on the Science and Art of Education." (E, L, Kellogg & Co.)

ALL authorities agree that educators have a better chance of improving the physical condition of their pupils if they are themselves acquainted with the laws of health; and they insist, moreover, that the health of the body is not only desirable for its own sake, but because, from the interdependence of mind and body, the mens sana depends so much on the corpus sanum.

In short, hundreds of writers have written on this subject for the benefit of educators, thousands of whom have never even heard of, much less read, their writings; or, if they have, pursue the even tenor of their way, doing just as they did before, and ignorantly laughing at Hygiene and all the aid she offers them.

Physical education also comprehends the training of special faculties and functions, with a view to improve their condition. The trainer of horses, dogs, singing-birds, boxers, boat crews, and cricketers, all make a study, more or less profound, of the material they have to deal withall except the educator, the trainer of trainers, who generally leaves things to take their chance. or assumes that the object will be sufficiently gained by the exercises of the playground and the gymnastic apparatus. It would be easy to show that this self-education, although most valuable, is insufficient, and ought to be supplemented by the appliances of Physiological Science, This science would suggest, in some cases, remedies for natural defects; in others, suitable training for natural weakness; in others, still graver reasons for checking the injurious tendency, so common amongst children, to over-exertion; and in all these cases would be directly ancillary to the professed object of the educator as a trainer of intellectual and moral forces.

The effect, too, of the condition of the mind on that of the body—the converse reciprocal action —is an important part of this subject; but there is no time to enter on it.

THE

[PUBLISHERS' PRICES.]

NOTICE.—In this Catalogue only prices made by publishers themselves are given—retail, if retail, in first column; "net" (wholesale), if "net," in second column; where a "mailing" percentage is specified by the publisher, the "mailing price" is given in the retail column marked with an asterisk (4), in addition to the wholesale price. When price-columns are left blank, the publisher failed, mapplication, to furnish price. A double asterisk (44) in price-columns designates books forthcoming. New books, issued since the publication of the Catalogue of 1888, are designated by a single asterisk (4) before title.

In comparing prices or ordering at retail, private buyers should bear in mind that a percentage must be added to prices quoted at wholesale, to cover freight, handling, delivering, etc. Discounts on quantities vary on different lines, according to the hind of prices adopted by the respective publishers.

For subject classification (and for collective references to classic authors entered here under separate editors), see the second part of the Catalogue, following this main alphabet.

BICHTER'S INORGANIC CHEMISTRY. (Third Edition.) A Text-Book for Students, by Prof. Victor von Richter, University of Breslau. Translated by Rigger F. Smith, M.A., Ph.D., Professor of Chemistry, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia; Member of the Chemical Societies of Berlin and Paris, etc. Third American from the Fourth German Edition. 89 woodcuts and colored plate of Spectra. 1300, 400 pages, cloth, $2.00. Examination price, postpaid, $1.50.

In this work the theory and facts of the science are brought close together and their intimate relation clearly shown. The descriptions of the various inorganic substances are full and embody the latest results and discoveries. The book has reached five editions in both Germany and Russia and has been translated in Holland and Italy. This, the Third American edition, is recommended at a number of prominent schools and colleges throughout the country.

"After a year's careful study and examination of Dr. Smith's translation of 'Richter's Inorganic Chemistry,' I have come to the conclusion that it excels all the text-books that are published on this subject. I make this statement on the basis of a thorough comparison. I studied under the celebrated Prof. von Gorup-Bessanez, at the University of Edangen, Germany, and used his text-books for private use, but I must lay them aside, and shill introduce 'Richter' in my classes next year."—R. C. Schiedt, Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster, Pransploantia, February 13, 1830.

RICHTER'S ORGANIC CHEMISTRY, OR CHEMISTRY OF THE CARBON COMPOUNDS. By same author and translator as above. Illustrated. 12mo, 710 pages, cloth, $3.00; leather, $3.50. Examination price, postpaid, $2.00.

This volume contains a full description of the Carbon Derivatives. The treatment of the various classes of bodies is comprehensive, the most recent and interesting results of chemical research being given with special fulness.

Richter's Organic Chemistry is used as a text-book in those schools that devote the necessary time to this branch; for those, however, who must use smaller or more elementary books it will be found extremely valuable as a work of reference.

HIGH SCHOOL, SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 5, 1889.

P. Blakiston, Son & Co.

The volumes you send me of Richter's Chemistries are among the most scholarly productions which have come to my notice for many years. It is a treat to examine almost any page of these works . . .

Yours truly, W. A. Brownell, Professor of Chemistry.

STAMMER'S CHEMICAL PROBLEMS. Translated from the Second German Edition with the explanations and answers added by Prof. W. S. Hoskinson, A.M., Wittenberg College. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents. Examination price, postpaid, 50 cents.

"Stammer's work is highly practical, and for that reason I have a preference for it. Professor Hoskinson has performed his work well, and deserves the thanks of teachers of the science."—Prof. Engar F. Smith, Translator of Richter's Chemistries.

BLOXAM'S CHEMISTRY: Inorganic and Organic. Sixth edition. With experiments. Over 300 engravings. Cloth, $4.50; leather, $5.50.

This edition contains a large amount of new material and most of the book has been rewritten to give a more comprehensive view of the chemistry of the day.

LONGMANS, GREEN, & CO. Publish:

Longmans' School Grammar. By DAVID SALMON. Crown 8vo, 472 pages, 75 cents.

"This is a better book by far than any in common use in this country. The present 'grammar' begins with induction, but passes immediately to deduction, and both induction, but passes immediately to deduction, and both methods are employed throughout; each induction leading to new deductions. One of the best working grammars we have ever seen, and this applies to all its parts. It is excellently arranged and perfectly graded, Part four, on 'History and Derivation,' is as beautiful and interesting as it is valuable—but this might be said of the whole book."—Teacher, N. Y.

Longmans' Junior School Grammar.

By David Salmon. Crown 8vo, 128 pages, 30 cents.

The Junior School Grammar is an adaptation of the first half of the author's School Grammar, with some of the explanations simplified, with many of the exercises amplified, and with a few of the difficulties omitted.

The characteristics of the book are, in addition to its inductive method, the number and variety of its exercises, and the omission of all the minor distinctions of grammar. It thus provides much to do and not much to realember.

EPOCHS OF AMERICAN HISTORY.

Messrs. Longmans, Green & Co. have the pleasure to announce that they have made arrangements to supplement their series, Erocus or Modern History, by a short series of books treating of the history of America, which will be published under the general title Epocus or American History.

The series will be under the Editorship of Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, Assistant Professor of History in Harvard College.

Bach volume will contain about 350 pages, similar in size and style to the page of the volumes in the Epochs.

or History series, with full marginal analysis, working bibliographies, maps, introductions, and index.

The volumes will be issued separately and each will be comprete in itself. Those already arranged for will, it is hoped, provide a continuous history of the United States, from the foundation of the Colonies to the present time, which shall be suited to class use as well as for general reading and reference.

The council to class use as well as for general reading and reference.

The volumes in preparation are as follows:

1. THE COLONIES (1492-1763). By REUBEN GOLD THWAITES, Secretary of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, author of "Historic Waterways," etc.

2. FORMATION OF THE UNION (1763-1529). By Albert Bushnell Hart, A.B., Ph.D., the Editor of the series.

DIVISION AND REUNION (1829-1889). By Woodrow Wilson, Ph.D., LL.D., Profe History and Political Economy, in Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., author of gressional Government," etc., etc.

Two-Book Course in Arithmetic.

Warren Colburn's First Lessons. 35 Cents Net.

In use in 122 cities and towns of Massachusetts.

JUST PUBLISHED:

H. N. Wheeler's Second Lessons. 60 Cents Net.

Adopted on May 7, 1889, by the School Committee of Worcester, Mass., by a vote of 20 to 0, for use in Grades above the Fourth.

Colburn's First Lessons is already used exclusively in the four lower grades of the Worcester Schools and for mental work in the higher grades.

These two books form a complete course in arithmetic, which is characterized throughout by a careful application of the Inductive Method of Instruction by the aid of which the pupil is led to regard a new word as a laborsaving device for the expression of an idea, a definition as a brief statement of the net result of personal observation and thought, and a rule as a brief statement of how he has done something.

REMARKS. The attention of teachers is invited to the classic literature which we are now publishing in a cheap form for school use. During the next school year valuable additions will be made to the Riverside Literature Sories mostly of the Pourth and Pith Reader grades, and severa books will be published of the First, Second and Third Reader grades.

We shall be glad to supply teachers with descriptive circulars of our books, and we will send free, to any teacher who applies for it, a portrail catalogue of all of our publications, containing pertraits of more than forty of our famous authors.

FOR SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

THE HISTORY OF THE ROMAN REPUBLIC. Abridged from the History by Prof. Mommen. By C. Bryans and F. G. R. HENDY. One volume, 12mo. $1.75.

The merits of Professor Mommsen's History are well known. They have won recognition from all qualified judges, and have long established the author's reputation as the prince of Roman historians. The need of an abridgment of this great work—a book that should present the salient points of the original in a form suitable for use in schools and colleges—is well met in this condensation by two competent English scholars. The plan of the larger work is followed, and the ideas throughout are those of Professor Mommsen, whose very language as given in Dictson's admirable translation is often used. The editors have successfully preserved the notable qualities that distinctive the supplied of the professor in the supplied of the professor is of the professor in the professor in the professor is of the professor in the professor is of the professor in the professor in the professor in the professor is of the professor in guish the original.

"I have examined it with care and find the work skilfully done. It will be a very welcome book, I am sure, to teachers and students. I shall be glad to use it with my classes and believe it will be widely adopted as a text-book in our schools and colleges."—Prof. WILLIAM A. PACKARD, Princeton College.

"It is a genuine boon that the essential parts of Mommson's Rome are thus brought within easy reach of all, and the abridgment seems to me to preserve unusually well the glow and movement of the original. I trust that the excelence of the work will be appreciated by teachers and scholars, and by all lovers of good books."—Prof. Tracy Pack, Yale University.

Important Works by Prof. G. P. Fisher, D.D., LL.D.

HISTORY OF THE CHRISTIAN | MANUAL OF CHRISTIAN EVI-CHURCH. 8vo, with numerous maps, DENCES. 12mo, 75 cents. $3.50.

"I have to tell you of the pride and delight with which I have examined your rich and most instructive volume. As an American, let me thank you for producing a work so honorable to the country."—Hon. George Bancroft.

"I am surprised that the author has been able to put such multitudes of facts, with analysis of opinions, definitions of tendencies, and concise personal sketches, into a narrative at once so graceful, graphic, and compact."—

Professor Fisher's masterly summary of the proofs of the Christian religion includes a clear and powerful state-ment of the historical argument, of the internal evidence of the Scriptures and the intrinsic excellence of the Christian revelation, and answers modern objections of a theoretical character in a satisfactory and convincing manner.

"By all odds, the best treatise on the evidences of Christianity that we know."—The Examiner.

"It touches every leading point of Christian evidence, and meets every important objection."—The Churchman.

Text-Books on Mental Science by Ex.-Pres. James McCosh, D.D., LL.D.

PSYCHOLOGY. I. The Cognitive Powers. II. The Motive Powers. 2 vols., 12mo, each

The first volume contains an analysis of the operations of the senses, and of their relation to the intellectual processes, and devotes considerable space to a discussion of Sense-perception, from the physiological side, accompanied by appropriate cuts. The second volume continues the subject with a discussion of the power of the Conscience, Rmotions, and Will.

"This book is written in a clear and simple style: it breathes a sweet and winning spirit; and it is inspired by a noble purpose. In these respects it is a model of what a text-book should be."—Prof. WILLIAM DE W. HYDE, Bowdein Collège.

FIRST AND FUNDAMENTAL TRUTHS. Being a Treatise on Metaphys-

12mo, $2.00.

Dr. McCo-h regards this work as the copestone of what he has been able to do in philosophy. It is destined to rank as the most important of a l his works.

"The things noticeable in this book are its fulness of form, its simplicity of diction, its frequent and happy use of illustration, and its steady flow of clear and ample thought.

"The deep truth so ably presented by this grand metaphysician in this study of principles, and the satisfaction to be found in his system of realistic philosophy, render this work one of those valuable contributions to intellectual progress whose advent is an important event in the progress of the human race."—Boston Traveller.

An Introductory New Testament Greek Method. By Will-IAM R. HARPER, Ph.D., and REVERE F. WEIDNER, D.D. 8vo, $2.50 net.

CONTENTS: I. Fifty Inductive Lessons based on the Gospel of St. John.—II. 1. A Critical Text of the Gospel of St. John. 2. A Literal Translation of John 1-4. 3. A Vocabulary of the Gospel and Epistles of St. John. 4. Lists of words occurring most frequently.—III. Elements of New Testament Greek Grammar.

"I thoroughly believe in the inductive method which has shaped the work and anticipate for it large usefulness and success. It is carefully edited and printed, and supplies an evident lack among the rudimentary text-books for the study of the Greek Testament."—Prof. J. H. Thaver, Harvard University.

"A book likely to be widely popular with those who desire to know Greek enough to read the New Testament and would come directly at it. The method has two notable features which all teachers of the classics—and of languages generally—would do well to mark: the matering of word-lists which comprise the ordinary vocabulary, and the memorizing of passages of the original text."—Prof. Samuel R. Winans, Princeton, N. J.

McGUFFEY'S ALTERNATE SIXTH READER.

A Literary Reader for Higher Grades. The Sixth Reader of McGuffey's Alternate Series. With ten full-page illustrations. 12mo, cloth, 432 pp., 60 cents.

Public libraries are now so common in connection with public schools that it becomes evident that one duty of the schools is to teach children how to use books. In no way can this be better done than by inculcating a taste for good literature. The selections in the Alternate Sixth Reader have been made with this especially in view. Complete and characteristic compositions have been selected from the writings of one hundred and twenty authors, and they are such as have not been chosen for other late readers. The notes and biographical sketches are very numerous and full.

NEARLY READY:

McGUFFEY'S REVISED HIGH SCHOOL READER AND LITERATURE.

McGuffey's High School Reader, Revised Edition; arranged for use as a literary reader, and may be used instead of the usual English Literature. A collection of masterpieces, with notes, explanations, and biographies of authors. 12mo, half leather, 480 pp., 85 cents.

McGuffey's Revised High School Reader and Literature was compiled after correspondence with many principals of high schools and academies. Their suggestions are embodied in the work, and consequently it will meet, more nearly than any similar work, the requirements of the schools of to-day.

The requirements for each reading lesson have been: r. It must be a complete composition. 2. It must be characteristic of its author and a good specimen of English. 3. It must treat of some interesting topic. 4. It must be fresh, and not in the usual school reader.

IN PREPARATION—FOR FALL ISSUE.

METCALF'S LANGUAGE EXERCISES.

By Robert C. Metcalf, Supervisor of Schools, Boston, Mass., and Orville T. Bright, Superintendent of Schools, Englewood, Ill. Cloth, 12mo, 230 pages. Illustrated. For Introduction, 42 cents.

This book is more strictly than any other work of the kind a book of insurage exercises. "The see of language is controlled very largely by kabit." Habit comes of careful training, long practice, constant usage, strict watch-care, repeated suggestion, exercise in thinking, and in the expression of thought. The work is, therefore, a book of such exercises as will induce correct habits and lead to good usage. Much care is had in the arrangement of the lessons to secure constant freshness and at the same time to furnish repeated practice in every variety of exercise.

SCHOOL MAPS.

Newly engraved on a large scale and corrected by the latest official and private data.

The engraving is beautifully clear, and the large scale permits the introduction of many important details which cannot be shown on smaller maps.

The coloring is by our celebrated patent process, which gives great beauty of contrast without interfering with the distinctness of the engraving. It is used to distinguish States and grand divisions.

The Series comprises seven maps, as follows:

UNITED STATES, NORTH AMERICA, SOUTH AMERICA. EUROPE, ASIA,

SOUTH AMERICA, AFRICA, THE WORLD, ON MERCATOR'S PROJECTION.

All excepting the map of the World (which is 58 x 41 inches) are 66 x 44 inches, a size which permits of their use in the largest school-rooms, where the details can be seen by the entire class.

Full particulars, description, and prices will be furnished on application.

RAND, McNALLY & CO.'S SERIES OF EDUCATIONAL MAPS.

Most Complete, Handsome, and Substantial School Maps Heretofore
Published.

These maps are beautifully bold in outline, free from unimportant names, and perfectly distinct. They show the latest geographical discoveries and political changes in every part of the world. They are handsomely and artistically colored, to distinguish political boundaries. The names of towns are engraved in clear, bold type, and are also indicated by large black dots, so that the series can, if preferred, be used for "outline" maps. The lengths of the principal rivers and the altitudes of the highest mountains are engraved on the maps.

The maps are mounted on heavy cloth, with rollers, and varnished.

The Library List.

REING A LIST OF PUBLIC LIBRARIES IN THE UNITED STATES AND

IN CANADA OF OVER 1000 VOLUMES. WITH CLASSIFICATION

BY SIZE AND NAME OF LIBRARIAN.

One volume, half mor., $3.50 net.

THE LIBRARY LIST is a compilation based on the list of libraries compiled by the United States Bureau of Education, and forming part of the Annual Report of the Commissioner of Education, now the Hon. N. H. R. Dawson. It differs from that, however, in eliminating the minor libraries of under a thousand volumes, in adding the names of Librarians, and in classifying, by means of types of different face, libraries of corresponding numbers, as over 50,000, over 10,000, over 5000, and over 1000. There is also added a supplementary list of libraries, made partly by the Bureau of Education and partly from the records of the office of the LIBRARY JOURNAL. In the present shape, with the opportunity given by the printing on alternate pages for correcting and extending the list to any date, it is hoped that this LIBRARY LIST may be of service to all concerned with the library interest.

The LIBRARY LIST includes also the Libraries of Canada and the other British North American Provinces, for which it is indebted to the enterprise and courtesy of James Bain, Jr., Librarian of the Free Public Library, Toronto. This is an addition which we believe will be of great value and interest, as it is, we think, the first careful census of Canadian Libraries.

The distinction by means of type will enable those who have occasion to communicate with libraries to address few or many as they prefer, and many libraries will find it peculiarly useful for exchanging their reports and publications with libraries of corresponding size. The Brooklyn Library, for instance, has used this list, as originally published in the Library Journal, to send its annual report and its musical bulletin to all libraries of over 10,000 volumes in the country.

The List may also be recommended to the book-trade as a convenient and reliable address list, inasmuch as it comprises only such institutions as are likely to purchase current publications.

The Handy Reference Atlas of the World.

By John Bartholomew, F.R.G.S., etc. With one hundred maps and plans, full geographical statistics and a complete index. 12mo, cloth, $3.00; half mor., $4.00; Persian mor.. $5.00.

The maps (strongly mounted on guards) are made from the latest surveys and give not only the most recent geographical and political information, but also the principal physical and commercial features of the world. Nearly fifty pages of the volume are devoted to closely (yet clearly) printed statistics, and a copious index ingeniously indicates both the map and exact spot on it where any given place can be found.

Its 12mo size enables the reader to readily consult it in his hand without recourse to stand or table, and permits of its being placed on the shelf with other library volumes.

WILL PUBLISH IMMEDIATELY:

A CONTROVERSY.

CONSISTING OF PAPERS BY

HENRY WACE, D.D., Prof. THOMAS H. HUXLEY, THE BISHOP OF PETERBOROUGH, W. H. MALLOCK, Mrs. HUMPHRY WARD.

The interest taken in the recent controversy between the Rev. Dr. Henry Wace, Principal of King's College, London, and Prof. Huxley, over the question of the true significance of agnosticism, and incidentally of the limits of natural knowledge, and the difficulty of getting at the complete discussion when scattered through different publications, have induced the publishers to bring the articles together in a single volume. To these have been added W. H. Mallock's article, "Cowardly Agnosticism," and "The New Reformation," by Mrs. Humphry Ward.

15mo, cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

The Light of Her Countenance.

A NOVEL:

By H. H. BOYESEN, author of "A Daughter of the Philistines," etc. APPLETONS' TOWN AND COUNTRY LIBRARY."

12mo, paper cover, 50 cents (also in cloth, 75 cents).

The scenes of Prof. Boyesen's new romance open in New York, but the action soon shifts to Italy. The characters are mainly American and English. The incidents are picturesque and the movement animated.

NOTES IN SEASON.

Longmans, Green & Co. will publish at once Prof. Max Müller's Gifford lecture, "Natural Religion," delivered at Glasgow last year.

PORTER & COATES have in preparation a new story by Mrs. Lucy C. Lillie, entitled "Esther's Fortune." They have just issued in the Wyoming Series "Storm Mountain," by Edw. S. Ellis.

Funk & Wagnalls have just issued a practical little book, entitled "Emergency Notes," in which Dr. Glentworth R. Butler, tells in a clear, easily understood way what to do in the emergencies that are ever arising in this world of multiplied diseases and accidents.

A. C. Armstrong & Son have by arrangements with Rev. C. H. Spurgeon and his English publisher issued the first volume of his new work entitled "The Salt Cellars," being proverbe and quaint savings, together with homely notes thereon. It is alphabetical in arrangement and brings the proverbs down to the letter M.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY have just issued Margaret Sidney's new story, "Our Town," which promises to be a great treat to this author's many friends; Capt. Julius A. Palmer's nautical novel. "One Voyage and Its Consequences," the plot of which is laid partly in Boston, partly in the Mediterranean; and "Chrissy's Endeavor," by Pansy, a story of the development of religious feeling in a young society girl. They will issue next week Mrs. M. E. W. Sherwood's new book, "Sweet Brier;" and "A Colonial Boy. or, the old Sink Closet," a story of a real colonial boy in the days of hardship and daring, by Mrs. Nellie Blessing Eyster, of San Francisco.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish immediately "Christianity and Agnosticism," a controversy consisting of the papers by Henry Wace, Prof. Huxley, W. H. Mallock, the Bishop of Peterborough, and Mrs. Humphry Ward, which have been appearing in different periodicals, and which many persons desiring to get at the complete discussion will be glad to have in one volume. The new issue in their Town and Country Library will be "The Light of Her Countenance," by H. H. Boyesen, a story which opens in New York and then shifts its scene to Italy, retaining its American and admitting chiefly English charac-The incidents are said to be picturesque and the style animated.

D. C. HEATH & Co. publish this week in their series of Monographs for Teachers "Rice's Science Teaching in the Schools." This is an address delivered before the American Society of Naturalists Dec., '87. Appended to the address is a report of a committee appointed by that body to develop a scheme of instruction in natural science to be recommended to the schools, and which embodies the principles of the address. Hence, their monograph expresses the opinions of a great body of working naturalists and advanced teachers of science. A second appendix gives the detailed application of these principles in a course of science teaching prescribed for the public schools of Middletown, Conn.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. have in preparation a thoroughly revised edition of the "Revised Statutes of Ohio," edited by Florien Giauque. edition will include all general laws in force January 1, 1889, arranged in their proper divisions and sections of the Revised Statutes; exhaustive references and notes from all decisions of the Supreme Court rendered since 1879; all the Constitutions, laws of the United States, etc., amended to date of publication; a complete list of and indexes to all local laws passed since the codification of 1879, and several tables of valuable information; a history of each section changed since the codification, showing when amended, etc., and a new and carefully prepared index to the entire work.

Mr. Abbott's field of observation was again New Jersey, of whose wealth of living creatures he told us so many interesting things in "A naturalist's rambles about home." Again he describes the inhabitants of the fields and waters, finding new specimens and new traits of former specimens, with which to embellish his articles. He writes as only an enthusiastic lover of the animal He writes as only an enthusiastic lover of the animal kingdom can write, and displays a minute observation and patience that is quite marvellous. The twelve chapters are named from the twelve months, each embracing the characteristic features of the time of year. Some of the chapters have already been printed in Harper's Veung Prople, The American, the Popular Science Monthly, and Garden and Forest.

A satire of American society on the same broad lines as "Aristocracy." The entire plot deals with the endeavors of two English noblemen, whose finances are in rather a low state, to marry two American heiresses, and the more than willingness of the two heiresses to barter their money for titles. The scene changes from London to Monterey, California.

Almost the entire contents of this volume are gathered under the heading, "A casket of gems." The London Academy says: "The 'Casket of gems is more literal than fanciful descriptions of poetical collections are wont to be, consisting entirely, indeed, of poems of precious stones, ranged in such order that the initial letters of their names build together, from beginning to end of the casket, Lady Arnold's name — Fanny Maria Adelaide—a device perhaps too suggestive of acrostics for dignity. Sir Edwin Arnold's method of treating his various gems gives him many opportunities for his particular felicities."

In "The early life of Samuel Rogers" (noticed in P. W. of April 7, 1888), Mr. Clayden covered the firm forty years of the poet's life. As he lived to the good old age of 93, this left the events of over fifty years still to be narrated, and it is this story Mr. Clayden tells in the present work. The half century of Rogers' later life embraced one of the most eventful periods in Raglish literary and political history, beginning in 1803 and ending in 1855. During all this time he was one of the most con-

The author is a resident of Rochester, N.Y., and tells the story of his garden during the year 1888. Nearly all the plants referred to can be successfully grown in the rigorous climate of that lower lake region. The writer aims to atimulate a love for amateur gardening and has therefore presented a simple outline rather than a formal treatise and text-book of plants. There are also chapters on wild flowers and hardy ferns, and allusions are also made to the flowers and seasons in literature.

The heroine, knowing her miserly uncle had intended making a will in her favor, takes "a crooked path" and hides a will made years before. Her sole object is to help her mother and her brother's children. After a time, under peculiar circumstances, she confesses what she has done to the man who should have inherited. Several well-drawn characters are introduced in this story life in London, showing the smooth and the seamy side of several lives, with their complicated motives, aims, and ambitions. The heroine is the strong, whole-souled and ambitions. The heroine is the str woman Mrs. Alexander draws so well.

Mr. Herndon was for twenty years Mr. Lincoln's friend and law partner. This long personal association gave him special facilities in obtaining materials for these volumes. He claims that he possesses the most valuable Lincolniana in existence. The object of this work is to deal with Mr. Lincoln individually and domestically; as lawyer, as citizen, as statesman. The historic events of his time are only dealt with as they affected him personally—his figure being kept in sight throughout. Mr. Herndon has certainly made a remarkable book, and one that will always be considered one of the most valuable among the many lives of Lincoln. He neither idealizes his hero nor drags him in the dust. He simply tells what appears to be the exact truth about him, which in no way detracts from Lincoln's greatness. The facts he tells about Lincoln's birth, his early life, his marriage and married life are all new—and so startling that one is obliged to make are all new-and so startling that one is obliged to make

This work has just been adopted as a text-book at the Military Academy at West Point. Starting out with the general principles of army organizations and discipline it takes up the subject of the tactical use of the different arms of the service, singly and combined. While not entering into "drill tactics" proper, it explains the present methods of handling troops in battle, march, camp, reconnoissance, scrutiny, contact, etc., and shows how these methods have grown out from the experience gained in war. The treatment of logistics and strategy singly, and in their relation to each other and to tactics, is logical, clear, and free from dogmatism and confusing terms and definitions. The work is fully up to date in all respects. date in all respects.

The old, old story of an inventor sacrificing his family and all his means to carry on his unprofitable experiments. The scene is Normandy. His daughter Antoinette, a strong, sensible woman, is weak when called upon to oppose her father, and gives up her love and her fortune to further his ends. A family feud of long standing furnishes the plot. The last of the race of the Carvajans finally wins a lawsuit for the Clairfonts and the curtain drops on renewed prosperity.

Designed to give instruction to students in technical schools in the methods and results of the application of thermodynamics to engineering. The feature in which the book differs most from similar works is in the treatment of the steam-engine. It has been deemed advisable to avoid all approximate theories based on the assumption of adiabatic changes of steam in an engine cylinder, and instead to make a systematic study of steam-engine tests, with the view of finding what is actually known on the subject, and how future investigations and improvements may be made. For this purpose a large number of tests have been collected, arranged, and compared. Special attention is given to the investigations of the action of steam in the cylinder of an engine, considerable space being given to Hirn's researches and to experiments that provide the basis of them. Directions are given for testing engines, and for designing simple and compound engines. and compound engines.

Most of "Our journey to the Hebrides" originally appeared in Harper's Magasine. The writers say they have been criticised for dwelling too much upon the misery of the inhabitants of the places visited. They were not blind to the beauty, the sternness, the wildness of the country; but the sadness and sorrows of its downtrodden, semi-starved people left a more lasting impression than the wonder and beauty of their land. They do not attempt to give reasons for the economic problems. They merely describe. The illustrations are pretty and the book is tastefully bound in blue cloth ornamented with a Scotch thistle. with a Scotch thistle.

Birch Dene is an English cotton-spinning district during the first years of this century. The hero is apprenticed to learn the trade, and the story gives a realistic representation of the cruelty to which apprentices had to submit in those dark days. Che Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

IULY 27, 1880.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the s expressed in contributed articles or communications. views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same work's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

ed when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

CASPAR'S DIRECTORY.

CASPAR'S DIRECTORY is at last ready. fear that the trade has become weary of announcements of every kind concerning this work: vet at the risk even of becoming more tiresome we again take occasion to call their attention to this remarkable work. Certainly no other trade can boast of a more comprehensive directory than this. It has been objected that Mr. Caspar has attempted too much and has elaborated his subject beyond the proper limits of a trade directory. However plausible such an objection may seem at first sight, it remains a fact that the office of the Publishers' Weekly (no doubt our confrères have the same experience) is besieged almost daily for just such information as this work covers. As to the first part, the alphabetical list of firms, there can be no question that it is the most comprehensive yet undertaken. The same may be said of the fourth part, the geographical classification, though this might possibly have been made more useful had the publishers and the dealers been separated in the larger cities. Yet this is a matter that every one who uses the book may correct in a few hours by checking off one or the other branch. As for the fifth part in which the trade branches in the directory are arranged under the various departments, it is simply unique, and worth alone the price of the book to the manufacturer. Indeed, there are few pages in all the 1434 which make up this book that ought to be considered superfluous by any live man in any of the trades represented in the Directory.

As to its completeness, then, there is little doubt. The question then arises as to its accuracy. Concerning that we can speak only from our own experience. Having referred to the book for about four months, we have as yet discovered only four serious errors, chiefly in the spelling of firm names. It is simply impossible to produce an absolutely correct work of this kind for the first time or after many times. Every firm represented in the book received at least one circular asking for particulars; many actually received three or four circulars at different intervals. Through carelessness or indifference many never answered. In those cases the most reliable information obtainable was used. As the material grew, revision upon revision was made up to the time of going to press, and yet, now that the work is done, errors will be found here and there of greater or less importance. Unfortunately a work of this kind is invariably judged by its minor defects. The general correctness and completeness is always lost sight of. It is for the latter, however, that we recommend the work, and for this we hope it will receive the support it so richly deserves. Whatever other directory one may now use this one should find a place with it because it supplements in many ways all its predecessors. The book and stationery trades have long been clamoring for a work of this kind: let them now support the enterprising endeavor that has been made to supply their want. Whatever blemishes it may have can easily be effaced by the cooperation of those who use it constantly.

THE D. LOTHROP COMPANY'S BOOKS AT THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

CONCERNING D. Lothrop Company's books at the Paris Exhibition, a correspondent of the fournal of Useful Inventions writes: "While it is true that American painters find a warm recognition in European art circles, and an echoed appreciation at home, it is not in painting or sculpture that American art has had its most distinguished expression. In the one field of book and magazine illustration there has been eminent achievement, and in both creative design and interpretative engraving and painting, the Old World looks expectantly to the New. The advance is even dignified by the name of the 'American School' of illustration and engraving.

"The student and connoisseur of art progress will find in the D. Lothrop Company's exhibit interesting examples of this notable movement. In turning through the bound volumes of their famous magazine, Wide Awake, one is impressed with the broad range of methods employed to secure the most excellent results from thoroughly differing subjects.

"Foremost are the remarkable renderings by wood-engravings of monotone drawings in watercolor and oil by leading illustrators and painters, Chase, Sandham, Church, Smedley, Garrett, and others. Advantage is taken of the latest advances in athochromatic photography, and in half-tone engraving by the recently invented photo-etching processes of Ives and of Kurtz, in the enterprising reproductions of old miniatures and paintings by Stuart and others.
"Then, too, there are the exquisitely delicate etchings of line drawings by Garrett and other masters of graceful technique. Photogravure in the sensitive gelatine methods, and even artistic work by lithography is from time to time employed by this enterprising magazine.

"'Ideal Poems' and 'Idyls and Pastorals' include a fine series of full-page wood-engravings of the designs of well-known men, Lungren, Hovenden, and others. Edmund Clarence Stedman's whole poem of the 'Star Bearer' is enriched with a fine engraving after Howard Pyle, printed by hand from the original wood on Japanese silk paper. The charming little volume about that unique artist, Warwick Brookes, has some twenty-five most tender and sympathetic half-tone photoetchings from pencil drawings.

"Photogravure of a perfected gelatine type that almost rivals the famous Goupil process in fidelity and richness is employed with great distinctness in the édition de luxe folios of Tennyson's 'Holy Grail' and in 'Idyls and Pastorals.' In 'Ballads About Authors' the various reproductive processes are judiciously employed with admirable results."

THE BOOK TRADE IN THE "DIAMOND FIELD."

On the 13th inst., and at Chicago, was played one of the biggest games of baseball the book trade ever had the honor of being connected with. On the evening of the 11th Henry Kimball, H. Dover, Thos. R. Buchan, J. Parker White, Eugene Hardy, W. B. Walker, J. H. May, Chas. E. Brown, A. E. Turner, Wm. Jacchow, H. N. Keed, Edward C. Swayne, Jno. E. Potter, Jr., David Risley, Jr., T. B. McCauley, and A. K. Burke met at the Palmer House to discuss the subject, Mr. Reed acting as chairman. Mr. H. Kimball was called upon to name the club and chose the name D-Laids, which was unanimously adopted. Edward C. Swayne was elected manager, John B. May, captain, and F. H. Newcombe, official scorer. The club was to meet an impromptu Chicago club—Chicago Booklets—of which E. Lawson, of C. M. Barnes, was manager, and E. J. George, of S. A. Maxwell & Co., captain, at the Northwestern Ball Park. Game was called at 3:15 and the following nines set to work:

CHICAGO BOOKLETS. D-LAIDS. Herrick, r. f. George, c. Lawson, 1st b. Wright, 3d b. Bloch, p. Buck, p. Donohue, 2d b, Knox, 1st b. May, 2d b. Silverman, c. f. Dover, c. Rosenblatt, 3d b. Styles, s. s. Carey, l. f. Turner, p. Cannon, s. s. Potter, c. f. Thompson, s. s. Jacchow, l. f. Furlong Umpire—H. H. Reed. Furlong, r. f.

The scorers were Western Stationer and F. H. Newcombe.

The score by innings was:

D-Laids...... 0 0 1 1 2 0 0 0— 4 Chicago Booklets...... 9 1 0 1 5 3 3 5—27

The play of both the clubs was simply dazzling. The audience was composed of the representatives on the road of almost every book and stationery firm in the country and the élite of Chicago's book trade. The best feeling prevailed, and all felt happy at the success of their first experiment.

OBITUARY.

IOHN P. MORTON.

RIPE in years, distinguished and beloved. and with all the honors which make life worth living. another prominent member of the book trade has passed away. Shortly after noon on the 19th inst., Mr. John P. Morton, head of the publishing house of John P. Morton & Co., of Louisville, Ky., died peacefully, surrounded by his immediate family and relatives. Mr. Morton's illness was a long one, and a complication of diseases was too much for the once strong and sturdy constitution, weakened by sickness and the eightytwo years of active and eventful life. Until a few years ago Mr. Morton was possessed of the best physical health and assumed an active part in the management of his immense business interests. For two or three years, however, his health has been gradually failing and the infirmities of old age have been creeping upon him.

Mr. Morton was born in March, 1807, at Lexington, Ky., where his father was a prominent merchant. He was educated at Lancastrian school, at Lexington, and at the age of sixteen was pursuing his studies at Transylvania University. Then his father made a disastrous business failure, and young Morton was called home and thrown on his own resources. The time spent at college had given him a taste for literary pursuits, and he decided to go into a bookstore, as the most suitable and congenial work, and secured a position as clerk in a Lexington establishment. There he applied himself to the business, and when Mr. W. W. Worsely started a bookstore in Louisville, young Morton was engaged, and he was given the active management of the entire concern.

A few years later the firm commenced publishing books, and soon the business was carried on under the firm-name of Morton & Smith. firm then published a daily newspaper called the Focus, which was merged with the Louisville Journal into the Focus-Journal and the wit and scholar George D. Prentice was the editor. This paper might be called the founder and parent of the present Louisville Courier-Journal. The firm of Morton & Smith went into the book publishing business on a very extensive scale and at once jumped into popularity and prominence, especially in the South. The firm was the rival of the great New York and Cincinnati publishers of that day and made a specialty of school-books. Works from the Morton & Smith presses were used ex-tensively throughout the South fifty years ago. As the years passed the business grew and prospered, extensions were made, and the firm was known as one of the leading houses in the Union. Then Morton & Griswold succeeded Morton & Smith, and under that name the firm was known during the twenty years preceding 1858. From that time to the present the firm has been John P. Morton & Co., and up to the present the concern has been known as one of the leading and most progressive publishing houses in the country. Mr. Morton always had the active management of his business and directed all its details until within the past few years, when he gave way to his nephews and business partners. Messre Alar and Howard M. Griswold

With his great aptitude for business in a business career of more than sixty years of unbroken prosperity, Mr. Morton amassed a large fortune. He was interested in railroad and other enterprises and possessed orange groves and town property in Florida, in the development and progress of which State he always took the keenest interest. Mr. Morton was of a very charitable disposition, and never was a deserving call made upon him in vain, and his gifts to churches, charity, and charitable institutions were many. He was a man of a most modest and retiring disposition, and did not like praise for his deeds of charity. A few ears ago he cleared a large sum of money in Short Line bonds, and out of this investment he gave $100,000 for the founding of an Episcopal home for females and infirmary for the sick, and that immense structure now stands a perpetual monument to his memory on Morton Avenue in the eastern part of the city. The institution was. in honor of Mr. Morton, called the Morton Memorial Infirmary, but in accordance with his ideas and at his request the name was changed, and it is now simply the Church Home. All his life Mr. Morton has been a devout Episcopalian, and was one of the first and oldest members of Christ Some years ago he was one of the vestrymen for that congregation, but lately he had taken no active part in the management of the church's affairs, although his friendship and interest remained unabated.

In spite of large donations to churches and charities which would have seriously impaired almost any other man's means, Mr. Morton leaves an estate estimated at from $750,000 to $1,000,000. His wife was Miss Harriet Griswold. His brother is Henry C. Morton, and his sister is Mrs. M. M. Griswold. He was related to David Morton, and was connected with the Nortons, Heises, and some of the most prominent and wealthy families in Kentucky.

The funeral services were held at Christ Church on Saturday, July 20, and were conducted by the rector, the Rev. Charles E. Craik. The interment was in Cave Hill Cemetery, and was private. The remains were borne to their last resting-place by eight of the deceased gentleman's nephews, and the honorary pall-bearers were Mr. Morton's most intimate friends and closest business associates.

OSMYN BREWSTER.

OSMYN BREWSTER, formerly of the widelyknown publishing firm of Crocker & Brewster, of Boston, died at his home in that city on Monday, July 15. On July 19, 1887, Uriel Crocker died at his summer residence in Cohasset, Mass. In our issue for July 23, 1887, we gave the history of the long and successful partnership of the two men. The old firm of Crocker & Brewster is hardly remembered by the active publishers and printers of to-day, but in their day they were among the richest and most respected houses in the then flourishing publishing and bookselling business. Mr. Brewster was born in 1797 at Worthington, Mass., and would therefore have been ninety-two years old had he lived until August 2. Mr. Crocker had also celebrated his ninetieth birthday before he died. Mr. Brewster went to Boston in his fifteenth year, and was apprenticed to Samuel T. Armstrong, of 50 Cornhill (now 173 and 175 Washington Street). Here he met Uriel Crocker, who had begun his apprenticeship only two months before. In those days a boy had to serve seven years to learn the printer's trade, but when his time was up he was expected to know everything connected with the art-a very different experience from that of the modern printer's devil. In 1818, four years before Boston was old enough to rank among cities, Mr. Armstrong took his two young apprentices into partnership with him. A few years later Mr. Armstrong began to publish "Scott's Family Bible" in six large octavo volumes, the largest work that had then been stereotyped in America. He made so great a success of his courageous undertaking that in 1825 he retired with what in those days represented a fortune, leaving his business to his young associates under the name of Crocker & Brewster, an imprint which was chiefly seen on educational and religious books. Mr. Crocker became the travelling member of the firm and directed the printing office, and Mr. Brewster attended chiefly to the bookselling bus-iness. Each in this division followed his special talent and inclination, and steady growth and prosperity were the results. Crocker & Brewster was probably the only bookselling or publishing firm in Boston that lived through the crises of 1837 and 1857. For forty years the sign of Crocker & Brewster hung over the same door which the members of the firm had entered as apprentices, and which had the historical interest of having served in earlier days as the entrance to Paul Revere's shop; then, being unable to make satisfactory arrangements with the widow of Mr. Armstrong, they were obliged to move to the next house. Here they continued until 1876, when they retired from active business, selling all their valuable plates and stock to H. O. Houghton & Co. A branch store, established for several years in New York, had long before been sold to Daniel A. Appleton, and from this little plant grew the great publishing house of D. Appleton & Co. Both partners had learned in the old school of merchants that the only way in which money may be made in the ordinary book business is by hard work, careful publishing and buying, strict attention to business, close economy, and saving. In this way they survived panics, resisted temptations to sell at cost, and steered clear of many evils that have now crept not into the book trade alone, but into trade in general. The partners were lifelong friends as well as business associates. The fiftieth and seventy-fifth anniversaries of their connection in business were appropriately celebrated in 1868 and 1886 in Mr. Crocker's home, and on both occasions the leading citizens of Boston tendered their cordial congratulations. In financial and mercantile developments Mr. Brewster was an active factor, and in his Legislative labors he was an earnest, upright advocate of proper municipal and commonwealth actions. His public life, though unassuming, was yet conspicuous by fidelity to every duty and by practical efforts in behalf of useful measures. In 1848, 1849, 1850, 1852, and 1856 he was in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, in 1848 and 1853 he was in the State Senate, and in the latter year he was also a member of the convention for revising the constitution of the commonwealth. In 1856, 1857, and 1858 Mr. Brewster was an efficient member of the Board of Aldermen, and he also served in the directorship of public institu-tions. In 1861 Mr. Brewster, Mr. Crocker, ex-Mayor Lincoln, and others, all members of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association, conceived the idea of establishing a savings bank. An act of incorporation was obtained under the name of the Franklin Savings Bank of the City of Boston, and the bank opened its doors for business in July of that year. Meanwhile, Mr. Brewster had been elected its first President and continued in that capacity until 1887, when he declined a reëlection. The officers being unwilling that his connection with the institution should cease, chose him as its first Vice-President, which position he held at his decease. Appropriate resolutions were also adopted at the time expressive of high regard, and Mr. Brewster was requested to sit for an oil painting, which now adorns the banking-room on Boylston Street. For more than a quarter of a century he was Treasurer of the Massachusetts Charitable Association.

In 1867 Dartmouth College conferred upon Mr. Brewster the degree of A.M. Mr. Brewster was also active in church work and was connected with the Old South Church. About three months ago Mr. Brewster fell and broke two ribs, and it was feared this would be his final illness. But he recovered in a marvellously short time and was able to attend a meeting of the directors of the National Revere Bank on the 2d of this month. Mr. Brewster was a kindly, genial man, who enjoyed life and liked to see others do so also. The funeral services were held at his residence at 32 Hancock Street, Boston, on Thursday, July 24. Mr. Brewster leaves seven children, twenty-two grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

JAMES RIKER, author of "Annals of Newtown, L. I.," and the "History of Harlem, N. Y.," died at his residence in Waverly, N. Y., July 3. He was born in New York City, May 11, 1822. He was Vice-Principal in a Harlem public school from 1849 to 1855, and after that became connected with the American Home Missionary Society.

ALEXANDER JOHNSTON, Professor of Political Economy in Princeton College, died at his home at Princeton, N. J., on the 20th inst. He was born on April 29, 1849, and was graduated at Rutgers College in 1870. He was admitted to the bar at New Brunswick, N. J., 1876, and taught in the Rutgers College Grammar School until 1879, when he became the Principal of the Norwalk Latin School. He was appointed Professor of Jurisprudence and Political Economy in Princeton College in 1883, and held that post at the time of his death. He was a contributor to the Encyclopædia Britannica, and also published a "History of American Politics," "The Genesis of a New England State," "Representative American Orations," a "History of the United States for Schools," and a "History of Connecticut."

Mr. Franz Thimm, of Brook Street, New Bond Street, London, died July 6. A Prussian by birth, Mr. Thimm served his apprenticeship with Ascher & Co., of Berlin, but went to London at the age of nineteen, and after a few years established himself as a foreign bookseller and publisher. He wrote a sketch of "The Literature of Germany from its Earliest Period to the Present Time," and a useful volume of "Shaksperiana from 1564 to 1871," an account of the Shakspearian literature of England, France, Germany, and other European countries during three centuries, with bibliographical introductions. Mr. Thimm was also an amateur painter, and had more than once contributed to the exhibition of the Royal Academy. Mr. Thimm retired from business last year, and was succeeded by one of his sons.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

PARIS LITERARY CONCRESS

"THE principal business transacted at the Literary Congress at Paris, over which M. Jules Simon presided," says the London Athenaum of June 29, " has been the passing of the following resolutions, which it is to be hoped may be imported into the Convention of Berne, to which nearly every civilized nation, the United States of America excepted, adhered, and has legislated accordingly: I. As an author's title to his work includes the sole right to translate it, or to anthorize its translation, the author, his successors, and assigns enjoy the right of translation during the term of copyright, even though they may not have the sole right to reproduce the work in its original form. 2. There is no reason for an author notifying in any way that he reserves the right of translation. 3. There is no ground for limiting the period during which the author of a book or his representatives may translate it."

IOURNALISTIC NOTES.

COLONEL DONN PIATT has retired from the editorship of Belford's Magasine.

THE August Century—the midsummer holiday number—will contain, besides the first chapters of Joel Chandler Harris' new serial, two short stories, "The Haunted House in Royal Street," by George W. Cable, and "A Positive Romance," by Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward."

Scribner's Magasine will celebrate Tennyson's eightieth birthday by the publication in the August number of an excellent portrait of the poet. Professor T. R. Lounsbury, of Yale, one of the most brilliant and learned of American scholars, has prepared for the same number a paper on Tennyson.

THE August Atlantic will be specially notable for a five-page poem by Mr. Lowell. It is said to be not only the longest poem Mr. Lowell has written for years, but the strongest and most felicitous in thought and expression. Its title, "How I Consulted the Oracle of the Goldfishes," suggests something of the nature and charm of the poem.

THE Treasure Trove magazine, published by E. L. Keilogg & Co., of New York, has secured a number of prize stories from its boy and girl subscribers, which are now being issued. Two hundred dollars and seventy dollars' worth of books were distributed as prizes. The prize-winners are from all parts of the country, and their stories, the publishers claim, are of very pleasing variety; indicating a remarkable degree and versatility of talent.

Waterman's Journal is the title of an original and refreshing journalistic enterprise started by A. A. Watermann & Co., 36 Bromfield Street, Boston. It discusses current events, social problems, and books, in a thoroughly philosophic and critical spirit, evincing an independence of thought and unconventionality of expression that promise a lively future for the journal. The paper is handsomely printed on excellent paper, and we are glad to see that it promises to be a weekly after Oct. 3, next.

Santa Claus, the long-heralded weekly paper for young people, will make its first appearance in October in Philadelphia. A long list of eminent writers has already been secured, and the projectors will aim to make a high-class, original journal of a kind quite new in this country. Topics of the day will be discussed in a manner to interest the young; industrial pursuits will be made prominent, and there will be serials on travel and sports to instruct as well as to amuse the minds of the readers of the paper.

THE English socialist magazine, To-Day, has changed its title with the July number, and will henceforth be known as the International Review. It will be edited by Mr. H. M. Hyndman, and be issued at sixpence. The new number contains articles by Annie Besant, Dr. Paul Brousse, Adolphe Smith, and the editor. Amongst those who have promised to contribute to the International Review are Prince Krapotkine, Mr. Walter Crane, the Rev. Stewart Headlam, Mr. H. S. Salt, and Mr. E. Belfort Bax.

LOUISE IMOGEN GUINEY, a famous oarswoman, writes on "Rowing" in the August Wide Awake, and the same number has another vacation article about making "Wild-Flower Books" for holiday gift-giving. Olive Risley Seward, in the same issue, tells a real fairy tale of how she and Secretary Seward in one short day saw sights and visited with Laboulaye, and were with Thiers in the first hours of his Presidency; and Andrew Lang relates his experience "Fishing in Tweed and Yarrow" humorously and practically.

PERSONAL NOTES.

CAPTAIN DANIEL APPLETON, the head of the business department of D. Appleton & Co., was elected on the 19th to succeed Emmons Clark as Colonel of the Seventh Regiment N. G. S. N. Y. Having such a captain what could the Seventh do but place him at its head? We salute the Colonel and felicitate him upon the promotion.

At the Decennial Reunion of the Yale Class of '79, at New Haven, the class song, which was sung to the air of "Amici," was written by Mr. Frederick A. Stokes, of the publishing firm of Frederick A. Stokes & Brother. Mr. Horace A. Stokes, of the same firm, was graduated in the Yale Class of '89, and will enter into active business next autumn, after a summer in Europe.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. T. ADOLPHUS TROLLOPE has finished another series of "Reminiscences," which he will publish in the autumn.

ROBERT BROWNING is said to have "a new volume of poems in his desk." The London Academy, which has made this discovery, hopes "that the collection may appear as the seventeenth of the new and complete edition of Browning's Poetical Works."

Zola's newest novel, "La Bête Humaine," contains all the personal experience of life on the railway which the author was so busy in acquiring last winter when he rode on express engines, interviewed traffic managers, travelled with gnards, and hobnobbed with porters and signalmen.

A LIFE of the late Duke de Morny by the present Duke will be issued in Paris in the autumn. It will relate chiefly to the man's public career. Events connected with the coup d'clas and those following the Crimean war will be traced in the light of documentary evidence.

Some of de Morny's personal views of men and affairs will be given.

MRS. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT, who has just arrived in London, has undertaken, on behalf of the Associated Literary Press, to edit a "Youths' Department," which will appear simultaneously in several of the larger newspapers in England and America. Among the early contributors will be Mr. Bret Harte, Mr. Lang, Lord Wolseley, and Sir Robert Ball.

A CORRESPONDENT writes to The Critic to say that Miss Winnifred Jennings, youngest daughter of Capt. G. S. Jennings, U. S. A., retired, is the "George Truman Kercheval," whose book, "Lorin Mooruck, and other Indian stories," recently published by J. Stilman Smith, Boston, has been so warmly commended by Herbert Welsh, Edward Everett Hale, and Bishop H. B. Whipple.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

The Proposed Ruskin Bibliography.—The bibliography of Mr. Ruskin's works to which we referred in our last issue is to take the form of a handsome quarto volume, and will be published by subscription. The entire series of Mr. Ruskin's published writings will be systematically arranged and carefully collated, and it is also proposed to add a full list of Ruskiniana. The bibliography will be arranged in the following manner: Original editions; works edited or prefaced by Mr. Ruskin; his contributions to periodical literature, including poems, letters to the press, essays, etc.; and American reprints and pirated editions. Under the title of "Ruskiniana" a full list of volumes of biography and criticism, reviews, estimates, etc., and published portraits of Professor Ruskin will be added. The work ought to prove useful not only to the collector of rare editions, but also to the student of Ruskin's writings.

Catalogues of New and Second-hand Books.—David G. Francis, 17 Astor Place, N. Y., new and old books. (No. 92, 32 p., 8°.)—Damascène Morgand, Paris, No. 25 of his valuable catalogue of Antiquarian books. (112 p., 8°.)—Frederick Warne & Co., new catalogue for 1889-90. (32 p., 8°.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. will send on application to every bookseller and newsdealer in the United States a complete list of the books issued in their new twenty-five cent series with terms and net prices for the same.

THE Aldine Club-house, at 20 Lafayette Place, was opened informally on the 10th inst., on which day a luncheon was spread for the members and their guests. This club-house in a few years will no doubt rank as the finest in New York.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish in the fall a novel by Jane G. Austin, entitled "Standish of Standish." It is historical in character, and will remind readers of "A Nameless Nobleman." Colonial New England furnishes the setting.

P. F. VAN EVEREN'S address in his advertisement in our issue for July 13 was incorrectly given as 116 Nassau St. It ought to have been 60 Ann Street. Mr. Van Everen's name has been so long connected with Nassau Street that the mistake is readily accounted for.

THE Dunlap Society has just issued Lawrence Barrett's recent lecture on "Charlotte Cushman," with an appendix by Mr. J. N. Ireland. Mr. Henry Edwards is said to be preparing a bibliography and a list of portraits of Miss Cushman for the Society.

GEORGE O. SEILHAMER, 112 N. 12th St., Philadelphia. has nearly ready the second volume of his "History of the American Theatre," treating of the period during the Revolution and after. The last volume, which is in preparation, will treat the subject in the "Last Years of the Eighteenth Century."

MR. GEORGE R. HALM, who has made for himself quite a reputation as a designer of artistic book-covers and illustrations, has removed to his old quarters at 9 E. 17th Street, New York. He solicits orders for designing and drawing for book, magazine, cover, and all other work connected with the preparation or the publication of books, magazines, or catalogues, and offers the advantages of personal supervision.

"THE LIFE OF HARRIET BEECHER STOWE," by her son, Rev. Charles E. Stowe, is now passing through the Riverside Press and will be given to the public early in the autumn. It will be a book of peculiar personal and literary interest, and will appeal to a host of readers on both sides of the Atlantic. It is to be a handsome volume, embellished with fine portraits and other illustrations, and will be sold by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. by ubscriptions.

GEYER'S REFERENCE DIRECTORY, corrected to January I, 1889, which has recently been published, increases in value with each year. The publisher claims that every one of the 15,000 names has been verified by actual correspondence. The arrangement is geographical, and nearly five thousand places are represented. The ratings given are mostly the estimate of business acquaintances. Paper-mills especially are exhaustively treated, covering those of the United States, Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Mexico. These are classified according to goods made, and daily capacity of manufacture is given. This is the fourth issue of the Directory, and a marked improvement is noticeable from year to year.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. announce that they have arranged to publish a companion series to their Epochs of Modern History, consisting of a short series to be brought out under the general title of Epochs of American History. The series will be edited by Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, assistant professor of history in Harvard College. The volumes will be issued separately, and each will be complete in itself, and average about 250 pages, with full marginal analysis, working bibliographies, maps, introductions, and index. The volumes thus far arranged for are "The Colonies (1492-1763)," by Reuben Gold Thwaites; secretary of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin; "Formation of the Union (1763-1829)," by Albert Bushnell Hart; and "Division and Re-Union (1829-1889)," by Woodrow Wilson, professor of history and political economy in Wesleyan University, Middletown, Ct.

NEITHER Mr. Howells nor Mr. James, with their names rung up and down and back and forth, day in and day out, for years, in every city, town, hamlet, and neighborhood of our country, has ever been able to compare editions with Zola, Daudet, or many other alien novelists; and yet America is the book-reading nation of the world! In England a novelist of the standing of Mr. Howells can take the manuscript of his latest novel to his publisher and receive in exchange for it a check for from ten hundred to fifteen hundred pounds. Even Anthony Trollope received as much as fifteen thousand dollars for a novel. It is safe to say that there is not in America a publisher (not a magazine or journalowner) who would pay Mr. Howells the half of such a sum. In a word, we present the curious condition of a nation reading more books than any other nation in the world, and at the same time paying to its own writers of high merit the smallest incomes offered to such authors with the limits of civilization.—Maurice Thompson, in North American Review for July.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce among their first autumn publications: "The Industrial Progress of the Nation, consumption limited, production unlimited," by Edward Atkinson, author of "The Distribution of Products," etc.; "A Race with the Sun," a sixteen months' trip around the world, by Hon. Carter H. Harrison, of Chicago, illustrated by many full-page plates; "The Modern Chess Instructor," by W. Steinitz; "Christian Theism, its claims and sanctions," by D. B. Purinton, LL.D., Vice-President of West Virginia University and Professor of Metaphysics; "To the Lions," by Alfred Church; "A Woman's War Record, 1861-1865," by Mrs. Gen. Chas. H. T. Collis; "Lectures on Russian Literature," by Ivan Panin: "The Practical Pocket Dictionary in Four Languages—English, French, German, and Italian;" and "Tales from the Korea," collected and translated by Henry N. Allen, Secretary of the Korean Legation. In the Story of the Nations series they will publish "The Story of the Hansa Towns," by Helen Zimmern; and in the Knickerbocker Nuggets, "Sesame and Lilies," by John Ruskin. "The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin," "Tales by Heinrich Zschokke," and "Great Words from Great Americans," comprising the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, Washington's Inaugural Addresses, Lincoln's Inaugural Addresses, Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have in preparation "A Book About Florida," by Margaret Deland, author of "John Ward, Preacher," to be issued in a handsome octavo volume, illustrated with numerous beautiful colored plates, etchings, and vignettes in text, from designs by Louis K. Harlow, bound in decorated cloth; a fine library edition of "Ten Thousand a Year," by Samuel Warren, in three volumes, printed on extra paper from large type; a superb octavo edition of Walton and Cotton's "Complete Angler," with an interesting introduction by James Russell Lowell, who has discovered some new facts in connection with the subject, illustrated with 74 fine woodcuts, 17 plates, and some etchings; "Myth and Folk-Lore of Ireland," by Jeremiah Curtin, an original and fresh contribution to the already rich store of the folk-lore of the "Emer-ald Isle," extracted by the author from Gaelic sources; Dumas' "The Count of Monte Cristo," in four volumes, with eight photogravures by E. H. Garrett printed in Paris; the Valois Romanus by Dumas, comprising "Margaret of Valois," "Diana of Meridor, or, the lady of Monsoreau," and the "Forty-Five Guardsmen," in six volumes, with six valuable historical portraits; "The Swedish Revolution under Gustavus Vasa," an important historical work by Paul Baron Watson, author of "Marcus Aurelius Antoninus;" "The Thoughts of Marcus Aurelius" in a large-type twelvemo edition: and new octavo editions at reduced price of "Plutarch's Lives" and of "Plutarch's Essays."

GEORGE REDWAY, London, has in preparation an edition of Dr. John Anster's translation of "Faust," printed in folio, with illustrations by Mr. Frank M. Gregory.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL & Co., Hamilton, Adams & Co., and W. Kent & Co., three large English publishing houses, have amalgamated, forming a limited liability company.

Dr. NANSEN, the Arctic explorer, has made arrangements with Longmans, Green & Co. for the publication of an account of his recent Greenland expedition. The book will be ready early next spring, and will be illustrated with maps and

THE SHELLEY CONCORDANCE which Mr. F. S. Ellis has in preparation is so far advanced that the author hopes to be able to get it to press next year, and have it out in 1802 for the Shelley centenary, the poet having been born on Saturday, August 4, 1702.

EDINBURGH is excited over the news that A. & C. Black, who have been established in the city as publishers about a hundred years, are going to transfer their business to London. Edinburgh has of late years grown largely as a centre of the printing trade, but to lose one of her chief publishing firms is a great blow.

Mr. THOMAS READER, one of the partners in the firm of Longmans, Green & Co., has just retired. Mr. Reader entered the house in October. 1834, his father being at that time the manager of the second-hand department. After serving some years in the paper and print department, he became a partner in 1865, and has since directed that branch of the business. Mr. Reader's retirement, through failing eyesight, has awakened much regret in English book trade circles.

KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH & Co. will shortly publish the first number of a new serial devoted to the reproduction of selected works of the foremost photographers of the day. It is proposed to issue quarterly a portfolio of four photogravure pictures from the negatives of "Sun Artists" -such as will tend to advance photography in the estimation of the art-loving public and obtain for it the position which it now claims. The first number of "Sun Artists" will consist of four studies by Mr. J. Gale, on imperial quarto paper, with letterpress.

SAMPSON LOW & Co. have published a work entitled "Englishmen in the French Revolution," by Mr. J. G. Alger, which is based upon much personal research among unpublished documents both at the Record Office and in Paris. Besides incorporating two articles that originally appeared in the Edinburgh Review, dealing with the early days of the Revolution and the Terror, chapters are added about the prisoners of war, the opening of Paris by the peace of Amiens, and the subsequent imprisonment of visitors in France by Napoleon. Attention has been given not only to spectators, deputations, and victims, but also to those writers who sympathized with the downfall of the ancien régime.

HAVE you read the dramatic novel.

"A FALSE OOUPLE"?

"A very absorbingly dramatic story of New York society life, almost every chapter ending dramatically, just as in a play. The scene, at the home of Ellen Van Courtlandt, where, after a series of exciting pleadings, the villain succeeds in breaking down her opposition to eloping, possesses an intensity of interest that holds the reader's attention to the end. The under story, 'Life in the Lower Circle,' is very amusing, and will be found as interesting as the serious parts. The scene opens at N. Y. Club, thence to Long Branch and Iron Pier, where intensely exciting episodes take place, thence to Monte Carlo, back again to New York."

"It's one of those novels to repay reading; not a dull line; and to those going to the country, it is just the novel to take along to make dull moments interesting."

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. will soon publish Mr. George W. Child's "Recollections," parts of which have appeared in Lippincott's Magazine.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. have just issued a "dollar" Shakespeare, printed from readable type on paper of good quality and neatly bound in cloth. William Foster. whose "Follies, Foibles, and Fancies of Fish, Flesh, and Fowl" they have also just issued, has illustrated two of Edward Lear's songs, "The Owl and the Pussy Cat" and "The Duck and the Kangaroo," which they will publish early in the fall.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY have just ready "Around the World Stories," by Olive Risley Seward, an account of curious things met with in her travels; "Dear Old Story-Tellers," by Oscar Fay Adams, brief biographies of popular story-writers from Æsop to Laboulaye; and "Our Asiatic Cousins," by Mrs. A. H. Leonowens, a description of life in the remotest parts of the East full of interest and information, D. C. HEATH & Co. have just published "Modern Facts and Ancient Fancies in Geography, a handbook for teachers, by Jacques W. Redway, a practical teacher and also very favorably known as a professional geographer and as a world-wide traveller. This book will treat the subject in the light of modern science, and suggest some refreshingly sensible methods of teaching this muchabused subject. They have also just ready "Topics in Geography," by W. F. Nichols. This is not a text-book, but a specific course, a systematic enumeration of the items or classes of items to be taught in each of the grades, with something of the methods of presentation, all built upon the general plan of language-work done in our schools. The "topics" have been prepared for seven grades, beginning with the lowest. The facts and features are carefully selected, non-essentials rejected, and all used as material for, language-study and practice.

GINN & Co. will publish at once "Myers' General History," by P. V. N. Myers. This book is based upon the author's "Ancient History and "Mediæval and Ancient History," and is characterized by the same qualities as mark the earlier works. It is believed that the difficult task which the author set for himself, of compressing the fourteen hundred or more pages comprising the two text-books mentioned into a single volume of about seven hundred pages, has been accomplished without impairment either of the interest or of the easy flow of the narration. The greatest care has been taken to verify every statement, and to give the latest results of discovery and criticism. The book is provided with between twenty and thirty colored maps, besides nearly two hundred sketch-maps, woodcuts. and photogravures. They will also publish at once an American edition of "Gradatim," a first Latin reader, by Heatley and Kingdon, revised for American schools by W. C. Collar.

THE WORTHINGTON Co. have in preparation a translation by Mrs. J. W. Davis of "Lora, the Major's Daughter," a new novel by W. Heimburg, which has not yet appeared in Germany in bookform. This talented author grows steadily in public favor, and the publishers are gratified by their large advance orders. They have also secured for America an edition of the supplementary new volumes of the Villon Society's renowned version of "The Book of the Thousand Nights and One Night." The Arabic text of two favorite stories in the collection, "Alaeddin; or, the wonderful lamp," and "Zeyn Al Asnam and the King of the Genii," has at last been discovered in a Mss. recently purchased by the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris. Much disappointment was caused by the omission of these stories from the original nine volumes, and in compliance with many requests Mr. Payne has translated the tales, and they will appear in a three-volume supplement, for which the publishers desire early orders.

THE ONLY ALTERNATIVE.—"You must read Browning, doctor, he's perfectly lovely, Haven't you read 'The Ring and the Book'?"

Not much of it, but I'm very fond of an old cook-book."

"A cook-book? Why, how absurd!"

"Not at all. When the ladies insist on Browning, cook-books are our only recourse. They're the only books the ladies don't read.—Fliegende Blätter, Alden, Mrs. Is. M., ["Pansy," pseud.] Chrissy's endeavor. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1889.] c. 6+374 p. il. D. cl., $1.50. Chrissy is introduced at eighteen. She'has spent several summers at a seaside place with her fashionable mother, but begs to be allowed to spend a summer inland with a friend. She finds a badge upon her pin-cushion with the letters Y. P. S. C. E. painted upon it. Chrissy tries most ingeniously to explain these initials, but hesitates to ask her friend. The young people with whom she associates are full of care for others and of busy plans for self-improvement. Chrissy soon is interested and becomes a helpful member of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor.

The hero is a master in theosophy and a private soldier on the Union side in the civil war. By will-power he has brought his spiritual faculties to their highest potency. His philosophy renders him totally unimpressionable, but a woman dies for him and with him and they are buried together in a cave. After seven years a brother adept from Bombay recalls him to life, but finding he has given up the doctrines of theosophy he stabs him with a golden needle. The plot is complex and shows skilful workmanship. A useful lesson is taught in a bright, attractive way. By the authors of "Napoleon Smith."

The author is known as the founder of the Societies of Christian Endeavor. His whole life is a campaign against dulness calling itself conservatism, and against ety vices veiling themselves under titles and forms of piety. The letters are brief and bright, full of sympathy and life. Each one corrects some little fault. They are addressed to the sexton, the organist, the church architect, the young people of the church, the pert "sales-lady," the habitually absent teacher. etc., etc. Most of these letters first appeared in The Golden Rule.

The true test of a practical mastery of Latin is the power to write Latin. The author is head-master at the Roxbury Latin School. He bases his plan on the teachings laid down by Roger Ascham in his "Scholemaster." Continuity is the controlling principle of the exercises. These are based on the Latin text in the last part of the volume. Whether they are done orally or in writing, the necessary preparation consists in a thorough study of the Latin as to meaning, idioms, and forms. This is then reproduced in the pupil's own construction. Full vocabulary.

Inventors and manufacturers alone cannot develop the economic value of electricity. The realization of its advantages by the people now depends more largely upon the economic conditions fixed for its production and distribution by state and municipal legislation. The electric service of a city should be placed on the basis of a public improvement, entitled to special privileges in order to secure its use to citizens under the best economic conditions. These are the author's points. He avoids technical language and has sound ideas about business and politics. His chapters on monopolies are carefully thought out.

The Bishop had promised $500 towards building a church in Thurstonville, provided the town could raise $500 first. The "working ten" of the King's Daughters go to work to teach, do housework, keep a cooking-school, get up a fair, etc., until the money is raised. The wife of a physician in the town tells the little helpful story. Her daughter Alice and her old negro servant Sally are among the most indefatigable workers.

The present translator has adhered to the Latin version of the "Imitation" which was published at Berlin in 1874 by C. Hirsche, of Hamburg, who had made a lifelong study of the different editions of the "Musica Ecclesiastica" of Thomas Haemmerlein. Dr. Hirsche called special attention to the fact known in Kempis' lifetime that his work was written in rhythm, with the intention that chapters should be learned by heart and chanted or recited. The translator has been successful in catching the melody of the Latin. When he has discarded a time-honored expression, he explains it in a footnote. No passage has been omitted or toned down to suit the tenets of any sect in the Christian church. The publishers have made a handsome book. The large-paper edition of 750 numbered copies is bound in purple and white with cover design of a gilt oriel church window.

the stars. Chic., Religio-Philosophical Pub. House, 1889. c. 12+292 p. il. O. cl., $3. Dedicated "To the budding sprituality of the Occident and the rising genius of the western race." The anonymous writer has devoted twenty years to investigating the realms of occult force. The reason for publishing the work is that efforts are "being systematically put forth to poison the budding spirituality of the western mind and to fasten upon its mentality the subtle, delusive dogmas of Karma and reincarnation." The definite statements made, the author insists, are absolute facts and he defies contradiction by any living authority "who possesses the spiritual right to say, 'I know."

pap., 40 c.
Uncle Piper left England and a favorite sister to seek his fortune in Australia. After making millions as a butcher he decides to send for his sister, her aristocratic, butcher he decides to send for his sister, her aristocratic, impecunious husband and two daughters. On the Australian vessel they meet Francis Lydiat, a step-son of Uncle Piper. Piper's Hill already holds Laura Lydiat, the step-daughter, and Louie Piper; a lovely child character. Complications and romances are well planned, and told with literary skill. Uncle Piper is a creation. He is illiterate, coarse, boastful, obstinate, arrogant, cruel: and also intelligent, generous, tender, loyal, and delicate. Every member of the family is a reality. Out of their attractions and repulsions grows this fresh story of colonial life. lonial life.

Che Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 3, 1889.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE WORLD'S FAIR OF 1802.

THE steps taken toward adequate provision for a World's Fair in New York City in 1802, which shall celebrate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America, already indicate that the enterprise will be made a success. who take a far-sighted and wide-minded view of public affairs ought to be ready and desirous to give all the help that they can toward the fitting consummation of this purpose. Of course people and commercial concerns anxious to advertise themselves by obtaining medals and premiums of whatever sort, are only too willing to take part in affairs of this kind, but in the book trade especially, the more conservative people are very apt to ask cui bono? caring little, so far as they themselves are concerned, for such fictitious honors. But it is worth while to consider the larger aspects of such enterprises and their relation to national development.

It is undoubtedly true that the Exposition of 1876 at Philadelphia did very much in manifold ways to give a new impetus to our national development. The lessons there taught by a comparison of our own products with those of other nations have since been felt usefully in many departments of manufacture, and have given rise, it may almost be said, to many art industries of much importance. The publishing of books may fairly be considered an art industry, and while we have held our own in many respects in comparison with other nations and in other respects surpassed them, in our book-making it is nevertheless true that we require more or less stimulus to keep us up to the mark. In our illustrated work, for instance, we have scarcely kept up in the last few years to the average standard which we had reached some years ago, and a comparison of all our work, taken together, with that of England would probably show that we have relatively fallen somewhat in that time.

Unfortunately, the American book trade has not been fully represented at foreign world's fairs - in the current French Exposition some of our foremost houses are conspicuously absent from the general book exhibit—and we are therefore not in the position we ought to be in to secure adequate representation from other nations. But the American market is tempting not only to English publishers, but more or less to the French and German houses, and there is reason to hope. therefore, that we could obtain an adequate exhibit from most of the book-producing nations. We ought, however, to set an example by taking immediate steps to get the best sort of exhibit of our own, and in the course of the organization necessary for the purpose, we should issue a cordial invitation to the publishers of other countries. Mayor Grant has already invited the publishers to name a representative who shall serve on the general committee. Unfortunately the publishing trade, with the exception of the school-book trade, has now no general organization which can act officially, except so far as the Stationers' Board of Trade incidentally includes representation of the publishing interest. As there is to be but one representative from each trade on this main series of committees, there ought to be careful choice in the selection, and a man ought to be designated by the concurrence of the whole New York trade, who would be not only a distinguished member of the committee, but an active representative in promoting a really good exhibit from this particular trade. He should, of course, be supported by an active committee of the trade in New York City, which should associate with itself representatives of the publishing trade in other cities, so as to make the book exhibit thoroughly national, and such a committee should in turn cordially invite similar action on the part at least of the English, French, and German trade. We look for an early meeting of members of the trade, as soon as the vacation season ends, with a view to providing properly for such a committee.

CORRECTION.—An error crept into our Educational list which we beg our readers to note. On page 50 of the issue of The Publishers' Werely for July 20, and on page 4 of the American Educational Catalogue the names of the publishers of Beers' books were transposed. It should read that Hunt & Eaton, Hu, are the publishers of Beers' 'American Literature" and "English Literature," and that Henry Holt & Co., Ho, are the publishers of Beers' "Century of American Literature."

THE GREAT MAP OF THE UNITED STATES.

From the New York Sun.

WHEN the map of the United States, now in preparation by the Geological Survey, is completed it will be a most creditable specimen of the topographic art. Congress last winter, for the first time, distinctly recognized the survey which for some years has been in progress as the basis of this map, by making a separate appro-priation of $200,000 to carry it on. These sur-veys, according to the Washington/correspondence of the American Geographical Society, have now been completed in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Jersey, and they are partly made in Pennsylvania, New York, Connecticut, Maine, and New Hampshire. / The maps now in progress or completed are on a scale of one mile to the inch, and are engraved on copper. The expense of the completed surveys has been shared by the several States and the United States.

It was recently announced that the topographic survey of Illinois and the surrounding States was about to begin. The maps of the central and southern portions of the country and also the Pacific slope will be on a scale of two miles to the inch, while in the thinly settled regions of the Rocky Mountains, the Great Basin, and the high Sierras the scale is four miles to the inch.

when this great atlas can be gathered into wolumes it will comprise 2600 sheets, and for the first time civil engineers, students, and the general public will be able to derive from these fine specimens of the map-makers' art fairly correct and minute information concerning the hydrography of the country, the relief of its surface, and the exact position of its towns. It is well known that, until recently, some of the chief cities in the interior of our own State were not accurately laid down on the maps, for the simple reason that their exact geographical position had not been determined.

Of course, large parts of this atlas will not be able to compete in completeness and minuteness of detail with such productions as the ordnance map of Great Britain. It would be sheer waste of millions of money to carry out in our vast mountain regions so minute and exact a survey as has been made of the snug little island across the sea. But even the maps on the smallest scale will give sufficient detail for most purposes, and we shall at last possess a good map of our country, which, on the whole, has been misrepresented to a distressing extent by the topographic art.

THE AUTHOR AND THE ORIGINAL OF "JOHN CHARAXES."

The death of Samuel L. M. Barlow, the noted jurist and member of the law firm of Shipman, Barlow, Larocque & Choate, has brought to light the fact that George Ticknor Curtis, is the author of the novel, "John Charáxes," published a couple of months ago by the J. B. Lippincott Co., under the pseudonym of "Peter Boylston." Also that the late Mr. Barlow was in part the original from whom the author drew the character of "John Charáxes." Mr. Curtis, writing to the New York Sun, says: "In that part of 'Charáxes' life and character in which I endeavored to paint a man to whom there gravitated from all parts of the world, by some mysterious law of attraction, a great variety of curios. works of art, and knick-knacks, I had our friend before me. . . I made the fictitious person, 'John Charáxes,' a much greater scholar before me. than Barlow ever was, but Barlow's scholarship was of no mean order. He not only owned a great collection of books in different languages. but he read them, which is not always the case with book-collectors. He read Latin, French. and Spanish with ease; he understood a little of Italian, but he did not read Greek, nor, I think, German. He read with the rapidity with which he did almost everything, but not superficially; and I have often been astonished at the range and accuracy of his recollection of the contexts of books. I have known many men of extensive reading, and many great scholars; but I certainly never knew a man who was immersed in business, and whose life was spent in practical affairs. whose knowledge of books was to be compared to his."

A LITERARY FRAUD.

From the St. James' Gazette, June 1.

PROFESSOR MAX MÜLLER is asking for subscriptions on behalf of a rather dubious enterprise. Some little time ago an astute Hindoo bookseller conceived the bold idea of translating the great Sanskrit epic first into his own language and then into English. The Bengalee version is already in print, and the English "Mahabharata" will soon be half finished. Pratap Chandra Roy has been enabled to carry out the scheme by subscriptions from every part of the world. He spends most of his time and energy in getting testimonials from eminent men like Professor Max Müller, and in advertising the progress of his work, which is really done by a few hired pundits of no great ability. He himself knows neither Sanskrit nor English. The result is a bald, miserably inadequate travesty of the "Mahabharata," which, for any critical purpose, is worthless, and as a popular version is unreadable. However, Professor Max Müller is not the only eminent man whose sympathies have been enlisted in the enterprise. Pratap Chandra Roy holds certificates of approval from viceroys and lieutenant-governors who know as much Sanskrit as he does himself, and has been made a C. S. I.

$8.50 FOR WRITING A SUCCESSFUL NOVEL.

From the Boston Journal.

The average novel does not pay the author for his trouble, and often does not cover the typewriter's bill. I know of two recent novels upon which each of the authors spent the best part of a year in writing and revising. Both novels are, according to the popular acceptance of the term, successful—that is, they have been widely written about, paragraphed in the press from one end of the country to another. English editions have been printed of each, and to every literary person the names of both novels and authors are thoroughly familiar. Now, what have the authors received in hard cash for their year's work? I will tell you exactly: Of one 1700 copies were sold. No royalty was paid upon the first thousand to cover manufacture, etc., and upon the remaining 700 copies the author received the regular ten per cent. The book sold for one dollar. The net revenue to the author was, therefore, $70. His typewriter's bill was $61.50. Net profit, $8.50, and the book has stopped selling. The other author was a trifle more fortunate in that his novel reached a sale of 2000, all but five copies. Unfortunately, he bought so many copies of his own book for friends, that when the publisher's statement came it showed a credit to his favor of just $39.50. Had he typewritten his manuscript the novel would have thrown him into debt.

THE IN , HAM, CLARKE & CO. FAILURE.

WITH surprise and deep regret we receive the news of the assignment of the old and favorably known firm of Ingham, Clarke & Co., of Cleveland, O., and of Ingham & Co., Meadville, Pa. For nearly half a century Mr. W. A. Ingham, the senior partner of this firm, has been connected with the book business as the head of the firm of W. A. Ingham, Ingham & Bragg, and Ingham, Clarke & Co. During all these years his firm has had a reputation for conservative business methods, and consequently their obligations for goods were usually very small, and their paper, when issued, was always redeemed in full.

Their failure is therefore the more to be deplored that it is owing to unfortunate outside transactions of a trusted partner of twenty years in another concern, who, it is alleged, "improperly used its name for a large amount without the slightest knowledge of either of its members." The use of their name, we are advised, was "so conducted that no member of the firm could have the slightest intimation of it until it suddenly came upon them, compelling them to the only course left."

The assignment was made to the Hon. R. C. Parsons, of Cincinnati, on June 25, but has only recently become generally known. Mr. W. A. Ingham, now 66 years old, and his son, Mr. H. M. Ingham, comprising the firm of Ingham, Clarke & Co., we understand, have assigned all their property for the benefit of their creditors. It is to be hoped that a compromise will be effected, as the disappearance of this house would be a serious loss to the book trade.

GETTING AROUND A LICKING.—"Are you a book agent?" asked a boy of a pedestrian who was passing up Second Avenue the other day with a package under his arm.

"No, my son, why?"

"I wanted you to do me a favor."

"Perhaps I will anyhow. What is it?" "Well, you see, I hit my brother Dick in the nose, and he told ma, and she's going to whale me for it. She sent me to the grocery, and now as soon as I go in I'll catch it."
"Well?"

"Well, she'll make a grab for me and I'll holler loud enough for you to hear. Then you rush up and ring the bell, and ask her if she don't want to buy 'Mother, Home, and Heaven.' Keep her at the door three or four minutes and I'll buy Dick off, and she'll forget all about it." The pedestrian excused himself on the ground that he was in a hurry, and the boy replied:

"All right. Mebbe our minister will happen along, and I'll get him to call. I'm going to dodge that licking if I have to set the barn afire. -Detroit Free Press.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

LADY COLIN CAMPBELL is writing a novel. which is to appear shortly, entitled "Darell

A SISTER of the late Maria Mitchell will prepare for the press the "Life and Letters" of the distinguished teacher. Her correspondence is said to be very rich in letters from Herschel. Humboldt, and others.

HENRY F. KEENAN, author of "Trajan." "The Aliens," and other novels of a recent period, and who is as well known in newspaper circles as in the literary world, has lately purchased a farm near Mamaroneck, Westchester County, N. Y., where he expects to spend the remainder of his days.

MRS. MARY MONTGOMERY SINGLETON (" Violet Fane,"), whose new novel, "Helen Davenant," published in America by D. Appleton & Co., has brought her into larger prominence, according to the Boston Traveller, "is the London poet who is caricatured in Mallock's 'New Republic' as 'Mrs. Sinclair,' and otherwise described 'as a sort of fashionable London Sappho.' Her verses are rather those of a poseur than a poet, there being in them neither intellectual grasp nor spiritual power, but merely a decorative trick of rhyme and tune, with sentimentality rather than sentiment."

THE author of "Micah Clarke," the historical novel recently published by Longmans, Green & Co., is an English physician who is only thirty years old, and who has been a writer of magazine stories for ten years past. Dr. A. C. Doyle is a tall, athletic young man, who not only attends to a good practice and writes novels, but is a famous cricketer. He has, moreover, seen service on the West African coast and has roughed it in a whaler. He is a nephew of Richard Doyle, the "Punch' artist and illustrator of "The Newcomes."

MR. C. H. LEE, of Leesburg, Va., great grandson of the eminent statesman, Richard Henry Lee, is, according to a correspondent of the N. Y. Evening Post, engaged in writing the memoirs of his illustrious ancestor. Mr. R. H. Lee was the friend of Patrick Henry and in warm concurrence with him in disdain of the acts which led to the War of the Revolution. The Tory party had pronounced him a "political demagogue"—but those on the other side, approving his resistance to oppression, hailed him as the "young reformer." The "Life and Correspondence" of R. H. Lee was published in 1820 by his grandnephew, but the forthcoming work by a direct descendant will probably be fuller and more complete.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish in September a revised edition of Bryce's "American Commonwealth." It is said that 10,000 copies of this work have been sold in the United States.

THE London Athenaum says that serious fears are entertained for the safety of Mr. Malcolm Macmillan, son of Mr. Alexander Macmillan, the well-known publisher. Mr. Macmillan, who has been travelling in the East, undertook the ascent of Mount Olympus, and has been lost on the mountain.

THE Galesburg (Ill.) Publishing Co. report that they have been receiving orders from California to Maine for their novel, "The Lost Dispatch." recently issued. The book has taken remarkably well and has received flattering commendation from officers in the army and recoged literary critics.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have in hand a second "History of the United States," the Ms. of which was left with them ready for the press by the late Prof. Johnston, of Princeton. It was written on a somewhat similar plan to his already well-known text-book, but suited to a shorter course, and perhans to less mature minds.

Mr. Lodge's volumes on Washington, recently published in the series of American Statesmen have been warmly praised by many critics, but perhaps the most valued approval is that from the Nestor of American historians, Hon. George Bancroft, who writes to the publishers as follows: "I like your new work on the unique man of the last century exceedingly. It is written independently as well as with a full sense of the unique greatness of Washington. You did your part nobly, and gained honor and a claim to gratitude by publishing so valuable a volume."

THE New Haven Colony Historical Society will publish at once a compilation of the inscriptions in the old Milford graveyard prior to 1800. The transcription will be literal, the type being varied to represent as nearly as possible the appearance of each stone. The work will fill seventy pages, and will be illustrated by fac-similes of seventeen of the most interesting stones. Genealogical notes by Mr. Nathan G. Pond, the transcriber, will be included. Two hundred and fifty copies only will be sold, the remainder being reserved for binding in vol. 5 of the Society's "Papers," which will not be published for several

THE AMERICAN PAPER MANUFACTURERS' AS-SOCIATION had their first annual banquet in the Grand Union Hotel, Saratoga, N. Y., July 30. Covers were laid for 250 guests. President Rogers opened speech-making by giving a brief sketch of the growth and progress of the Association, which has met annually in Saratoga for many Among the speakers were the Hon. Warner Miller, Congressmen William Whiting, of Holyoke, Mass., Alex. H. Rice, of Boston, Wellington Smith, of Lee, Mass., Wm. A. Russell, of Laurence, Mass., Wm. A. Parsons, of New York City, Timothy Merrick, President of Home Market Club, and Col. E. F. Shepard. Among those present were representatives of all the prominent paper-mills in the country.

For 1889 (Seventeenth Year).

Large 8vo, about 3000 pages. With Duplex Index. Cloth, $2.00.

The Trade List Annual for 1889 will contain:

- The latest CATALOGUES OF AMERICAN PUBLISHERS, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names and smaller lists at the end of the volume.
- 2. A complete list by author, title, and subject of all books recorded in the Publise-ERS' WEEKLY from January to June, 1889, supplementing the ANNUAL CATA-LOGUE, 1888.
- 3. The "EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE" for 1889, which is used by the entire trade and educational interests as the most representative reference-list of School-books.

The above Lists, all bound in one volume, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase or sale of books.

The patent "DUPLEX INDEX" having given such general satisfaction, we are now applying it to all copies of the "Annual." Volumes supplied with the "DUPLEX INDEX" have the alphabet printed on the concave surface as well as on the margin of the page, which enables instantaneous reference, whether the book is open or shut.

Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be despatched by express unpaid. Parties so desiring can have their copies sent by mail, or by prepaid book-rate express for 80 cents per copy extra.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE REPRINT Co., Caledonia, N. Y., have just issued in sumptuous style a narrative and romantic poem by J. H. McNaughton, entitled "Omalinda."

A. LOVELL & Co., 3 E. 14th St., N. Y., will publish early in September a volume on the "Honors of the Empire State in the War of the Rebeilion," by Thomas S. Townsend, the compiler of the well-known "Library of National Records."

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish at once a new revised and enlarged edition of King's "Classical and Foreign Quotations." The first edition was exhausted three months after its appearance, and the author has been engaged on the revision since that time.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD have just issued the sixth volume of the Henry Irving Shakespeare, which was delayed by the illness of the editor, Mr. Frank A. Marshall. This volume contains the plays of "Othello," "Antony and Cleopatra," "Coriolanus," and "King Lear." A prefatory note explains that it was intended to print "Hamlet" here instead of one of the four plays given, but that the revision of the proofs had not been finished when Mr. Marshall's health broke down. Two new artists are represented here, the illustrations to "Antony and Cleopatra" being by Mr. Maynard Brown, and those to "Coriolanus" by Mr. W. H. Margetson. The introductions have been written by Mr. Joseph Knight and Messrs. Wilson Verity and Arthur Symons.

The Worthington Co., in addition to the announcements already made, are preparing the following books for the fall. First in importance is a new edition of "Taine's English Literature," with an introductory essay by Richard H. Stoddard, which enables them to copyright the book. "The Memoirs of the Count de Grammont" will be brought out as a holiday publication with photogravures and portraits. There will also be ditions de luxe of Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome" and Main's "Treasury of English Sonnets." Their Banner Library will receive additions of European and American classics and bright modern novels. For the young "Worthington's Annual," new editions of Mary A. Lathbury's pretty books, and new volumes in The Fairy Land series will be ready in good time.

THE INDIANA SCHOOL-BOOK COMPLICATIONS.

REPORTS from Indianapolis indicate that trouble over the new school-book system has just begun. It is generally believed that the law providing for the adoption of text-books under a State contract, whereby the prices to the parents of pupils will be reduced about 60 per cent., is sure to prove a failure. It is asserted that the text books which have been adopted are greatly inferior to those in use, and in several counties the school officers will, it is threatened, refuse to receive the new books.

In anticipation of the trouble the State Superintendent several days ago asked for advice from the Attorney-General as to his interpretation of the law, and a long opinion was submitted, July 30, in which it was held that the statute is mandatory and nothing is left to the judgment or discretion of the school officers. The Governor on the 30th ult. also issued a proclamation in accordance with the requirements of the act, declaring that its provisions must be fully complied with by all concerned. Within thirty days all county superintendents must file new bonds double the amount of those required heretofore. Those who fail to do so may be deposed from office.

The scene is a novel one, the characters are unconventional, the incidents bizarre. Two Englishmen pitch their tent in an Algerian village, one with a view to pursue his studies as a naturalist, the other to improve himself as an artist. While plying their separate vocations, a Kabyles maiden makes a sudden advent into their lives, and changes the current of the story. Le Marchant becomes interested enough to learn the girl's history and start an investigation. This brings about two very pretty romances.

Deals mainly with Texas, although it includes chapters on the northern states of the Mexican confederation, viz., Chihuahua, Durango, Sonora, and Sinaloa, together with the Mexican Federal territory of Lower California. The four interesting stages in the evolution of the Texan commonwealth during the present century—(1) the period of discontent and rebellion, ending in secession from Mexico; (2) the epoch of political independence; (3) the annexation to the United States, the war with Mexico, the relatively slow development of the country under the slavery regime; and (4) the amazing growth of the state in wealth and population resulting from the abolition of slavery and the inflow of white emigrants—are fully delineated. The book is especially full of biographical data.

The conflict between the physical discoveries and the forms of faith which have ruled Christendom is the most noticeable intellectual movement of the times. The writer makes clear that science must not be confounded with metaphysics and speculations, nor religion with ecclesistical organizations and theological systems. He aims to prove that true science and true religion can be helpful fellow-laborers for the perfecting of the human race.

The old religion is the religion taught by the ideal example of the Nazarene. Christianity as practised by the churches is arraigned. The present church compromises with sin to gain its support, and appeals to sensationalism to fill its pulpits. It should give scholarly and rational interpretation to the bibles of the world and impress upon men that human life is broader than any creed, and religion the will of God. Right living should be the test of true religion, not a belief in any tenet or doorma. dogma.

A story full of strong dramatic situations dealing with California life some years ago. The characters have appeared before in a play by Brander Matthews and the author. The one villain of the romance is the schoolmaster, a fatalist and dreamer, led astray by misplaced love. The hero, who twice escapes "Judge Lynch," is the strong, healthy, truth-telling man who always "brings down the house."

The author is of Scottish parentage. He was born in Caledonia, N. Y., in 1829. He is chiefly known as a song-writer furnishing both text and music. The present poem is based upon the invasion of the Ragish settlements of New York, two hundred years ago, by the Marquis of Denonville, Governor of New France. The invaded territory belonged to the great Iroquois tribe. Onnalinda is supposed to be an Iroquois maiden. The poem is full of romance and the verse is musical and most suitable for declamation. It is now first published in America. A limited subscription edition was sold in 182 by the Onnalinda Pub. Co. The book is gotten out in holiday style in white cover with gilt lettering. It is well printed from De Vinne plates and ought to be a successful effort for the young firm. effort for the young firm.

The author's first book, "Numbers symbolized," was an elementary algebra. This volume is intended as an advanced elementary algebra, and will be made Part First of a higher algebra soon to be completed. The object in binding it separately is to meet the wants of such schools as have arranged a higher course in algebra than is outlined and treated in the author's first book and yet have not time enough to devote to this branch of mathematics to complete a full course in higher algebra. It is especially adapted to schools preparing students for college.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ELMIRA, N. Y.—The copartnership heretofore existing between Arthur S. Fitch and Hosmer H. Billings was dissolved August I, by mutual consent, Mr. Fitch retiring. The business will be continued by Hosmer H. Billings, to whom all accounts should be paid and who assumes all liabilities of said firm. Mr. Fitch has been twenty-four years in the book business in Elmira, entering Hall Brothers, store after his return from the war. Eighteen years ago he embarked for himself and has worked assiduously since.

NEW YORK CITY.—Duprat & Co., booksellers, have been succeeded by Felicie Duprat, who will continue the business under the same style.

PHILADELPHIA.—H. L. Kilner & Co. have opened at 103 S. 11th St., near Chestnut, a wholesale and retail Catholic bookstore, and will keep on hand a complete line of all standard publications, and all new books as soon as issued. Mr. H. L. Kilner has been for the past nine years connected with John Murphy & Co., of Baltimore.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—W. S. Duncombe & Co., publishers of medical books, have dissolved partnership.

WINCHESTER, TENN.—W. W. Petty & Co., booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by Simmon & Rowell.

PERSONAL NOTES.

F. H. JOHNSON, for the past six years with G. P. Putnam's Sons, will travel hereafter for Fleming H. Revell, of Chicago and New York. Mr. Johnson's headquarters when in town will be No. 12 Bible House.

OBITUARY.

THE REV. DR. GEORGE ZABRISKIE GRAY, Dean of the Protestant Episcopal Seminary at Cambridge, Mass., died at Sharon Springs, N. Y., where he was spending the summer, on August 4. He was born in New York Citv, July 14, 1838. In 1876 Dr. Gray was appointed Dean of the Cambridge Seminary. He was a constant student of Broad Church tendencies. He published a few books, among which were "Recognition in the World to Come," "Husband and Wife, or, the theory of marriage," and the "Children's Crusade in the Thirteenth Century."

THE death is announced of Fanny Lewold (Frau M. A. Stahr), the celebrated German novelist. She was born at Koenigsberg, March 24, 1811, received a very liberal education, and, being allowed to choose her religion, at seventeen years of age became a Christian. After travel in Germany and France, which stimulated her imaginative powers, she began, with a view to entertaining her sick sister, to write novels, which were published anonymously in 1834 and 1835. principal ones of these early works were "Clementine," "Jenny," "A Question of Life," and "The Poor Girl." In 1845, while travelling in Italy and studying the country, her father died, and she returned to Germany. In 1855 she married M. A. Stahr, but continued to put her family name to her works. Among her other works were "Pictures of Italy," published in 1847;
"Prince Louis Ferdinand," in 1849; "Impressions of a Voyage in England and Scotland," in 1852; "History of My Life," in 1861; "Benvenuto," in 1875, and "Novels," in 1877. Twelve volumes of her selected works were published in Berlin from 1871 to 1875.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

" Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto,"-LORD BACON.

CARRYING THE BOOK WAR INTO THE DRY-GOODS STORES.

THE late Gen. Cornelius Scipio, familiarly referred to as Africanus the Elder, surfeited with his victories and the spaghetti of Italy, and worried no doubt by the heat, the want of something else to do, and the impertinence of his neighbors, one fine day about two thousand years ago conceived the brilliant design of boldly entering the domain of his slaughtering competitors in the Dark Continent, to make an example of them and to teach them a wholesome lesson. The world knows the result of this expedition. Scipio was a decent sort of fellow, and not by any means a "stick," whatever the philologists may say to the contrary, and he therefore didn't quite go the length of Cato's plans and wishes-delenda est Carthago; but he drove a nail into the touchholes of the Carthaginian's guns-spiked them, in fact-and brought the people to their senses, so that while Carthage flourished and did a nice little cash business, Rome also had a "living" show, and enjoyed herself in peace and quietness.

It is an old story that "history repeats itself." That is what it is doing now. As usual the West has the lead. The East is always inclined to take its ease. But, as Artemus Ward once said, "Let that pass." The simple fact is that our old friends, the Burrows Bros. Co., of the classic city of Cleveland, like Scipio, gorged with the profits of their book business, and stirred by the heat, and also by the impertinence of their neighbors of the dry-goods business, have determined to carry the war into their competitors' camp. As a starter, they have "laid in" a lot of pins at a penny a paper, and not the smallest either: buttons, gloves, gentlemen's undervests, comes, thread, safety-pins, handkerchiefs, etc., which will be disposed of by them at ruinously low prices. In fact their motto is Dry-Goods without Profit! We notice they have not yet resorted to the deadly parallel column of " Price at Dry-Goods Store" and "Our Price," but we will not presume to anticipate their line of action. In their first manifesto they assure the enemy that "whenever we can induce our neighbors to respect our wares, we shall be glad to abandon this incursion into their territory. . . . With those who do not keep books we have no debate, . . . but for the ones whose course is our just grievance, no price they can make on the above goods will be as low as our price, save until we find it out. We shall set the prices." "Ah, there's the rub." in the last sentence. That is what the dry-goods business has been doing for the publishing trade. Let's see now how they like their own nostrum.

We expect, now that the pace has been set, that every bookstore in the country will stock up with dry-goods, shoes, glassware, and furniture, and hang out a banner with the strange device,

Dry-Goods without Profit!

DRY-GOODS WITHOUT PROFIT.

Where? At the Burrows Bros. Co.'s, 23, 25. 27 Euclid Avenue.

What? Pins. At a penny a paper, and not the smallest size, either.

Pins. The Ne-Plus-Ultra, medium size, at 3c. per paper, or 2 papers for 5c.

Buttons. Generally sold at from 15c. to 20c. per card of one dozen, at 61/4c. per card. or 4 cards for 25c.

Gloves. Genuine Foster Kids at 75c. per pair, never sold in dry-goods stores before this date at less than $1.

Gentlemen's Undervests for 24c. This identical thing has been sold in at least two Cleveland dry-goods stores at 50c. within less than six months.

Corsets. Warner's Coralline at 75c. The universal dry-goods store price is, and long has been,

Thread. Clark's Mile-End Spool Cotton. Full assortment of sizes and numbers, both black and white, at 4c. per spool, or 45c. per dozen.

Safety-Pins. Medium size, per paper 21/2c. Generally retailed in dry-goods stores at 4c. and Handkerchiefs at 121/2c. a dozen. Generally sold at 25c. each.

Handkerchiefs at 55c. a dozen. Of a grade never before sold in this city under 80c.

Handkerchie's at 68c. per dozen. This is for gentlemen, and is the noted number 1000, known throughout the dry-goods trade as a "leader," at 8c. to 10c. each.

Handkerchiefs. Extra fine quality, always sold at 15c. in dry goods stores, and often at more, for $1 per dozen.

Why? Well, the weather is warm, for one thing; and we have not had our vacation, for another; and we need a little amusement, for a third. But, after all, neither one of the above is the correct reason. It is not far to seek, though. The drygoods stores will (some of them only) persist in their attempts to teach us our business by dealing in books at what they claim to be cut rates, a claim which, so far as our prices are concerned, has been always made in error, to put it mildly. If a full and complete assortment of books and stationery is carried, that is entitled to our consideration and respect. But if, with a hatful of some piratical publishers' stock in the cheapest possible editions, the attempt is made (as it is, and many times has been) to undermine the needed and legitimate profitable support of our business, we think it time to take a step in self-defence. Carrying the war into Africa was considered wise policy in Scipio's days, and perhaps the Roman method is best to-day.

How long? So long as we find it needful. We may, as a matter of convenience, not keep a continuous window display of these goods; but the public will do well to note these prices, since they will be maintained by us so fong (but only so long) as we find we are suffering from outside injerte-rence.

Whenever we can induce our neighbors to respect our wares, we shall be glad to abandon this incursion into their territory, and do not doubt that the general public will be as well pleased, and the merchants as well off.

With those who do not keep books we have no debate, and should any of them in self-defence go below these cost prices we shall respect their rights and not even meet the cut, but for the ones whose course is our just grievance no price they can make on the above goods will be as low as our price, save until we find it out. WE SHALL SET THE PRICES.

In the meantime we ask our old friends to bear with us during this temporary spasm.

IOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Outing for October will begin a sporting serial by Captain Hawley Smart, the English novelist.

THE September Atlantic will contain an important article on "The Isthmus Canal and American Control" by Stuart F. Weld.

The Author's Gazette is the name of a new monthly paper which is to be published by Mr. H. R. Tift, at No. 2 Broadway, New York. It will publish any original article upon any subject. The proprietor assumes no responsibility for the views of contributors, and will exercise no censorship beyond what may be necessary to exclude anything of an immoral or libellous character.

A WORTHY DEED.—A citizen bought himself a book the other day, and wrote this on the fly-leaf, "Presented to John Jones by himself, as a mark of esteem,"

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE "George Truman Kercheval" who wrote a book called "Lorin Mooruck, and other Indian stories," is said to be a young lady, named Winifred Jennings.

LEWIS MORRIS is reported to be engaged on a poem similar to his "Epic of Hades," in which he deals with remarkable episodes in the lives of saints, beginning with the early Christian saints and martyrs and ending with the life and death of Father Damien.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WOOD'S MEDICAL AND SURGICAL MONOGRAPHS for September will contain a practical work on the art of embalming, something unique in our medical literature. These Monographs are meeting with a hearty reception from the profession throughout the country.

MRS. TERESA H. DEAN, the author of the successful little book, "How to Be Beautiful," threatens to sue R. S. Peale & Co., of Chicago, for infringing on her copyright. Judging by the account of the matter printed in the Chicago Tribuse Mrs. Dean has the best of the argument.

A Boston music publisher is about to take the interesting step of establishing a branch house in Leipsic for the express purpose of publishing works by American composers. Under German laws, he can secure copyrights in the publication or the performance of American musical works, and after they are issued at Leipsic, he can obtain similar rights in several other European countries.

BARDWELL & BLACKMER, 14 Milk St., Boston, Mass., have just issued a practical book for clergymen entitled "The Pastor's Ledger." It consists of a neat and well-bound blank-book with spaces for the recording of sermons, prayermeetings, baptisms, church accessions, marriages and funerals, etc., designed by F. A. Blackmer with the aid of representative pastors of different denominations.

The historical treatise on Columbus for which a prize has been offered by a Spanish Commission must be delivered to the Secretary of the Royal Academy of History, at Madrid, before the 1st of January, 1892. Works written in Spanish, Portuguese, English, German, French, or Italian, may enter the competition. The two prizes amount respectively to $5700 and $2895, each of the two successful authors receiving besides 500 copies of his work.

A TYPOGRAPHICAL curiosity is about to appear in Paris. It is a special edition, limited to thirty copies, of "Manon Lescaut," printed from new type, and illustratad (1) with a set of seven large engravings from water-color drawings by Lionel Royer, in two states; one in colors, before letters, and one in bistre with descriptive legend; (2) nine original water-color drawings painted on the volume by a different artist for each copy, forming the covers, false titles, frontispieces, head and tail pieces of the volume. Consequently each of the thirty copies is unique. The price per copy, each of which is numbered, is 1000 francs, and the copies are supplied in the order of subscription, the fact of each copy having original designs by different artists preventing a simultaneous delivery.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

It is desirable to receive copy in shape ready for the printer, viz.: first, headline—name and address—then, titles in separate lines (see below), all written on a separate sheet, or at the bottom of letter, or on postal card. Compliance with this request will secure accurate and prompt insertion.

The Literary News.

With 1889, the LITERARY News has become a capital Dollar Magazine, while keeping to its specialty of giving in an hour's bright reading a bird's-eye view of new books and literary affairs.

A charming novel of New England life, by a new writer, began in January and will run through the year.

A series of portraits, from original paintings by MISS DORA WHEELER, of Living American Authors, will make fine frontispieces to each number, accompanying descriptive sketches of "Authors and How They Work."

Bright articles based on new books will be finely illustrated from them.

The "Survey of Current Literature" presents the best quick view of current literature given in any periodical.

A page of humor and miscellany, usually illustrated by "comics," enlivens each number.

Every bookseller who pushes the LITERARY NEWS, pushes his own trade also, because it is specially intended to help him sell books.

Any bookseller who takes 100 copies monthly has his own imprint-advertisement printed on front cover free. It becomes thus practically his own magazine.

Terms, One Dollar a year; Ten Cents a number.

TO THE TRADE: on sale and return, 6 cents a number; outright (10 or more copies), 5 cents a number; 100 copies monthly, with imprint, $5; 250 copies, $10; 1000 copies, $35. On single copies, mailed to subscribers from this office direct, at $1, one-third commission will be allowed.

CONSISTING OF PAPERS BY

HENRY WACE, D.D., Prof. THOMAS H. HUXLEY, THE BISHOP OF PETERBOROUGH, W. H. MALLOCK, MIS. HUMPHRY WARD.

12me, cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

The interest taken in the recent controversy between the Rev. Dr. Henry Wace, Principal of King's College, London, and Prof. Huxley, over the question of the true significance of agnosticism, and incidentally of the limits of natural knowledge, and the difficulty of getting at the complete discussion when scattered through different publications, have induced the publishers to bring the articles together in a single volume. To these have been added W. H. Mallock's article, "Cowardly Agnosticism," and "The New Reformation," by Mrs. Humphry Ward.

NOTES IN SEASON.

JOHN MURPHY & Co. have in press Cardinal Gibbons' new work, "Our Christian Heritage."

HENRY HOLT & Co. have just ready W. E. Norris' new novel, "Miss Shafto," of which the scene is laid in London, Rome, and later in Scotland during the hunting season. The women of the book are specially well drawn. The dialogue discusses art and charities and introduces clever thoughts with the author's well-known skill.

D. APPLETON & Co. will have ready Aug. 20 a romance, "charged with the color of the time," called "Mistress Beatrice Cope, or, passages in J. H. Harper and Fletcher H. Harper.

the life of a Jacobite's daughter," by M. E. Le Clerc. They also call attention to a new cheap edition of "Knight Errant," by Edna Lyall, and to the fact that "Christianity and Agnosticism has gone into a second edition.

GEORGE H. ELLIS, Boston, will publish shortly a book of social essays entitled "Problems in American Society," by Joseph Henry Crooker, the author of "Jesus Brought Back." The book will deal with the problems of charity, temperance, political conscience, moral and religious instruction in public schools, and also the problem of solving the question at issue between the Catholic Church and the secular schools.

JOHN DELAY, N. Y. City, has just published "Lord Dunmersey," a new novel by Leander Richardson, the editor of the New York Dramatic News and Sporting Age. It relates the story of a bogus English lord in New York City, where he is petted and fêted by the toadies of society and surrounds himself with complications that lead to his ruin. Maurice Barrymore, the actor, pronounces this an intensely dramatic and wholly original story.

G. P. PUTNAM'S Sons will publish shortly "Great Words from Great Americans." a neatly gotten up little book giving the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, Washington's and Lincoln's Inaugural and Farewell Addresses, etc.; "Seven Thousand Words Often Mispronounced," by William H. P. Phyfe; and a new Knickerbocker Nugget devoted to "Tales by Heinrich Zschökke," translated by Parke Godwin and William P. Prentiss.

The third edition of "Gretchen," under which title this novel was published in England by Ward & Downey, appeared in the latter part of March, 1889. The American publishers have provided a cover and titlepage bearing the new title, but all through the pages the story is headed "Gretchen." A complex plot. The heroine runs away from a little German village with a young Englishman, who takes her to Italy. Here she meets Adrian Lyle, an English clergyman, who all through her sad history helps her and protects her. After many stormy days she retires to a convent to end the sail life in which she has been more sinned against than sin-ning. Some conversations on faith and religion show talent

The late S. R. Briggs was born in Hull, England, in 1840. He came to Canada when a child. At the age of twenty-one he became an earnest Christian, and speat all the time he could spare from his lumber business in spreading the gospel and editing helps for Bible study. He was the founder and teacher of the Berean Circle, which met every week at his house for Bible study. He died September 4, 1887. A large proportion of these notes were found among his papers; the remainder are by noted evangelists. They are divided and classified under the headings: How to study the Bible; Readings suitable for systematic courses; for the unsawed; for believers; for Christian workers; Readings on Jesus; and Miscellaneous.

Descriptive of the nests and eggs of the land and water birds of North America. Includes all the species that occur or are indigenous north of the southern United States boundary, including Greenland and the peninsula of Lower Cafifornia. The breeding range of each species is given, the time of nesting, the exact number of eggs laid, their color and size, together with the chief characteristics of the birds. The arrangement of the work is according to the new nomenclature of the A. O. U. Code and Check List, and the old numbers (Ridgway's), as used in former editions, are placed to the right of each species. Throughout the text all the common names of the birds are to be found, and a complete analytical index of these is given.

Dick, Herbert G. Sounding brass: a novel. N. Y., American News Co., 1889. c. 182 p. D. pap., 25 c.

The opening chapter announces the death of a brilliant society woman. The remainder of the book describes her career. Born on a Southern plantation, tired of hundrum life with her father, an inventor, her sister, and a trusted housekeeper, she engages herself to one man, suddenly marries another, and goes to France. Her husband dies on the steamer. Some time after she marries a New York business man and takes her position in society. A young Frenchman appears, who falls in love with her and proves to be her son. A dramatic interview with him leads to the death with which the story opens.

The musical critic of the Boston Advertiser begins with Wolfram, of Eschenbach, and closes with Wagner. He deals with the etiquette and habits of the Minnesingers, and their influence upon music; their disappearance, which was followed by the folk-songs and the rise of secular and operatic music in Germany. This leads up to Bach, Handel, Haydn, Mozart, and Beethoven. The chapters devoted to these composers are admirably condensed biographies. A short paper on the "Last hours of great composers" closes the book.

In line with Mrs. Oliphant's "Stories of the seen and unseen" and Miss Phelps' "Gates ajar" and "The gates between," etc. The story is told in the first person, by one Herfronzo, who after an unhappy life on earth finds himself in "the land of Souls, the imperishable world." Herfronzo's experience in the spirit-land, and the conditions he finds there as described by the author, betray a great deal of poetry and imagination.

Used in the Institute of Technology, in which its authors are professors. Students are required to acquaint themselves with the skeletons of the topics to be treated in oral lectures. The book provides the headings of twenty-four lectures, and gives a bibliography of works of reference that can be found in a comparatively small class library. The lecturer-feeling that the student has already acquainted himself with the scope of his subject is saved much time in giving facts and can employ it in giving flesh, blood, and life to the facts already learned.

Soc. Co., [1889.] 4+252 p. S. cl., net, 70 c.
St. Bonaventura was born in 1221 in Tuscany, Italy.
When he was four years old he lay at death's door, and was supposed to have been spared through the prayers of St. Francis of Assisi. Some time after, this saint visited the boy his prayers had saved, and seeing in him a worthy successor, changed his baptismal name John to Bonaventura. His life was devoted to charity, and especially to the work of the Franciscan orders. He died in 1274.
Published anonymously, not even the language from which it was taken is given.

inquiry. N. 1., E. & J. D. Young & Co., 1889.

A corrected reissue of a series of articles which appeared in the Church Quarterly Review from 1878 to 1884.
They do not touch the theological side of the matter in debate except subordinately. They contain an argument to show the legal aspect of the claim laid by the Papacy to sovereign authority over the Church Universal. It is demonstrated that under the Roman Canon Law the Papacy has no case at all and that no valid Pope has sat for more than four centuries, and that none can now be created. Dr. Littledale is a man of considerable literary fame in a range that extends from the editing of "Greek office books" to reviewing the latest novels in the London Academy.

An English society novel, taking its characters from London to Scotland and then to Rome. The hero is a London to Scotland and then to Rome. The hero is a painter, the younger brother of an heir to large estates, who has married secretly and allowed suspicion to fall on the artist. Miss Shafto is a sweet, reasonable woman, who devotes her life to a father who ruins himself by speculation. The heroine is offset by a brilliant girl, who marries a jealous husband and stoops to some mean work to prevent Miss Shafto from marrying the man she has refused. The conversations are bright and the presentation of character excellent.

Phryne. N. Y., J: W. Lovell Co., [1889.]

F. C. Philips is the author of "As in a looking-glass."
His clever style is one of the most attractive qualities of this story. The work of C. T. Wills, his collaborateur, is not so evident. The plot relates to the marriage of a famous Parisian physician, Dr. Tholozan, of some sixty years, to his ward, a beautiful girl just fresh from school. Their happiness is interrupted by the love of George Leigh, a young English artist, for the young wife. The passion becomes mutual, and the doctor's jealousy leads him to take a most horrible and novel revenge. A ploture of Phryne that Leigh is painting, and a rich, beautiful widow who is in love with him, are strong elements n the plot.

Ireland and Switzerland are in turns the scene. The hero's father is a self-made man—rich, selfish, and ignorant; his mother is a nobleman's daughter, who has married to pay her father's debts. In a home without love or refinement the boy grows up—all his worst traits finding encouragement in his aurroundings. After his education is completed, he runs a wild career for a time, then goes upon the Continent, amply supplied with money by his father. He is under promise to his father that, after travelling for two years, in return for his generosity he will come back to Ireland and marry a duke's daughter. A beautiful Swiss girl he meets changes this programme, and in fact his whole life and character. There is a secondary story of a German prince, who forces his love upon a poor but noble German girl, that is full of tragical incidents.

The preface to the first edition was written in 1858.
Joseph B. Wakeley was born in Danbury, Conn., in 1809, and died in 1875. While pursuing studies for some other work he had planned, he came upon a singular book that shed a flood of light upon the history of early Methodism in America, and he felt it his duty to embody these facts in a book. There are several illustrations of historic churches and renowned preachers, besides fac-simile accounts of conversions, signatures, and verses. The volume has been for some time out of print.

Che Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 17, 1880.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes:" New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

COMMITTEES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR.

THE industrial organizations having at the suggestion of Mayor Grant nominated each a single representative for appointment on the four committees of twenty-five each that are to arrange the preliminaries of the World's Fair of 1892, the Mayor on Saturday, Aug. 11, confirmed, with two exceptions, the appointments, and designated the committee upon which each appointee was to serve. Out of the fifty-seven arts, industries, and professions represented, the following appointments are of special interest to the publishing, printing, and stationery trades: Periodicals and publishers, John Foord, managing editor of Harper's Weekly; printing, J. J. Little; stationery and paper trade, Warner Miller. The Committee on Site and Building, one of the four committees of this organization, embraces among other noted names the following famous ones in journalism: James Gordon Bennett, of the New York Herald; Joseph I. C. Clarke, editor of the Morning Journal; Charles A. Dana, editor of the New York Sun; George Jones, proprietor of the New York Times, and Joseph Pulitzer, of the New York World.

AWARDS TO AMERICAN PUBLISHERS AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

It gives us pleasure to report that our publishers are meeting with deserved appreciation at the Paris Exposition. The J. B. Lippincott Co. write us that they are in receipt of a letter from our good friend Emil Terquem, advising them that they have obtained for the merit and excellency of their publications a gold medal at the Paris Exposition. The Century Co. have also notified us that word has been given them from the same source that they have obtained the highest award allowed in the book and publishing department for the excellency and the merit of their publications. The highest award is a Diplomaof Honor.

THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

From The [London] Bookseller, July 5, 1889.

NOTWITHSTANDING the vast size of the exhibition, it is less international in character than some of its predecessors. The exhibits of Great Britain and the United States represent very inadequately the resources of their respective countries. Germany and Austro-Hungary are conspicuous by their absence, and the manufacturing industries of the rest of the world, however completely represented, scarcely compensate for the entire absence or meagre display of the countries named. In every department the French exhibits are enormously larger than any other, the most visibly so in Class IX., devoted to books, printing, and illustration. The total to books, printing, and illustration. The total absence of Germany and Austro-Hungary in this section is to be regretted. The republic of letters might surely be considered as outside the arena of political animosities. The last time we were at Leipzig fair, we remember to have seen a good many French books exhibited there, and we were disappointed to find our German and Austrian brethren so ostentatiously absent at the Champs de Mars.

The chief evidence of recent progress visible in the French exhibits is in the matter of process engraving and printing. The number of different methods of which French publishers can avail themselves appears to us considerably larger than those with which our own publishers are familiar, and the French printers are evidently paying special attention to modes of working adapted to the various engraving processes. The applications of photographic engraving for lithographic and typographic printing, and also for the same work in colors, is exhibited in many different specimens. Color-printing in relief is specially exhibited by Draeger and Lesieur, Quantin Charles Unsinger, and A. Lahure. Color-print ing from plates by Boussod Valadon et Cie. and Charles Chardon. A special process of printing photogravures in colors is shown by M. Mouillet, director of the Publications Périodiques. Process work from zincos in black and colors is done with special excellence by Georges J. Petit Miche let, Rougeron, Guillaumé, and Gillot; photolith ography by Berthaud and Aron; and photogravure by Dugardin and Boussod Valadon et Cie. of these printers do not exhibit, although many specimens of their work are to be seen in differ ent cases. In the French section there are altogether one hundred and eighty-seven exhibits. those of the great houses, such as Hachette et Cie., Plon, Nourrit et Cie., Alfred Mame et Fila, the Maison Quantin and Firmin Didot et Cie. filling the space of a moderate sized shop, handsomely, not to say luxuriantly, fitted up. Ha chette, Mame, and Didot are ineligible, members of those firms being jurors, and the gold medal wil therefore probably fall either to Plon or Quantin Other French exhibits of special note are a reason to be proud of our contribution to the French Exhibition, and the little there is by no means transcends the limits of culture, elegance, and thoroughness which are customary and possible qualities in current English literature.

Other French exhibits of special note are a follows, taking them in the order in which they appear in the catalogue: J: B. Baillière et Fila works in science, medicine, and natural history L. Baschet, illustrated works; Boussod Valadom Chaix, specimens of printing; Georges Chamerot handsome specimens of printing; Charairso et Fils, specimens of printing; Ch. Chardon, engravings; A Léon Conquet, illustrated works; L. Danel (printer of the official catalogue), illustrated works; Delalain Frères, showcards and other specimens; Draeger and Lesieur, colorpinting; Veuve Ch. Dunod, engineering scientific works; Paul Dupont, specimens of bookwork and other printing; Gruel and Engelmann are both printers and bookbinders, and exhibit numerous fine specimens in each branch: L. L. O. Herbert, illustrated books; J. Hetzel et Cie., children's books and miscellaneous works; Imprimerie Nationale, Government publications, many produced with great elegance and splendidly ilinstrated; Jouvet et Cie., illustrated works on science, history, geography, and other subjects, also maps and atlases; Alexis Lahure, printing, process illustrations in colors, etc.; Librairie de l'Art, the splendid periodical L'Art and other artistic publications; Librarie des Imprimeries Réunies, specimens of artistic printing; Georges Masson, popular works on science, medicine, agriculture, etc.; and Publications Périodiques, which produces and publishes a variety of periodicals and books, specimens of which are shown.

The English section is in the opposite gallery, and the trade is almost entirely represented by the collective exhibit of Galignani. This fills an alcove about as large as that occupied by the single house of Firmin Didot in the French section. It is neatly arranged, has an English attendant, Mr. A. E. Metcalfe, who speaks French and understands his business, but the sense of magnitude is miserably deficient. The only large thing in the exhibit is a copy of "The Reference Catalogue," which Messrs. Jeancourt have placed at the service of their representative. A set of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" would have done something to redeem the credit of the trade, and would certainly have obtained the gold medal, but Messrs. Black are not represented by even a duodecimo. As it is, the case filled by the books of the Clarendon Press comes first in point of dig-Bagster's Bibles, the Cambridge Bible Warehouse, Eyre & Spotiswoode, and the Oxford Bible Warehouse have good average exhibits, but not one of the houses has gone to the trouble to get up specimens representing the full extent of their resources. They have sent books in bindings neither better nor worse than are offered by their travellers in the usual round of business, The other exhibitors are Messrs. G. Bell & Sons, W. & R. Chambers, Wells Gardner, Darton & Co., T. Fisher Unwin, Griffith, Farran & Co., Hatchards, Low, Marston & Co., whose exhibit is a conundrum, Walter Scott, Trübner & Co., Ward & Downey, and Ward, Lock & Co. In addition to these, Messrs. Augener & Co. have a good exhibit of music, the British and Foreign Bible Society exhibit editions of the Scriptures in many languages; Mr. William Griggs shows his photolithographic reproductions, Rowney & Co. their artists' studies, and in solitary grandeur on the floor below the Illustrated London News exhibits its volumes and the pictures of its extra numbers. Messrs. W. & A. K. Johnston exhibit in a far-off corner of the gallery, Messrs. Bacon & Co. are near them, and there is an insignificant case of bookbindings by R. Riviere & Son in the stationery department. It is only insignificant in point of extent and position, however, for it contains some of the best specimens in the building. A copy of "The Marriage of Cupid and Psyche" in thin case, crushed levant, inlaid, with arabesque toolings, is unequalled by anything shown by the French binders. But there was nobody to open the case, although the jurors of Class IX. were hovering about, and all a friendly gend'arm could tell us was that one of the volumes was valued at trois mille francs, a fact which seemed, in his opinion, to be very impressive. We have no department.

The United States exhibit is somewhat like our own, and is chiefly represented by a collective display organized by M. Em. Terquem. The Americans have secured a better position than ourselves, but the extent of their exhibit about equals that of Galignani's. They have a good attendant, whose name we failed to ask, but who is well acquainted with the contents of the cases. The collective exhibit represents twenty-nine publishing firms, and an excellent catalogue, printed by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., furnishes a detailed account of the books shown and an outline history of the different publishing houses whence they are issued. Some of the publishers have an extraordinary assortment. For instance, Messrs. Estes & Lauriat, Boston, send twenty works, of which thirteen are not American. The first on their list, Duruy's "Rome," is by a French academician, edited by a Dublin professor, the plates or casts were probably made in England. the chief illustrations are, we believe, printed in France, and the whole was projected and produced by Mr. Kelly, of London. Do Messrs. Estes & Lauriat suppose the French jury is composed of babes and sucklings? Many imposing exhibits in the French section are equally fictitious. a relief to turn to the cases of Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Appleton & Co., Lippincott, Ivison, Blakeman & Co., A. S. Barnes & Co., our good friend and honored contemporary, Mr. R. R. Bowker, of the Publishers' Weekly, with his bibliographical works, the Century Company, Johns Hopkins University, and a few others, to find ourselves within the rich and substantial domain of genuine American literature. Largepaper editions of nothingness, and rechauffés of German, French, and English originals, are not the sort of things that win the admiration of a jury of experts. They may be well enough to sell, but it is stupid to exhibit them in Paris, with a Didot and a Delalain as judges. For books and printing, Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. are first, and the rest nowhere. For bibliography and general helpfulness to booksellers and librarians, there can be no doubt that the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY Office claims the first place.

In the Belgian department the chief exhibitors are Th. Falk, illustrated works, maps, globes, etc.; J. Lebègue et Cie., geographical and educational works; Adolphe Mertens, editions of the classics and miscellaneous works; Vaillant-Carmanne, classics and works in several modern languages; and P. Weissenbruck, specimens of printing.

Greece is represented by thirty-six exhibits, of which Anesti Constantinides, of Athens, who has done much for modern Greek literature, stands foremost.

Italy has only eleven exhibits, of which those of Ferdinand Ongania, of Venice, Jules Ricordi et Cie., of Milan, and Edouard Sonzogno, of Milan, are the more important.

Russia exhibits little, and of this the case of P. Jurgenson is the best. Russian literature is a possibility of the distant future, of which we have but a dim promise.

In the Swiss department there are twenty-one exhibitors, of whom D. Lebet, of Lausanne, and Orell Fussli et Cie., of Zurich, are the chief. Nothing specially attractive presents itself in this department.

The above concludes the list of such exhibits as are likely to attract the attention of visitors interested in books. Many other exhibits deserve note, but we cannot spare the space requisite for their description. The Jury of Class IX. is as follows: President, Alfred Didot; Vice-President, Benziger, Switzerland; Reporter, M. Fouret (Hachette's); Secretary, Chamerot; Members, Phil. Jourde, Parfait Noel, Paul Mame, Jules Hetzel, Aug. Durand, Paul Delalain, Doniel (Directeur de l'Imprimerie Nationale), Leman (Russia), Count Fantoni (Italy). Senor de Maz (Spain), Mr. Stanton (United States of America), M. Weissenbruck (Belgium), M. de Ste. Hilaire (Greece); and Jurors at large, Messrs. Armand Colin, Henri Gauthier-Villars, Paul Ollendorf, and J. Rothschild.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

DETROIT and her International Fair and Exposition, which will be held the middle of September, are the subjects of a paper by William Willard Howard in a four-page supplement to Harper's Weekly for August 14. Among the accompanying illustrations are double pages giving views of the city and its surroundings, and of the Exposition buildings and grounds on the banks of the Detroit River.

W. W. Pasko, 19 Park Place, New York City, has issued the first number of Old New York, a journal relating to the history and antiquities of New York City. Mr. Pasko isalso the editor. The periodical is intended to cover the entire range of events "from the discovery of the river and bay down to a period within the recollection of middle-aged persons." It will be published in monthly numbers containing sixty-four pages each. The editor invites the cooperation of all those interested and will be glad to be furnished with material. "Nothing will be inserted for sensation; truth, and truth alone, will be his purpose."

A REMARKABLE chapter of Napoleonic history will appear in the September Century, consisting of letters and journals of British officers describing Napoleon's voyage to Elba, also to St. Helena. The first part of the article is a letter written by Captain Ussher, who commanded the Undaunted, which took the exile to Elba; the last part is by Lieutenant Miles, of the Northewolden, and consists partly of a diary which the young lieutenant kept while on the way to St. Helena in the same ship with the ex-emperor. Napoleon talked quite freely about some of his plans—especially with regard to the French navy—told a number of stories, and explained various points in his own career.

Harper's Magazine for September will contain two articles by Theodore Child, one describing the American fine art exhibition at the Paris Exposition, which Mr. Child does not hesitate to say is one of the strongest and most interesting of all the foreign departments, and the other giving features of Moscow life that escape the eye of ordinary travellers. In the same number Edmond de Pressensé gives an outline of the religious movement of the present day in France; "London Mock Parliaments," by John Lillie, illustrated by Harry Furness; the distinguished caricaturist, Caran d'Ache, will have a series of sketches of dogs in the "Editor's Drawer;" and Lynde Palmer contributes a story about electricity called "The Pendragon Trial."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

The next volume in the Badminton Library, to be published in the autumn, is "Fencing, Boxing, and Wrestling," written by Messrs. Walter H. Pollock, F. C. Grove, Walter Armstrong, E. B. Mitchell, and M. Prévost. This will be followed later by "Golf," to which Mr. Horace Hutchinson, Mr. A. J. Balfour, and Sir William Simpson (among others) will contribute. Little, Brown & Co. will, as usual, supply the American market.

T. J. MORROW, Minneapolis, has issued a new book by the Rev. Henry Clay Mabie, entitled "Romanism in Four Chapters," aiming to furnish a temperate, judicial, and candid discussion of Romanism, giving credit where credit is due, and pointing out its encroachments upon free institutions. The lectures of which the book is composed called forth a response from Archbishop Ireland, and an open letter to him in reply to his strictures is embodied in the volume.

D. APPLETON & Co. announce for early publication "European Schools," by L. R. Klemm, which will be fully illustrated and included in the International Education Series; "A First Book in American History," by Edward Eggleston, which will be beautifully illustrated by eminent American artists; and Youmans' "Class-Book of Chemistry," thoroughly revised by Dr. W. J. Youmans, a brother of the author, and made quite up to date by including the latest developments of the science.

THE MESSRS. LONGMANS have in press "The Blue Fairy Book," by Andrew Lang, in which he has collected or retold a number of fairy stories, which have been illustrated by H. J. Ford and G. P. Jacomb Hood; they will also issue a sort of reply to Mowbray Morris' recent "Life of Claverhouse," which will be called "Clavers, the Despot's Champion." a Scots' biography by a Southerner. This house is said to have paid Dr. Nausen in advance the sum of $12,500 for his work on Greenland.

SIR CHARLES DILKE is engaged upon a new work, entitled, "Problems of Greater Britain," Though covering in some respects the same ground as 'Greater Britain,' says the Aikenaum, "it will not be, like that book, a record of travel, but a study of comparative politics and a complete survey of the empire. Special attention will be paid to the question of Indian frontier defence, to the situation in Canada and South Africa, and above all to the many important problems which concern the present and future of Australia. The book will be published by Messrs. Macmillan & Co. in January."

CHARLES H. KILBORN, Boston, have just ready "Round the World with the Poets," selected and arranged by Mary Cate Smith and Sarah C. Winn, intended to afford a series of review exercises in the study of geography. The quotations are arranged beginning with physical features and then giving longer poems relating to particular countries, mountains, rivers, cities, etc. These are followed by an illustrative tour, giving in selections from well-known authors an interesting journey around the world. They will also issue shortly "Bible Selections and Responsive Readings," by George W. Winslow, intended for use in private and public schools. The selections are strictly non-sectarian and the compiler has omitted everything not suited to children.

OF THE

COMPILED BY C. N. CASPAR.

The work will include the Publishing; Subscription; Retail Book; Antiquarian; News; Maps; Art; Music; Manufacturing; Jobbing and Retail Stationery; Blank-Books and Paper Manufacturing Business, and General Job, bers in the above lines in the United States and Canada. The work will be divided into six parts, as follows:

Part I. comprises a list of the firms in a General Alphabet; with full information in regard to their nature, their specialties, etc.; firm changes of Publishers, Manufacturing Stationers, Jobbers, etc.; the approximate commertial standing and the present Post-Office Address of all firms, etc., arranged on the plan of the sample given below:

*Armstrong & Son, A. C., Bk. Pub., Job. in Bks., Imp. of Bks. (Formerly of Scribner, Armstrong & Co.) Est. 1879.

Control a part of the publications of W. J. Widdleton and Albert Mason.—T. L. Annual: Albert Mason, 1874–78. A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1879–86.—Pub. Spec.: Historical, Juveniles, School-Books, Standard Works, Theology.

*Baker§ & Taylor Co., The. W., Bk. Pub., Job. in Bks., Imp. of Bks. (Succeeded Baker & Taylor; Baker, Pratt & Co.; Mason, Baker & Pratt; Oakley, Mason & Co.; Oakley & Mason; Blakeman & Mason; Pratt, Oakley & Co.; Pratt, Woodford & Co.; Farmer, Brace & Co.; T. K. Brace & Co.; Robinson, Pratt & Co.; David F. Robinson & Co.) Since 1886. Est. 1830.

7. L. Annual: 1885-86. Pub. Spec.: Elocution, Novels, Philosophy, Phonography, Socialism, Speakers and Recitations, Theology.

Part II. presents a Digest of the various Book Publishers on this plan:

Those names marked with a \(\pi\) are Jobbers or Importers, the others are Publishers. \(\mathbb{C}\)

the latter part of this month "Bijou, the Foundling of Nag's Head," a novel, by Albert P. Southwick.

JOHN IRELAND, 1197 Broadway, has the market for a new cook-book, "What One Can Do with a Chafing-Dish," just published by the author, H. L. Sawtelle. The attractive "get-up" of the book at once catches the eye, and as the leaves are turned, one is amazed at the number and variety of dishes which may be concocted within the limited compass of a "chafing-dish." Experimenters in "light house-keeping" will find the book just the one they have been in search of for so many years.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT have ready a new contribution, by a new writer, to the present allabsorbing discussion of the future of the negro in America, entitled "An Appeal to Pharaoh." The author confidently indorses it as "a radical solution of the negro problem." "Unto the Uttermost," by James M. Camphell, also ready, is from the pen of a liberal thinker on religious matters. New popular editions have been published of Major George S. Williams' "Bullet and Shell" and Prof. Robert R. Raymond's "Shakespeare for the Young Folks."

D. C. HEATH & Co. publish at once "The State, or, elements of historical and practical politics," by Woodrow Wilson, author of "Congressional Government." The central aim of the book will be to place existing political methods and constitutions, particularly those of the Federal and State governments in the United States, in the light of the history and essential character of government; to exhibit the actual practice of modern government in its proper relations with the practice of governments in the past, and with the general principles of jurisprudence and politics, as these have been developed by historical criticism. It is designed both for students and readers.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

D. LOTHROP COMPANY'S select list of books in the "Trade List Annual for 1889" is arranged in alphabetical order as to authors, as the alphabetical index of titles was not ready to insert with it. D. Lothrop Company will forward the index to any one desiring it, on application, that it may be inserted in connection with the list.

In the new catalogue of the publications of the United Presbyterian Board of Publication, just received, we are pleased to note the following paragraph, indicating a most desirable change from the so-called "retail prices" on theological works generally: "In former catalogues many of our books were listed at what is known in the trade as Retail Prices, from which discounts were given to purchasers. This system has been found by most publishers to be very unsatisfactory, causing uncertainty and irregularity in prices to the purchaser. In this catalogue all prices are reduced to net prices and no discounts are made to any one."

NOTES AND QUERIES.

"I have endeavored in the present treatise to give a by no means complete, but, I trust, a sufficient account of the theory as it stands to-day, to meet the needs of students. Full references to original sources are given in every case. Most of the results in the first two chapters, which deal with the general properties of linear differential equations and with equations having coefficients, are of course old, but the presentation of these properties is comparatively new and is due to such mathematicians as Hermite, Jordan, Darboux, and others. All that follows these two chapters is quite new and constitutes the essential part of the modern theory of linear differential equations."—Preface.

"Sant' Ilario" is the title adopted by the younger "Saracinesca" upon his marriage. He therefore is again the hero, the life of himself and his wife the Princess Corona and his old father Prince Saracinesca being taken up where it left off in the work called "Saracinesca." Rome is again the scene, the time 1867.
Besides new characters and new scenes from the domestic life of the old Roman nobility, many vivid sketches are given of the numerous insurrections and attacks from without from the Garibaldians which kept Rome in a ferment at this period. "Sant' Ilario" is again a most striking and manly figure. The new phases presented of his character while illustrating his weaknesses, do not detract from his greatness. The ionakceper cousin San Giacinto is a picturesque figure all through this volume. Mr. Crawford promises still another volume to complete the annals of the Saracinescas.

Robert G. Ingersoll's prologue consists of six chapters treating of Edgar Fawcett, science, morality, spiritualization of Edgar Fawcett, science, morality, spiritualization of Edgar Fawcett, science of God. Then Mr. Fawcett discusses Agnosticism; The arrogance of optimism; The Browning craze; The truth about Ouida, and Should critics be gentlemen? His criticisms show his keen intellect and clear thought, his intense energy of style and brilliant epigram at their best.

Washington, the United States Navy, and Paris furnish the stages, on which many characters come and go.
The "blind bargain" is made between the wife of an executor of a young girl's estate and the trustee of her fortune. She promises his ward's hand in marriage if he will shield her dead husband's memory and cover up the fact that the fortune has been tampered with. A young sailor shapes events at last.

The material from which this book is made was a series of letters written during a five years' residence in the village of Guadalupe y Calvo, beginning in 1877. The village is located in the centre of the Sierra Madra range, and is to the outside world almost unknown. The writer describes the dwellers in these mountains, their habits, customs, laws, industries, modes of besiness, travel and living, and philosophizes entertainingly

The principal authorities consulted are Webster, Worcester, Stormonth, and Haldeman. For names of places, and persons, Lippincott's Gazetteer and Lippincott's Biographical Dictionary have been referred to frequently. In addition, the New Imperial, Walker, Sheridan, Knowles, Jameson, Perry, Smart, Cooley, and Cull have been consulted, and in many instances their pronunciations have been given. Where several important pronunciations of a word occur, the fact is indicated, Webster's pronunciation being generally placed first. In addition to the author's comments on various words, quotations are made from leading authorities, where it is thought that these might be valuable or interesting.

OBITUARY.

ELIAS LOOMIS, Professor of Natural Philosophy and Astronomy in Yale University, died in the New Haven Hospital on Thursday, Aug. 15. The immediate cause of his death was Bright's disease, although for several years he has been suffering from the diseases and bodily ills peculiar to old age. He was born in Willington, Ct., in 1811, being in his 78th year. The titles of Prof. Loomis' scientific papers exceed 100 in number, and they have appeared both in this country and abroad in journals and published transactions of societies of which he was a member. Among the works which have made his name famous are "Plane and Spherical Trigonometry" (1848), "Progress of Astronomy" (1850 and 1856), "Analytical Geometry and Calculus" and "Elements of Algebra" (1851), "Elements of Geometry and Conic Sections" (1851 and 1871), "Tables of Logarithms" (1855), "Natural Philosophy" (1858), "Practical Astronomy" (1855 and 1865), "Elements of Arithmetic" (1863), "Treatise on Meteorology" (1868), and "Elementslof Astronomy" (1869). He also published a work on "The Descendants of Joseph Loomis."

Che Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

AUGUST 24, 1889.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

It is desirable to receive copy in shape ready for the printer, viz.: first, headline—name and address—then, titles in separate lines (see below), all written on a separate sheet, or at the bottom of letter, or on postal card. Compliance with this request will secure accurate and prompt insertion.

THE BOOK-TRADE EXHIBIT AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

An adequate organization of committees, etc., which will make the book exhibit in the World's Fair of 1892 a worthy and entire success, should occupy the attention of the trade as soon as the end of the vacation season permits a representative meeting. When such committees are organized, their first work will be, of course, to plan the scope of a book-trade exhibit, and we present a word or two of suggestion now, chiefly for the sake of setting the minds of others in the trade at work by these hints. As the exhibition will be historical in its motive, such an exhibit as the collective one which we hope to see from the book trade ought also to be in a measure historical, and this can be accomplished only by some general work in addition to the special representation of each house. . We trust, therefore, not only that each house will do the best it possibly can to show the development of American publishing by presenting samples of its earliest products and its characteristic work in the intermediate periods as well as a full representation of its books of the day, but that all may join in providing for a historical exhibition showing the progress of the making of books in America from the earliest times until now. Such an exhibition would be related to those of the printers on the one side and the library system on the other, and the best method of all would probably be to make a joint committee of the printers and other representatives of arts connected with publishing, of the book trade and of the libraries, looking to an exhibit from each of those divisions, but also to a combination of all of them in ench an historic exhibition as we have indicated / There is material in this country for one of the finest exhibitions of this kind in the world, but it requires forethought, public spirit, and general coöperation to accomplish what we have outlined. The publishing trade in itself should be a leader in all public progress, and we hope, therefore, to see it take its proper part in such a development of public spirit as will make possible an exhibition which will be a credit to the nation and a help in our progress hereafter.

It is much to be regretted, in view of the importance of the book trade in any exhibit of our national development, that it has really no representative on the Committee of One Hundred. This is in good measure the fault of the trade itself, because of the lack of any organization which could nominate to Mayor Grant, in response to his general invitation, such a representative of the publishing interest as we indicated in a previous issue. In default of such nomination, the Mayor extended his designation of the trade to cover "periodicals and publishing," and named Mr. John Foord, formerly of the New York Times and Brooklyn Union, and now managing editor of Harper's Weekly, who has never been connected with the book trade, so far as we know, and represents, therefore, only the first-named division. It is a pity that the Mayor should not rather have placed on the Committee some representative book publisher, such as, among the elders, Mr. W. H. Appleton, A. D. F. Randolph, or J. W. Harper, or from among the next generation now at the front, Mr. J. Henry Harper, W. W. Appleton, Charles Scribner, G. H. Putnam, Henry Holt, or any one of half a dozes others who would have been accepted as representative. But possibly this may be remedied when the trade meets in the fall to take action.

THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL for 1889, of which the first copies are already in hand and going out to contributors, will be as usual a trifle larger than in the preceding year, showing the general appreciation of this trade-help on the part of the publishing as well as of the retail trade. A few catalogues-but only two or three of first importance—are noticeable by their absence, for various reasons; if dealers who notice and lament omissions will say so on a postalcard to the publishers in question, it will help to give them a realizing sense of the importance of being ready in time next year. The ANNUAL, to be fully serviceable, should be ready at the very beginning of the fall retail season; thanks to the cooperation of Mr. J. F. Tapley, the binder, we expect by this year to make Sept. 2 the day of publication, and by that date we hope to have shipped all copies ordered by advance subscribers. We remind those who have not yet sent their orders at $1.50, that on and after that date the set nrice of the ANNITAL is $20

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW.

GENERAL LLOYD BRYCE will, in the September number of The North American Review, make the following important announcement, which we have received from advance proof, relative to his future connection with this magazine and the policy he proposes to pursue:

"The more effectually to carry out the wish of the late Allen Tnorndike Rice that after his death I should assume the control of The North American Neview, I have become the proprietor of the Review.

"In its conduct I purpose to adhere to the line projected by Mr. Rice. The success of the Review under his management is evinced by its extraordinary circulation, by its world-wide reputation, and by its influence upon public thought, affording ample proof of the justness of his conception as to the true, and the most useful, functions of such a publication. What it became under his administration, it shall continue to be, so far as my efforts can make it, a magazine of the times, in which topics of commanding interest in every field of human thought and action shall be discussed by representative writers, whose words and names carry authority with them. While the Review shall remain impartial on subjects upon which the mind of the world is divided, its aim being to present to its readers material to assist them in arriving at intelligent conclusions—its pages shall be open to the ablest advocates or exponents of both sides of all such questions. It shall thus continue to be a comprehensive reflex of the highest and broadest thought of the day, and of its most important activities in every direction.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A PROTEST AGAINST THE METHODS OF ED-UCATIONAL PUBLISHERS.

AT a meeting of the booksellers of the city of Richmond, Virginia, the following was adopted and ordered to be sent to the editor of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, with the request that it be published:

"We, the booksellers of Richmond, Virginia, do most earnestly enterour protest against the method the educational publishers have of selling to professors, students of colleges, and scholars of smaller schools, text-books at a better rate than they do to the regular trade, thereby preventing our making the profit that belongs to the legitimate booksellers. In many instances the books are supplied to the students at introductory prices, and at a less rate than the booksellers can get them. This is all wrong, and we think the publishers should by all means strive to protect their customers, by not underselling them. If they do this, the booksellers will be benefited, and the publishers' sales will be equally as large."

ENJOINING A "BRITANNICA" REPRINT. Prom the New York Sun, Aug. 13.

Two suits have just been begun in the United States Circuit Court against the Henry G. Allea Company, of this city, asking that the company be enjoined from publishing the "Encyclopædia Britannica." The suits were brought by the firm of Adam and Chas. Black, of Edinburgh, and Francis A. Walker, of Boston, and Charles Scribner's Sons of this city. The Henry G. Allen Company publish the "Encyclopædia" from a reproduction of the original ninth edition, taken by the "gelatine method." In the ninth edition is an article which Mr. Walker claims to have written and copyrighted, called "Political Geography and Statistics," and which is used in the "Encyclopædia" published in Edinburgh by permission from the author. Charles Scribner's Sons base their suit on the fact that the defendants use in the twenty-third volume a series of maps owned by the complainants and known as " Scribner's Statistical Atlas of the United States."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Boston, Mass.—A. A. Waterman & Co. have opened a retail bookstore at 3 Beacon Street, occupying one-half of the store of H. H. Carter & Co., stationers. They carry a general assortment of new books as well as standard literature. Mr. Waterman continues to conduct his wholesale school-book and stationery business at 50 Bromfield Street. He formerly did business at Cambridge, Mass., as A. A. Waterman, and afterwards as Waterman & Amee. He is an industrious and rising bookseller.

BOULDER, COL.—Robert H. Tilney, publisher, has sold out.

FREMONT, KAN.—R. M. Foster & Son, stationsers, etc., have been closed up by their creditors.

GLENWOOD, MINN.—E. W. Fish, publisher, has sold out.

HILLSBORO, DAK.—Geo. E. Bowers & Co., publishers, have dissolved partnership.

HUNTINGTON, PA.—On an oddly marked and colored sheet of paper, saved from the "flood of '89," J. G. Blair, manufacturing stationer, informs his customers that he is recovering from the disaster that visited Pennsylvania last spring, and that he is now "fully able to fill all orders, no matter how liberal."

KNOXVILLE, TENN.—The firms of Ogden Bros. & Co. and W. & W. E. Williams on May 16 made changes in their business as follows: Williams & Hensell succeed to the business of W. & W. E. Williams, at the old stand, No. 151 Gay Street. They take the retail business of Ogden Bros. & Co. in miscellaneous books, school-books, and fancy goods. Ogden Bros. & Co. will make a specialty of jobbing, stationery, and school-books, also of manufacturing blank-books and job printing. They will also continue in their old stand, No. 145 Gay Street.

LAKE CITY, MINN.—McKinney & Linnen, publishers, have been succeeded by R. McNeill.

LYNCHBURG, VA.—J. D. Sutor, bookseller and stationer, has made an assignment.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—The Dispatch Publishing Company has sold out.

PITTSBURG, ILL.—Bush & Co., booksellers and stationers, have sold out.

SALEM, CAL.—W. T. Lyon, publisher, has been burned out.

SALEM, DAK.—Ware & Neugent, publishers, have dissolved partnership.

SAN JOSÉ, CAL.—Herrett & Calderwood, publishers, have dissolved partnership.

SHELL ROCK, IA.—Stonebreaker & Sheldon, booksellers, etc., have dissolved partnership.

TITUSVILLE, PA.—Strauss & Cohen, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

WASECA, MINN.—Arthur H. Ranney, stationer and publisher, has sold out.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Mr. OSCAR WILDE will cease to be the editor of the Woman's World after the appearance of the September number.

LAURENCE HUTTON will be the subject of the frontispiece portrait in the September Book Buyer, accompanied by a personal sketch.

Harper's Weekly, Aug. 21, contains a fourpage supplement devoted to an article on "The Development of the American Trotting Horse," from the pen of Charles Arnold McCully, and illustrated with fourteen sketches of horses and stables.

FROM Boston we have received the following somewhat indefinite and unauthenticated announcement: "Some Boston literary and newspaper men will bring out a new paper early in the fall. It will be unlike any other paper published and will be backed heavily with capital. The nature of this new enterprise will not confine its circulation to any one section, but its field will extend throughout the whole country."

THE No Name Magazine is the title of a new monthly to be started Oct. 1, by the American Press Co., 1524 John St., Baltimore. It will contain a feature of strong interest to the trade in a series of sketches, to begin with the first number, of "American Booksellers, past and present." Besides this contribution to the history of book-making in this country, each month will offer special literary articles, book notices, etc. The first number promises some unpublished poems of Poe, and a sketch of Mark Twain, as the opening article of a series to be known as "American Literary Portraits."

In the London Nineteenth Century for August the "Noticeable Books" reviewed are Fiske's "The Critical Period of American History," reviewed by John Morley; Lady Blennerhassett's "Frau von Staël," reviewed by W. S. Lilly; Doyle's "Micah Clarke," reviewed by R. E. Prothero; Siemens' "Scientific Papers," reviewed by Frederic Bramwell; William Morris' "A Tale of the House of the Wolfings," reviewed by Henry G. Hewlett; Janet's "Psychical Automatism," reviewed by Frederic W. H. Myers; and Wilfred Ward's "William George Ward and the Oxford Movement," reviewed by Hallam Tennyson. The same number contains a well-written article on "The Works of Henrik Ibsen," by Walter Frewen Lord.

Scribner's for September will have a valuable article by Lieut. W. W. Kimball, U. S. N., United States Inspector of Ordnance, describing the various types of magazine rifles which have been adopted by the leading European armies, including the Mannlicher, Hotchkiss, Lee, Mauser, and Vetterli. A number of illustrations will clearly show the ingenious magazine contrivances by which the cartridges are fed to the rifle. Andrew Lang will have a paper on Alexandre Dumas, and H. G. Prout an article on "Safety in Railway Travel," being the twelfth and last in the very successful Railroad Series. Harold Frederic, the author of "Seth's Brother's Wife," will begin a new serial in this number, an exciting romance of the Mohawk Valley, in the days of the French and Indian wars, and the Revolution. It is said that the story is full of local color and abounds with romantic tradition. Howard Pyle will illustrate every instalment.

PROF. JOHN A. PAINE, who wrote an article on "Pharaoh the Oppressor, and His Daughter." which attracted wide attention when it appeared in The Century two years ago, contributes to the September number of the same magazine a fully illustrated paper on "The Pharaoh of the Exo-dus, and His Son." He endeavors, by a search among the monuments, to fix the identity of this famous king, and to clear up the mystery of the smiting of his first-born son. The American artist, Mr. Theodore Wores, whose studies of Japanese life and landscape have recently attracted wide attention in New York and London, has written for the same number a paper on "As American Artist in Japan," for which a number of his oil-paintings have been engraved. Mr. Wores describes many Japanese traits of character which might be copied to advantage by nations which are generally considered more highly civilized. "An utter absence of sham," he says. "a perfect freedom from all affectation, constitutes one of their most admirable qualities. They show no false or veneered front to the world, the beauty of their homes lies more in the interior finish than in a showy outside, and the lining of their gowns is often of a more expensive and finer material than the outer stuff."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

Mr. H. S. SALT, the biographer of James Thomson, is now engaged in writing a life of Thoreau.

GEORGE KENNAN will shortly cease his lectures and settle down to the preparation of his Siberian papers for book-form.

MRS. KATHERINE CHASE, the daughter of Salmon P. Chase, is still at work on the life of her father. She lives at Edgewood, just outside of Washington.

THE author of the amusing and pathetic "Mickey Finn" papers which have appeared from time to time in the New York Sun is Mr. Ernest Jerrold, a clever young man of thirty. The papers will soon be brought out in book-form.

MRS. MAUD HOWE ELLIOTT, who is spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, at Newport, has just completed, so the Critic states, a novel for The Ladies' Home Journal, for which rumor says she was paid $1000. The scene of the story is laid in England, but the heroine is an American girl.

"MR. ROBERT BROWNING," says the Glasgow Herald, "is less fatigued by his arduous 'season' than the most giddy maid 'just out.' Mrs. Humphry Ward is writing her new book at a farmhouse in Surrey, waiting till her new home near Hazlemere is ready for occupation; Prof. and Mrs. Huxley are at Monte Generosa, in Switzerland; Prof. and Mrs. Tyndall are enjoying the delights of their Swiss châlet on Bel Alp; Mr. Grant Allein is about to pay a visit to Scotland; Mr. Thomas Hardy has deserted London for his beloved Wessex, and Mrs. Mona Caird has temporarily retired from this too-much-married land to regain health and strength from the sun cure in Southeastern Austria."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

CALLAGHAN & Co. will publish on October I volume 6 of Von Holst's "Constitutional History of the United States."

THE career of an old misanthrope is told in Bret Harte's forthcoming novel, "The Heritage of Dedlow Marsh."

MAX O'RELL'S book, "Jonathan and His Continent," has penetrated into Denmark, and an edition in the Danish will be published at Copenharen.

It is said that a life of the late Mr. John Cassell is to be written, and that it will be published by Cassell & Co., of which house he was the founder.

A. S. BARNES & Co. announce that the longpromised "The Three Germanys," by Theodore S. Fay, has now been issued in two octavo volumes, and copies will be furnished on application.

MARCH BROS., Lebanon, Ohio, have recently entered into an arrangement with Prof. R. N. Roark, whereby they have become the proprietors of a series of publications and supplies, devised and arranged by him, as aids to the study of the sciences.

JOHN C. YORSTON & Co., Cincinnati, O., have just ready Henry A. Shepherd's "The Antiquities of Ohio," reprinted from the "Popular History of the State of Ohio," giving a vast amount of archæological information illustrated with engravings made specially for the work.

A. LOVELL & Co. will publish in September "The Honors of the Empire State in the War of the Rebellion." It is by Thomas S. Townsend, who compiled the "Library of National Records." The New York organizations, their services, names of the dead, and those who returned from the front will have special mention.

"RECOLLECTIONS OF THE COURT OF THE TUIL-ERIES," by Madame Carette, is a recent book of reminiscences of the court of the last Napoleon, which is being widely read in France. It contains many memoirs of the Empress Eugénie. A translation is in hand, and will be published immediately by D. Appleton & Co.

W. H. MORRISON, Washington, D. C., has just published "Is Religion Dying?" by Rev. Dr. W. H. Platt. It is in the form of a symposium, such writers as Spencer, Macaulay, Tyndall, Huxley, Froude, and others being supposed present, and speaking their opinions, through extracts from their books.

Brentano's, New York, will publish during the latter part of August a novel called "Priest and Puritan," the plot of which turns on the love of a Methodist minister's son for the niece of a Catholic priest. The characters of the two clergymen are boldly drawn, and their nobility of heart plainly brought out by the difference in religious convictions which divides those dear to them.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just issued an American edition of F. Marion Crawford's new novel, "Sant' Ilario." In London, where it was first published, it is considered one of his best efforts. One critic says: "The plot is skilfully concocted and the interest sustained to the end, and as a story of incident it leaves little to be desired. The various events, romantic and even sensational, follow naturally and neatly, and the whole is a very clever plece of work."

The world-renowned author of the "Rise and Fall of the Confederate Government," Mr. Jefferson Davis, is not satisfied with the limited sale his work has had. He has complained so loudly of its failure as compared with the works of Grant and Sherman, that D. Appleton & Co., his publishers, have gained his consent to the appointment of arbitrators to decide the points at issue between them. The Messrs. Appletons attribute the slow demand made in the North for the book to the intense sectional spirit in which it is written.

THE LOUNGER writes in The Critic: "I heard the other day from an authority which I cannot dispute that 'The Century Dictionary' has cost the Century Co. over $500,000, and my informant added parenthetically that when the undertaking was begun, the Company had no idea that it would swallow up a sum approximating this. But like Topsey it 'grow'd." It has taken nearly seven years of the time of some of the best experts and specialists in the country, at an annual expense of not very much less than $100,000. This, I believe, is the first time the cost of making this great dictionary has been stated with any degree of accuracy."

"THE puzzled Briton has at last found out why American illustrated magazines are better than English," says Mr. G. W. Smalley in the N. Y. Tribune. "It is because the American Post-Office is wiser than the British, and American facilities for distributing magazines by post are so much superior to the British. In short, English rates are 300 per cent. higher than American. 'Harper's, Scribner's, and The Century,' says the puzzled Briton, airing his British grievances in print, 'invade our British markets by the favor of the British Postmaster General.' Yet he concedes that these magazines give better value for the money than their English rivals."

THE PACIFIC PRESS PUBLISHING Co. have just issued "The Federal Governmentof Switzerland," by Bernard Moses, Professor of History and Political Economy, University of California; also the Tourist's Edition of Col. J. M. Hutchings' noted work, "In the Heart of the Sierras, Yo-Semite Valley, and Big Tree Groves." The latest issue in their Sentinel Library Series is "The National Sunday Law," being the arguments of Alonzo T. Jones before the United States Senate Committee on Education and Labor, December 13, 1888. Mr. Jones' work, "Civil Government and Religion," is now ready.

I. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY announce for early publication "Gold that Did not Glitter," a new novel by the author of "Don Miff." In this story Mr. Dabney shows how completely the productions of the same pen may differ, without loss of individuality. The aggressiveness, political and religious, the reckless whimsicality and digressiveness characteristic of its predecessor are totally lacking in "Gold that Did not Glitter." The author is here a story-teller, pure and simple, without purpose other than the entertainment of his readers. None of the characters, none of the incidents recall, in the least, those of "Don Miff," yet no reader of that story can fail to recognize in this, at every turn, the same hand. The scene is laid partly in the city of New York and partly in Virginia.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. announce for early publication, "Literary Landmarks, A Guide to Good Reading for Young People, and Teachers' Assistant," by Mary E. Burt, Teacher of Literature in the Cook Co. Normal School, Englewood, Ill. This book has been prepared as a guide to those who are seeking to provide the best reading-mat-ter for children. The author has succeeded in her attempt to prove that a child can be taught to read with enjoyment books of our standard authors, and to acquire, in an incredibly short time. a discriminating taste for the best books and a knowledge of the great beacon-lights of literature. In addition to the numerous charts and original designs (prepared by Miss Burt and her pupils), the author has drawn up with great care a long list of the best books which cover the necessities of school libraries, teachers' books, and children's reading.

MR. PAUL LEICESTER FORD, whose address is No. 97 Clark Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., will have ready in September "American Bibliography: A Check-List of Bibliographies, Catalogues, Reference Lists, and Lists of Authorities of American Books and Subjects," a quarto volume printed on alternate pages, and containing 1070 titles, arranged by subject under 19 divisions and 150 subdivisions, with a classification of contents and an author's index. At the same time Mr. Ford will bring out his "Franklin Bibliography: a List of Books written by or relating to Benjamin Franklin," an edition of 500 copies uniform in size with Bigelow's octavo edition of Franklin's Works. No fewer than 1500 titles and references are promised, the lists of works wholly or in part written by Franklin numbering 600, and his pseudonyms amounting to 60. There will be chronological, classical, and general indices, and mention of the libraries where the works may be consulted.

KING'S ANNOTATED VEST-POCKET MAP OF MASSACHUSETTS" is the most perfect small man of the State that has ever appeared. It is put out in handsome and convenient shape, at a price of ten cents. It is one of the complete series of State maps, published by the Moses King Corporation, of Boston, the makers of the series of "King's Handbooks." the most notable of which is the forthcoming "King's Handbook of the United States." It is 20 by 12 inches in size, handsomely colored by counties. and has also a fine street map of Boston, and a map of Boston's suburbs for fifteen miles, on a scale of four miles to an inch. On the back of the map are printed twenty-four pages of valuable facts about Massachusetts, a history, description, list of governors, and many curious statistics of population, education, religious sects, railroads, comments, libraries, industries, chief hotels. etc., etc. Every citizen of or visitor to Massachusetts should have a copy of this dainty little map, with its convenient cover, just right for the vest-pocket or wallet.

THE forthcoming Pilgrim Prize Series of Sunday-school library books, to be published Sept. I by the Congregational Sunday-School and Publishing Society, is said by competent judges, who have read the manuscripts, to be one of the best sets of books distinctively for Sunday-school libraries ever issued. The titles and authors of the six volumes are as follows: "Rose and Thorn," by Katharine Lee Bates; "A Titled Maiden," by Caroline Atwater Mason; "The Hermit of Livry," by M. R. Housekeeper; "A Knot of Blue," by Lottie E. Street; "My Lady Nell," by Emily Weaver; " How He Made His Fortune," by Julia A. W. De Witt. Each book contains a complete story, and there is a remarkable variety of plot, character, and purpose in the series. All are worthy from a literary point of view, and some of them may be characterized as of unusual merit in that direction. Numerous and spirited illustrations by Frank P. Merrill and Caroline S. King add to the attractiveness of the volumes.

THE experiment has recently been made in London, by Sampson Low & Co., of publishing Blackmore's "Lorna Doone" in popular form at 50 cents. Over twenty thousand copies of this new issue were sold during the first fortnight, and it is still going like hot cakes. A similar experiment is being tried with Hardy's "Far from the Madding Crowd."

WE learn from the London letter in the New York Times of Sunday that a most unexpected literary novelty is announced in England in the form of a new series of letters by the famous Lord Chesterfield. "The correspondence in question is considerably later in date than the celebrated letters to his son, and was addressed to his cousin and heir, the fifth earl through the death of his grandson in 1871, who caught typhoid fever at the same shooting party which nearly killed the Prince of Wales. These old letters passed to his sister, Lady Carnarvon. They are now prepared for the press by Lord Carnarvon, and are said to be quite as remarkable and valuable in a way as their classic predecessors."

For 1889 (Seventeenth Year).

Large 8vo, about 3000 pages. With Duplex Index. Cloth, $2.00.

The Trade List Annual for 1889 will contain:

- The latest CATALOGUES OF AMERICAN PUBLISHERS, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names and smaller lists at the end of the volume.
- 2. A complete list by author, title, and subject of all books recorded in the Publishers' Weekly from January to June, 1889, supplementing the Annual Catalogue, 1888.
- 3. The "EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE" for 1889, which is used by the entire trade and educational interests as the most representative reference-list of School-books.

The above Lists, all bound in one volume, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase or sale of books.

The patent "DUPLEX INDEX" having given such general satisfaction, we are now applying it to all copies of the "Annual." Volumes supplied with the "DUPLEX INDEX" have the alphabet printed on the concave surface as well as on the margin of the page, which enables instantaneous reference, whether the book is open or shut.

Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be despatched by express unpaid. Parties so desiring can have their copies sent by mail, or by prepaid book-rate express for 80 cents per copy extra.

WE desire to inform the trade that we are now at work on the Fall Announcement Number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, and will therefore thank publishers if they will send us at once as full information as they may be ready to give of books to be issued during the fall and holiday season. Please give the full title, size, and price, as well as a description of the work in hand, whenever possible. As it is desirable to have this issue in circulation early in September, it is important that all information as well as advertising copy reach us at the earliest possible moment.

NOTES IN SEASON.

I SASSELL & COMPANY have just ready Max O'Rell's new book, "Jacques Bonhomme," a lively description of French manners and customs, to which is added "John Bull on the Continent" and "From my Letter-Box."

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish at once a new and revised edition of Annie Ayres' "Life of Dr. Muhlenberg." It will contain some new matter, including a fac-simile of "I would not live alway." Instead of a cramped twelvemo, this fourth edition will be printed on larger and heavier paper to make a handsome octavo wolume.

LEE & SHEPARD will publish this week an original book of fantastic travels and adventures by Ingersoil Lockwood, editor of The Book-Lover and literary editor of The Bookmaker. It is entitled "Little Baron Trump and His Wonderful Dog," and contains a number of illustrations by the eminent artist, Wharton Edwards. They have also just ready "Every-Dav Business," by M. S. Emery, being notes on its practical details, arranged for young people; "Speaking Pieces, for Little Scholars and Older Pupils," by Ellen Ortensa Black;" and "Observation Lessons in the Primary Schools," by Lousia P. Hopkins, a manual for teachers presenting practical methods for teaching elementary science to the young.

A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago, will publish shortly, "Fact, Fancy, and Fable," by H. F. Reddall, a work of comprehensive and cyclopædic character, presenting concise information on a great variety of subjects, sufficient for the needs of the ordinary reader who wishes to look up, without too much delay and trouble, the references and allusions he may find in his daily readings. They also announce, "Opening the Oyster, a story of adventure," by Charles L. Marsh. The oyster is the world ("The world's mine oyster"), and it is opened in a most novel and successful manner by two young men, who set out from New York, afoot and penniless, under a wager to visit forty specified cities in all quarters of the globe and return in five years. They win their wager, with several months to spare; and in doing it they encounter all sorts of strange adventures and odd experiences, which are narrated with an air of reality and naturalness that reminds one of De Foe.

THE FALL TRADE SALE.

GEORGE A. LEAVITT & Co. announce that the regular Annual Fall Trade Sale will begin on September 17. The following publishers have already sent consignments: Lee & Shepard, Worthington Company, Cassell & Co., Pollard & Moss, A. D. Worthington & Co., Scribner & Welford, D. & J. Sadlier & Co., Humboldt Publishing Co., S. C. Griggs & Co., National Publishing Co., F. F. Lovell & Co., Keystone Publishing Co., J. W. Bouton, White & Allen, E. Meeks, John Highlands, Garretson & Co., R. A. Saalfield, A. T. Loyd & Co., M. & R. Burgheim, E. B. Treat. Amies Publishing Co., Tibbals Book Co., Selmar Hess, J. O'Kane, L. A. Morrison, Brentano's, A. S. Barnes & Co., Reeves & Turner, Swam Sonnen-. schein & Co., H. Sotheran & Co., Vizetelly & Co., B. Quaritch, and several stationery manufacturing houses. A number of other contributors are expected. During the sale J. S. Virtue & Co., of London, will offer fifty sets of plates of art works said to represent an original cost of upwards of two hundred thousand dollars.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

An English story of Sussex. The scenes are all taken from farm life, the Maliphants being farmers descending from an cient race of farmers. Joyce and Margaret Maliphants ethe heroines—Margaret being the teller of the story. Two lovers come to woo the girls, the neighboring squire and Captain Forrester of the English army. Added to these is the bailiff of the Maliphant farm, whom both the girls love, and who is the central figure of a most tempestuous episode. The many misunderstandings growing out of the pride and temper of all parties furnish material for the greater part of Margaret's story. The old father and mother are picturesque figures, strongly portrayed.

ton's town and country lib., no. 35.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

The author speaks of the story of Beatrice Cope as one "fragrant with the sweetness of unselfish love and high romantic courage." When Beatrice was five years add her father suffered death at the block, through his devotion to the Stuarts. She grows up among her mother's people, staunch Hanoverians, who do not tell her of her lather's fate until she is a young lady. Then when engaged to a Royalist soldier, her heart faithful to the uncle and aunt who have cared for her, comes the struggle of her life. Her brother, long thought dead, appears in Bng-and as a trusted agent of the Pretender. He is suspected und hunted from place to place. She endeavors to shield tim and almost loses her lover in her efforts, and almost breaks her own heart, in her divided love. The story is disply and beautifuly narrated.

The Publishers' Notice says: "This is not a work of instruction so much as a book of direct application, ininstruction so much as a book of direct application, intended as it is to meet the every-day wants of the practical engineer, draughtsman, and mechanic in his workshop, and is the first of its kind ever published. The time and labor expended upon it can be estimated by attempting to compile a single table of proportions such as are employed. These tables are not made up by diagrams and assumed proportions, but are the result of actual practice and worked out from complete drawings. The references comprised are those constantly required in actual practice; in fact, the selection is made by noting for a number of years the relative frequency of references to the different subjects in the work." The author has been engaged in constructive engineering work for over 35 years at home and abroad.

The story of a young country girl, who comes to Saratoga to make her home with some wealthy relatives. She has beauty, health, and a good disposition, but is unused to polite society and inclined to rebel against those little usages which in city circles are indicative of good breeding. Little by little, however, she comes to see that what she calls independence is really rudeness, and that by persisting in ignoring social rules she is not only drawing ridicule upon herself, but is making it very unpleasant for her friends. She finally develops into a charming young lady. The story is rich in hints which will be of immense service to girls who wish to know of the minor customs of society. know of the minor customs of society.

THE one-alphabet "record of new books" in this year's ANNUAL supplements the ANNUAL CATALOGUE of 1888, being a six-months' list covering January-June, 1889. The ANNUAL CAT-ALOGUE is still in print, and can be had at $3 sheets, $3.50 half leather. If there is any one who thinks he does not get enough for his money in the Annual, with Duplex Index, at $2, and is inclined to grumble that a full year's list is not included, we can only plead that our bibliographical record increases in extent and cost each year, as more and more books are issued and as more adequate organization enables us to make the record more nearly complete, and that it is therefore necessary to distribute that cost among the several publications and to look to the An-NUAL CATALOGUE for a part of the return. This has been acknowledged the best annual trade bibliography yet attempted in any country, and we hope that increasing support will assure its permanency. The edition for 1888 is limited, and insufficient to supply all taking the TRADE LIST Annual who have not ordered the Annual Cata-LOGUE. Orders will be filled as received until the supply is exhausted. As to Whitaker's English Reference Catalogue, Mr. Whitaker writes that he is not certain he can get together any more copies for us, the English orders having exhausted his supply, and the late orders now registered at this office unfilled quite cover all we can possibly hope to receive. Those who were late in their orders have only themselves to thank that they miss this invaluable work.

A UNITED STATES LIBRARY.

WALTER S. CHURCH, in a communication to the New York Times for August 28, presents the following novel and pertinent suggestion:

"Wherever the World's Fair may be held, public attention is hereby called to the magnificent display that might be made at it of the book output of the United States, more especially of its industrial literature. Nothing of the kind (worth mentioning) has ever been attempted in the expositions of this or any other country, nor does there exist anywhere in the United States anything approaching to a creditable collection of this sort. Including as it should the general and State and municipal reports on agriculture, mines, railroads, canals, river and harbor improvements, water-works, reports of navy and army, reports of Government, State, and city engineers, boards of trade, produce, exchange, manufactures, geological and trigonometrical surveys, professional and technical journals, valuable trade circulars, statistics of all sorts, etc.

" In all of these our busy, thinking, acting, writing population has been wonderfully prolific. Hitherto the United States has made great exhibits of almost everything but books. In the matter of libraries we are abashed. Not even the library of Congress can boast of three-fourths of a million volumes. Forty-seven of our largest libraries aggregate only 5,000,000 volumes, whereas the three greatest libraries of Europe (those at Paris, London, and St. Petersburg) alone sum up over 4,000,000.

"In 1892, if Congress and the several State Legislatures and the patriotism of private parties be properly appealed to, the response would be a gathering of the books, reports, periodicals, maps, drawings, etc., that would set forth our industrial growth in a manner almost as surprising to ourselves as astounding to the outside wirld. Millions of books might be contributed by private parties and corporations alone. Cannot we provide a building (or series of them) on the fair grounds, individualizing the contributions of the several States? Then memorialize Congress for the contibution of all its publications and such an appropriation of money as shall be required to gather, transport, and display them.

"Appoint a general Library Committee to solicit, receive, acknowledge, and arrange the books on the fair grounds. Appeal to each Legislature, also, to gather and forward and defray the transportation, etc., of its own collection. Each State to appoint its own Library Committee, seek contributions from its several county, municipal, town, and village authorities, also from corporations and private parties. Interest all our great bibliopoles, our colleges and libraries to forward their 'duplicates.' Accumulate (as far as it can be done without purchase) all the standard works of our best authors and authoresses-works on law, education, religion, history, etc., each volume to be inscribed, 'Presented to the great World's Fair of 1802 by-

ENGLISH OPPOSITION TO THE PRO-POSED CANADIAN COPYRIGHT LAW.

From the Canadian Bookseller.

FROM information we have received from several of our correspondents, we are led to believe that the British publishers are bound to oppose in every possible way the new Copyright Act passed by the Dominion Parliament last spring, and also call upon the Imperial Government to veto the said act.

These publishers contend that the Imperial Copyright Act, under which we in Canada have been groaning for many years, is good enough for colonists; that they have the exclusive right to legislate in matters of copyright for us who reside outside the British Islands; and that our new act simply means "confiscation,"

Well, we fail to see things in this light. For many years the British publisher has considered Canada as his own exclusive property, and has never hesitated when it suited his purpose, and when he could make money at our expense, to sell our market to a United States publisher, and thus deprive our paper-makers, printers, bookbinders, and publishers of thousands of dollars annually which they could have made had this matter been properly looked after by the Government years ago.

By the Copyright Law, now in dispute, things will be greatly simplified. It provides that any British subject wishing to obtain copyright for his book in Canada must have it printed and published here, and failing to take the necessary steps within a certain period to accomplish this end, then the Canadian printer or publisher may step in and do the work for him, allowing him a fair percentage, as fixed by law, on the selling price of the book, and the proceeds of such royalty is collected by Government from the publisher and forwarded to the author. What can be fairer than this to all concerned?

When Sir John D. Thompson, Minister of Justice, was drafting the bill, he was particularly careful that no injustice should be done either to the British copyright owner, the Canadian public, or the Canadian publisher, and under these circumstances we are pretty sure all the power the British publishers or authors can bring to bear on the Imperial Government will not induce that august body to veto our act before the Dominion Government will have its say on the subject.

When this matter of copyright was first gone into by the Copyright Association of Canada, the opposition now shown by our dog-in-the-manger cousins across the Atlantic was fully reckoned on, and it was not before our clever Minister of Justice had carefully considered the question in all its bearings did he commit the Government, of which he is such a worthy member, to the principles of this act. And, moreover, the Government's action was unanimously sustained by both the House of Commons and Senate of Canada, and under these circumstances we need have no fear of the outcome of the fish.

A BOOKSELLER'S LIBRARY.

Preface to the Publishers' Trade List Annual for 180.

In presenting the "Publishers' Trade List Annual" for its seventeenth year, we take occasion to state anew the relation of the "Annual" in the general scheme of bibliography worked out by the office of the Publishers' Weekly as the representative of the American book trade, and to answer certain queries and criticisms which inevitably come to us after the publication of each volume. The current year has been notable for the publication of two most important book-trade helps-Whitaker's "Reference Catalogue to Current Literature," the English progeny of our ows "Trade List Annual;" and Caspar's "Directory of the American Book and Stationery Trade with its remarkable bibliographical appendix. Both these throw much light on the general problems of bibliographical publication and on its necessary limitations.

Whitaker's "Reference Catalogue" was first published in 1874, and its direct outcome from Mr. Leypoldt's "Uniform Trade List Annual" was very handsomely acknowledged by Mr. Whitaker in his original preface. The striking new feature of the English issue was its index of 83 pages, containing short titles, mostly arranged by subject, of about 14,000 books. The work was originally intended to be an annual, and was issued again in 1875, but its preparation dragged, largely because of the index, and the later volumes appeared at longer intervals, coming in 1877, 1880, The latest issue is an enormous 1885, and 1889. book, probably the stoutest single volume published, to inches thick and weighing 12 lbs. It contains the list of about 130 publishers and is brought up to the winter and autumn of 1888. The extraordinary feature is the index, which embraces references by short titles to nearly all the books included in these catalogues and covers about 350 pages and over 68,500 references. The work is so extremely valuable that the entire edition has been taken up at once, and though a fair share was allotted to America the supply was exhausted immediately after its receipt here. The book does an enormous service to both the English and the American trade. At our request Mr. Whitaker has kindly sent us a full account of his methods, difficulties, and outlay in the publication of this volume, which fully confirms the position we have taken as to an index for the "Trade List Annual." The index required nine months in its preparation; the result was that the catalogues of 1888 are not presented to the trade until 1889 in the late spring, so that practically they are of chief use in the fall of the year succeeding publication and thereafter. In other words, the inclusion of even a short-title index of this character makes the work about a year behindhand. Its cost has been so great that the entire profit, on work of very great detail and trouble, will be within $500, and the edition is exhausted, so that there is no possibility of crease of this amount. This of course is totally inadequate for the single item of the general torial work which Mr. Whitaker himself has done. The cost of compiling such an index and putting it in type would be so much greater in this country that it would involve many hundred dollars' loss, in addition to the delay, which would make annual publication impossible.

Caspar's "Directory" is an equally valuable work, which has been so long in progress that the trade began to look upon it as almost a myth. It shows a wonderful deal of careful labor, and on the whole is fairly free from those mistakes which must necessarily in some number creep into a work of this magnitude, published for the first time, whose preparation has extended over so many years. The features included in Part 6, which indeed makes a manual on the theory and practice of the book trade and kindred branches of remarkable extent and detail, are really an extension of some of the features included in or planned for the early volumes of the "Trade List Annual," so that the second part of the Directory may be taken as a complement of the "Trade List Annual" in one sense, while Whitaker's volume complements it in another sense in giving English books as the "Trade List Annual" gives American books. The three works, together with the Annual Catalogues and American Catalogue, make an almost complete bookseller's library of to-day. Mr. Caspar, as has been stated, has been at work on this "Directory" for several years, and his outlay at this writing exceeds his returns, not by hundreds, but by thousands of dollars. The work is so useful that it is to be hoped that the appreciation of the trade will make good this deficit. But his experience as well as that of Mr. Whitaker shows how close is the margin of profit and loss on bibliographical publications.

We have suggested by these examples the reasons which limit the prefatory material of our own "Trade List Annual." More than one subscriber has suggested that the "Annual" should contain an index, not only by author, but by author, title, and subject, and not only to the books comprised in the catalogues, but "to other books in print." To attempt this would delay the publication of the "Annual" for a year or more, and the coup de grâce would be given to the general work of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY office, unless the same courtesy of accepting ten cents or so on the dollar should be extended to it as has been extended in other directions of the book trade from time to time. We do not desire to do business on that basis, and prefer to confine our bibliographical publications to giving the most that can be given at a hundred cents on the dollar. But next we are asked why, instead of making the publication annual, we do not make it biennial, and thus obtain time and force for an index. The answer to this is as before, with the further consideration that a great part of the value of this system of binding catalogues together is in having them fresh and up to date and that the present margin on the "Trade List Annual" is so little that it would not be worth while to undertake it, if that small profit were to be distributed through two or three years. The "Trade List Annual" with the prefatory matter now contained in it has probably reached its final shape, including as it does the "Educational Catalogue," to which every bookseller needs constantly to refer, and the "Record of New Books" by author, title, and subject during the half year which has elapsed since the "Annual Catalogue" which preceded it. It is now a consistent part of our general scheme of bibliography, it presenting a full finding-list to the books of the half year preceding its publication. Behind this are the "Annual Catalogue" of the year previous and its predecessors, and behind these the five yearly "American Catalogues," and behind this the great "American Catalogue" of 1876. It is impossible, in our judgment and in the light of our experience, to present any better bibliographical apparatus which will pay for itself, and, of course, any enterprise which does not pay for itself cannot be permanent. It is to be hoped that with the year 1000 it may be possible to prepare a new catalogue including all the American books of the nineteenth century and then to start afresh with a new system of American trade bibliography, interlocked with a cooperative English system and made adequate in the light of the experiences of our own day. But this is an enormous undertaking, involving an expenditure exceeding $25,000 and possibly approaching $50,-000. and can only be carried out by the cooperation of the entire book trade and library system. For the present, we trust the American book trade is well and fairly served by the bibliography system which we have indicated, and we hope for the success of such of its various features as will assure the permanency of all—particularly of the "Annual Catalogue," which has so far not been as fully appreciated by the trade as the "Trade List Annual.'

BUSINESS NOTES.

ASPEN, Col.—Carberry & Beard, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

ELMIRA, N. Y.—Fitch & Billings, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

Lowell, Mass.—We notice in the Lowell evening Citisen of a recent date an appreciative sketch of the house of J. Merrill & Son. The name of this firm is familiar not only to the citizens of Lowell, but throughout the United States. This business was first established in 1845, at the corner of Middle and Central Streets, where it remained until 1860, when a change of location was made to 37 Merrimack Street. Here they were located until some years ago, when they moved to their present location at 80 Central Street. Mr. Frank M. Merrill is now the sole proprietor, although the business is carried on under the old firm-name. This house is nearly as old as the city itself and its history is a part of it.

MADISON, KAN.—W. C. Martindale, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

Madison, Neb.—Wilburger & Husband, book sellers, have sold out.

' MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Richter Brothers' bookstock has been damaged by fire.

SPOKANE FALLS, WASH. TER.—Ament & Palmer, stationers and newsdealers, have been burned out.

SPOKANE FALLS, WASH. TER.—The Glabe Publishing Company and Knight & Brown, booksellers and stationers, have been burned out.

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—J. M. Hudson, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

OPHELIA NESBITT REID and Frank Sutton have just finished in collaboration a novel of life in New York and Washington called "Old John Stainer."

THE Rev. A. K. Glover, B.Sc., Ph.D., will shortly publish a small volume entitled "The Jews of the Far East, or, the Jews of the extreme Eastern Diaspora," with the original Chinese texts of the inscriptions discovered at Kalfung-tû.

As a result of the imprisonment of Mr. Vizetelly for the publication of Zola's translations, his firm has suppressed Henri Murger's "Vie de Bohème," and Chatto & Windus have burned all their remaining stock of "Boccaccio," "Rabelais," and other medieval classics.

MRS. H. R. HAWRIS has in the press with Messrs. Sampson Low & Co. a new work entitled "The Art of Housekeeping." "The form adopted," says the Athenaum," is a series of letters supposed to be written to her young daughter, giving detailed and practical instruction in the mysteries of 'keeping house.'"

SPIELHAGEN has written a tendens-novelle called "The New Pharaoh" in which he depicts the heartlessness and libertinism of bureaucrats in modern Germany. One of the characters is an American girl who sacrifices her virtue for the love of a selfish, impudent young German and horsewhips him only when his real character appears. Conservative papers interpret the novel as an attack on the Bismarckian state of things in Germany.

IOURNALISTIC NOTES.

HOWARD PYLE, the author of "The Wonder-Clock" and "Pepper and Salt," began a new series of his fairy tales, illustrated by himself, in the number of Harper's Young People dated August 27. The first one is entitled "That Which Is Done Never Dies."

Harper's Weekly, August 28, contains an illustrated article on the New York Yacht Club's new club-house at Newport. G. T. Ferris in the same number describes, in a profusely illustrated article, the present and some proposed terminal facilities in New York City.

THE Boston Advertiser in its issue for August 29. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes' birthday, prints a special paper, containing an article on the "Autocrat" by Frank B. Sanborn, his personal friend letters from all his surviving college classmates, Harvard, 1829, and other contributions which make it the feature of Boston journalism this summer.

The New England Magazine, an illustrated monthly, will be published at once in Boston, under the control of Dr. E. E. Hale and Edwin D. Mead. While largely devoted to the past of New England, the articles will not be confined to local topics. Short biographies of Parnell and Gladstone, papers on the French settlements in America, remarkable cities in New England, and fiction in prose and verse are among the "attractions" promised during the first year.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week. SEFTEMBER 16, 10 A.M.—Fall Parcel Sale.—Esekiel & Bernkeim, Cincinnati.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

"SWALLOW HOME IN SOUTH AFRICA" is the title of a new volume of travel announced for immediate publication by Mr. Elliot Stock.

GEORGE M. BAKER, with Lee & Shepard has been kept from his business for about three months, we regret to learn, owing to sickness.

Sampson Low, Marston & Co. have in the press "Trooper and Redskin: recollections of life in the Northwest Mounted Police, Canada, 1884 to 1888," by John G. Donkin, late corporal N. W. M. P.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish early in the fall a revised edition of Mr. Alfred Austin's poem, "The Human Tragedy," which will contain likewise a prefatory essay on "The Present Position and Prospects of Poetry."

PROF. MAX MÜLLER'S lectures on the "Science of Language, and its Place in General Education," which were recently delivered at the Oxford University Extension Meeting, will be published shortly by Longmans, Green & Co.

This fall there will be published, simultaneously in England and in America, a History of England, on which Dr. Aubrey has been engaged for some years. "It is written in a popular style and on a novel plan," says the London Academy. "With due regard to chronological arrangement, subordinate matters are grouped around central incidents; special attention is given to critical and formative periods. The chief design is to trace the growth of the national life and character, and the struggle for public rights and liberties."

"MAYGROVE: A FAMILY HISTORY," is the title of a new work by the author of "Miss Bayle's Romance" and "A Modern Brigand," which Bentley & Son will publish in the autumn. "Not only will an agnostic figure among the personages," says the London Athenaus, "but a modern positivist and the notable professors of Comte's religion are intended to give variety to its pages. As it is no longer any secret that Mr. Fraser Rae is the author of the above works, his name will appear on the title-page of 'Maygrove.'"

WE regret to hear of the news of the disappearance of Mr. William Jones, for twenty years a trusted employé of E. H. Butler & Co., of Philadelphia. It is alleged that he is short in his accounts with the firm considerably over ten thousand dollars. Mr. Jones is a bachelor, and has for years lived alone in an old-fashioned residence in Germantown, where he is said to have gathered together an exceedingly valuable library and a large collection of antiques of all kinds. These, we understand, have been turned over to his late employers in partial restitution of his shortage.

In October Messrs. Ridgway will publish a work on "The Stuart Dynasty: short outlined studies of its rise, course, and early exile," the last branch of the subject told from papers in the Royal Library at Windsor Castle, by Mr. Percy M. Thornton. The appendix will contain agood deal of matter hitherto unpublished, including letters of Lord Bolingbroke; of the Chevalier & St. George on the expedition of 1715; and of the Duke of Berwick, some of whose letters explain his absence from that campaign. The book, hoped, will be brought out simultaneously in England and America.

A HIGH distinction has been indirectly con ferred upon Harper's periodicals at the Paris Exposition, in that twenty-five of their artists have received awards. First medals were given to Edwin A. Abbey, C. S. Reinbart, L. O. Merson, and J. F. Raffaelli. Frederick Remington and Rosina Emmet Sherwood received second medals. Frank D. Millet, Alfred Parsons, H. F. Farny, Gilbert Gaul, Alfred Bramtot, and Ch. Rochegrosse, all received third medals. J. G. Brown, Joseph Pennell, W. H. Drake, and Charles H. Joseph Pennell, W. H. Drake, and Charles H. Theriat were honorably mentioned. For engraving, Ch. Baude and A. Leveillé received first medals; William B. Closson, A. Bellinger, and John P. Davis, second medals; William Aikman and S. G. Putman, third medals, and G. Kruell and Henry Wolf, honorable mention.

T. FISHER UNWIN announces the Adventure Series, which will deal both with the lives of men and women who have been remarkable as individuals for adventurous careers, and with the narratives of those who, banded together, have passed through danger and difficulty. Among the earlier volumes will be Trelawney's "Adventures of a Younger Son," "Adventurous Women," "Escapes from Captivity," "Remarkable Buccaneers," "The Adventures of Foreigners in Buccaneers," The Adventures of Folegards in Britain," "The Moravian Missionaries," "The Jesuits in the Far East," "Irish Adventurers," "Adventurous Scotchmen." The Adventure Section of the Adventu ries is primarily intended to amuse, and the publisher will therefore give preference, where it is possible, to autobiographies over compilations. The volumes will be edited by different hands, and will be illustrated with cuts and por-

GEORGE BELL & Sons have in preparation a new series of cheap illustrated volumes dealing with subjects relating to the farm, called Bell's Agricultural Series. The first volume, to be published in the course of next month, is "The Farm and Dairy," written by Prof. J. P. Sheldon, formerly of the Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester, and of the Downton College of Agriculture, and late Special Commissioner of the Canadian Government. Other volumes to follow shortly are: "Manures and Their Uses," by Dr. A B. "riffiths, late Principal of the School of Science, Lincoln; "Practical Fruit Growing," a treatise on planting, growing, and storage of hardy fruits for market and private growers, by Mr. J. Cheal; "Feeding Stock," by Mr. Henry Evershed; "Soils and Their Management," by Mr. William Fream; and "The Diseases of Crops and Their Remedies," by Dr. A. B. Griffiths. Each volume will consist of about 160 pages, crown octavo, illustrated, and will be published at halfa-crown.

For 1889 (Seventeenth Year).

Large 8vo, about 3000 pages. With Duplex Index. Cloth, $2.00.

The Trade List Annual for 1889 will contain:

- The latest CATALOGUES OF AMERICAN PUBLISHERS, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm-names and smaller lists at the end of the volume.
- 2. A complete list by author, title, and subject of all books recorded in the Publishers' Weekly from January to June, 1889, supplementing the Annual Catalogue, 1888.
- 3. The "EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE" for 1889, which is used by the entire trade and educational interests as the most representative reference-list of School-books.

The above Lists, all bound in one volume, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase or sale of books.

The patent "DUPLEX INDEX" having given such general satisfaction, we are now applying it to all copies of the "Annual." Volumes supplied with the "DUPLEX INDEX" have the alphabet printed on the concave surface as well as on the margin of the page, which enables instantaneous reference, whether the book is open or shut.

Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be despatched by express unpaid. Parties so desiring can have their copies sent by mail, or by prepaid book-rate express for 80 cents per copy extra.

Part V. gives the special nature of the various houses, enabling one to reach all firms with only such catalogues, circulars, etc., as may, by the character of their business, be of special interest to them. In this division all Publishers, Book Jobbers, Booksellers, Antiquarian Booksellers, News Companies, Newsdealers, Art Emporiums, Music Dealers, Manufacturing, Jobbing, and Retail Stationers, Blank-Book and Paper Makers, etc., will be separately classified and arranged in alphabetical order.

Part VI. embraces the Theory and Practice of the Book, News, and Stationery Trade, a list of Trade-Bibbiographies and Trade-Journals, etc., etc. This section will prove of value to younger Booksellers, Newsdealers, or Stationers, and especially to inexperienced Dealers.

It is estimated that the Directory, when completed, will contain the addresses of nearly

PUBLISH THIS DAY:

Benjamin Franklin.

In the Series of American Statesmen. By JOHN T. MORSE, Jr., author of the volumes on John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and John Quincy Adams, in this series. 16mo, gilt top. $1.25; half morocco. $2.50.

Without question, Franklin should be included in any list of eminent American statesmen, for the noble combibutions he made to the important discussions of his time, and for the great public services he rendered. The book written by Mr. Morse for this series assure the excellence of his volume on Franklin.

Two Coronets.

A Novel. By MARY AGNES TINCKER, author of "Signor Monaldini's Niece," etc. 12mo, $1.50.

This story begins in Italy with such incidents of social conspiracy as seem to flourish in Italian life. It afterwards alternates between Italy and New England, and the sharp contrasts of scenery, character, and customs in its two countries form the back ground of a story full of movement, social engineering, circumventing of counts as countesses, with quiet areas of genuine New England family affection and content. A certain alertness in the New England love-making, and an apprehension while in Italy that something tragic is immediately imminent, with many other engaging qualities of incident and style, will enlist the hearty interest of the many thousand readen this noteworthy novel is sure to have.

Recollections of Mississippi.

By the Hon. REUBEN DAVIS. I vol., 8vo, $3.00.

In this book, which has many features of autibiography, the Hon. Reuben Davis, of Mississippi, gives a very graphic description of life in the South for the half century before the Civil War. Its social life, its lawlessness and chivalry, its political and professional contests, are portrayed very effectively.

Literary Landmarks.

A Guide to Good Reading for Young People, and Teachers' Assistant. By MARY E. Burt, Teachers of Literature in the Cook County Normal School at Englewood, Illinois. With charts. 1600, 75 cents.

Miss Burt's experience as a teacher of literature, in which she has been singularly successful, has enabled heres prepare a little handbook which is not merely a guide to the best books for young people, but an economical spins of reading, good for all ages.

English and Scottish Popular Ballads.

Edited by Prof. Francis J. Child, of Harvard University. An Edition de Luxe, strictly limited to one thousand copies. In eight parts, each part containing about 250 pages. Part VI. In perial 410, $5.00, net.

The Saturday Review, of London, says: "Professor Child's books, exquisitely printed on fine paper, sapply and once a joy to the bibliophile and an opulent treasure to the student of old customs and old songs. Mr. Child's learning, perseverance, sense, and good taste are all beyond praise."

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish this nonth Robert Louis Stevenson's "Master of Ballantrae."

THOMAS WHITTAKER has in press a volume enitled "Jacob and Japheth, or, Bible growth and eligion from Abraham to Daniel," by the author if "God in Creation," an attempt to "refute the false theories of Rénan."

STREET & SMITH, publishers of the New York Weekly, etc., have begun a new series of fiction o be entitled The Primrose Edition. It will conain new copyright stories by popular American anhors, and will be neatly printed and bound in loth to sell at $1 retail. The first issue will be 'Another Man's Wife," a new novel by Bertha

M: Clay, with numerous illustrations. The publishers offer a liberal discount to the trade on this series.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish immediately in their International Educational Series a volume on "European Schools," containing a report of the observations made in a ten-months' journey through the schools of Germany, France, Austria, and Switzerland, by Prof. L. R. Klemm, of the Cincinnati Technical School; also, "Giraldi, or, the curse of love," a clever novel by Ross George Dering, in their Town and Country Library.

D. LOTHROP Co. will issue at once a quaint, delightful story for young people, by an English author, entitled "Three Little Maids;" also a story, by Nellie Blessing Eyster, of early colonial days, full of peril and adventure, called "A Colonial Boy." This firm seem just now to be making somewhat of a specialty of stories of sea life in various forms. They have just issued Julius A. Palmer's "One Voyage," a chatty romance of cabin adventure and ocean peril, and have one of W. L. Alden's inimitable stories for boys in progress, "The Loss of the Swansea;" while the career of a bright little street urchin in the U. S. Navy is told by himself in Mary B. Crowninshield's popular style, under the title of "Plucky Smalls;" and the long-looked for sequel to "Boy Life in the U. S. Navy," by H. H. Clark, is promised soon, under the name of "Naval Cadet Bentley."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish to-day in the series of American Statesmen "Benjamin Franklin," by John T. Morse, Jr., the editor of the series and author of the volumes on John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and John Quincy Adams; "Two Coronets." a novel by Mary Agnes Tincker, the story of which begins in Italy with such incidents of social conspiracy as seem to flourish in Italian life, and afterwards alternates between Italy and New England, the sharp contrasts of scenery, character, and custom in the two countries forming the background; "Recollections of Mississippi," by the Hon. Reuben Davis, a graphic description of life in the South for the half century before the civil war; "Literary Landmarks," a guide to good reading for young people, by Mary E. Burt, Teacher of Literature in the Cook County Normal School at Englewood, Illinois, with charts; and Part 1v. of Child's "English and Scottish Popular Ballads."

HARPER & Bros. have just ready "A History of the Kansas Crusade: its friends and its foes," by Eli Thayer, who planned and organized the movement by which Kansas was made a free State, with an introduction by Edward Everett Hale, a fellow-worker with Mr. Thayer in the emigration cause; "Man and His Maladies," popular handbook of physiology and domestic medicine, by A. E. Bridger; and No. 6 of the "Franklin Square Song Collections," edited by J. P. McCaskey. In fiction they have ready Walter Besant's "Children of Gibeon," a story of the London working girl, and a cheap edition of Richard Malcolm Johnston's Georgia story en-titled "Ogeechee Cross-Firings;" and for children "Captain Polly," by Sophie Swett, and "Princess Liliwinkins, and Other Stories," by Henrietta Christian Wright," both illustrated by Rosina Emmet Sherwood, the only woman who received a medal of honor in the American art section at the Paris Exposition.

The fact that Jeremiah Pennycomequick was fasely reported drowned in a flood that caused much damage to life and property in Yorkshire, is the reason that this story was written. All its events hang upon the fact that with the flood he disappears, and that his relatives that he dislikes administer to his property, partially destroy a will he has made, and otherwise treat badly those he had loved and provided for. Jeremiah's illness and wanderings and final return to his old home is one side of the story, the other relates to his nephews and sister, and two young girls, adopted daughters, that he had loved dearly. One of these girls, "Salome," to whom he had left everything, is a beautiful character. Her married life has both shadows and sunshine, the latter eventually predominating. predominating.

13+120 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Alfred Binet, the collaborator of Ribot and Féré, and one of the most eminent representatives of the French school of psychology, has presented in this work the most important results of recent investigations into the world of micro-organisms. Especial use has been made of the investigations of Balbiani. Claparède, and Lachman, Maupas, Ribot, Engelmann, Pouchet. Weber, Pfeffer, Kent, Dujardin, Gruber, Nussbaum, Butschli, Lieber

The most interesting chapters are those on fecundation which demonstrate the same instincts and vital powers to exist in spermatozoids as are found in animals of higher organization.

Blouet, Paul. ["Max O'Rell," pseud.] Jacques Bonhomme; John Bull on the Continent; From my letter-box. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1889.] 7+168 p. D. pap., 50 c.
Three of Max O'Rell's characteristic efforts.

first and longer narrative is a highly complimentary picture of his own countrymen, written in the half-humorous style of his other works. "John Bull on the Continent" is a little satire on the Englishman's peculiarities. The selection of letters from his letter-box are most amusing.

Pay, Theodore S. The three Germanys: glimpses into their history. N. Y., published for the author, [A. S. Barnes & Co.,] 1880, c. 2 v., 16+650; 2+651-1281 p. il. O. cl., $7.

Mr. Fay's original purpose was simply to make a sketch of events of which he had been an eye-witness during a residence of many years in Europe, twenty$\foat{sv}$ events of which he service of the United States government in diplomatic positions in London, Berlin, and Switzerland, which gave him unusual opportunities to observe the political changes that Europe underwent, particularly during the revolutions of 18,8 and the German wars of 1866 and 1870. Before the "sketch" was finished, Mr. Fay naturally thought some preliminary history would make it more intelligible, hence we get an excellent condensation of the history of the Roman Empire, the French revolutions and Napoleon, and the old German Empire. With these historical sketches he closes the story of the first Germany, and with the year 1870 begins to relate what he had seen. The second and third Germanys are graphically described and the many revolutionary incidents which marked their inception painted with great eloquence and vigor. The sarrative is brought down to the opening of the present Emperor's reign. Emperor's reign.

An unpretending little volume, giving a most vivid "inside view" of Confederate life during the late war. The lady kept the diary for the benefit of her grandshidren, never looking forward to its publication. It begins in May, 1861, when she was obliged to leave her home by the coming of the Federal troops to Alexandria, Ya. and goes on through the days of her sojourn at Winchester, Richmond, and elsewhere in Virginia, till Lee and Johnston's surrender, in April, 1865.

Mrs. Stoddard wrote this novel some years ago. has long been out of print. It is a singularly weird story, analyzing with a good deal of power the impulses of a strange, undisciplined nature. The scene is New England, thirty or forty years back, the characters and incidents being realistic studies of the period. The "Morgesons" are educated, refined people, all with strong individualities. The heroines, "Veronica" and "Cassandra," are most unconventional—their experiences naturally being out of the stereoty ped line.

The creed of Jacob Valmont—who is a Hebrew in the disguise of a Christian—is, that it is not only not a crime, but a noble deed, to rob the Christian to forward the interests of the own recole. In pursuance of this the interests of his own people. In pursuance of this idea, he is planning to obtain possession of the wealth of his stepdaughter when the story opens. This wealth is in an iron mine of which Valmont is manager. He has purposely mismanaged the business that it may be thought profiless, and so fall into his hands. A young man sent to investigate the business not only falls in lore with the heiress, but is the main cause of several tragical incidents

Che Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 7, 1889.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF A BOOK TRADE EXHIBIT AT A WORLD'S FAIR.

A RESPECTED correspondent, and one who by his initials will be easily recognized as having solid good sense and excellent judgment in matters connected with book publishing, has put to us a series of queries which, it seems to us, ought to answer themselves. He asks, among others, "Wherein is the significance of such an exhibit [the book exhibit at the proposed World's Fair], so far as publishers are concerned?"

The significance of such a exhibit, so far as the publisher is concerned, as it appears to us, would be that the publisher, in his office of materializer of literature, is the one and only fit and proper person to call the attention of the world, on such an occasion, to the products his enterprise has brought to light. Or does our correspondent wish to imply that the publisher, as such, has not the same status that every other producer claims, the materials for whose completed work are contributed by various hands? Does he mean that a publisher has not the same right to exhibit the books he publishes as his work, that a manufacturer of furniture, or clothing, etc., has? Is not a publisher's completed work a book? His judgment in the selection of the manuscript, his taste and discrimination in the choice of the proper form in which the book is to be put in type, the paper on which it is to be printed, the printer who is to print the book, the artist who is to illustrate it, the style in which it is to be bound, the manner in which the book is to be brought before the public, and, finally, the risk of the enterprise-all are called upon to produce the book. Without the publisher, then, literature, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, would remain an unspoken word, and therefore useless, Were our correspondent to reduce his argument to the absurd. who in the world could ever exhibit any work as exclusively his own? Could the paper-maker? Indeed not. For according to our correspondent's line of argument, the chemist who compounded the chemicals, the mining engineer and miners who dug for the minerals of which the chemicals were compounded, the forester who planted and cared for the trees, and the thousand and one individuals who all contributed their share of work in producing the ingredients from which paper is made, ought to have a share in the paper-maker's exhibit rather than he, for without them the paper-maker would be as helpless as the publisher without the paper-maker, the typefounder, the printer, the ink-maker, the artist, the binder, the author, the bookseller, the publicas helpless, in fact, as a solitary man would be on a barren rock in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean.

But we suspect our friend has recognized all this himself, and has thrown this stone into our camp simply to stir us up out of our summer's inertia—for which we return him thanks.

UNIFORMITY OF TEXT-BOOKS.

NOTWITHSTANDING the sore experience one State may have had in the matter of becoming its own publisher of text-books and thereby adopting a uniform system of educational literature, another State is bound to find out for itself the impracticability as well as the undesirability of such a scheme. State after State has tried it not only to find itself out of pocket, but to see its educational standard lowered. And yet the experience of the past teaches no lesson to the present. Now it is Delaware; then it is Indiana; and here are Illinois and Iowa contemplating following the example of their older sister States, arguing, of course, that the failures of their neighbors need not necessarily imply their own ultimate fiasco. The Independent Patriot, a bright and outspoken newspaper published at Lamonia, Iowa, in touching upon this subject makes the following sensible remarks upon attempting to secure a uniformity of text-books:

"The disposition now especially manifested in Illinois, and periodically manifested in Iowa and many other States, to secure a uniformity of textbooks, is one of the most dangerous and dwaring tendencies of the age. A text-book, however ably and skilfully prepared, is but the reflection, as a rule, of one mind. To attempt to confine the historical education of thousands of children to the thoughts, conclusions, and methods of this one mind, is to attempt to establish that kind of unity which comprehends the moulding of all minds over the pattern of some other single human mind, which is both undesirable and impossible. And this argument applies to all other branches with equal force. To establish a uniformity of books throughout a populous State like Illinois would be to compel every growing missi in that State to be bent and twisted, narrowed or broadened as the case might be, to come to the standard of some one favored author, whose books perhaps could be gotten for a little less money

"We stand squarely opposed to all such nonprogressive tendencies. Text-books at best are but a necessary nuisance; and to confine the thousands of children in one State to the narrow limits of one mind in the pursuit of any study, because to do so will cheapen educational work, is unjust and cruel. Instead of inviting to investigation, it tends directly to crush out any disposition to explore unknown fields. It is a sickly, ignorant attempt to confine the intellect, capable of infinite expansion, to the narrow limits of a single brain. We hope the great State of Illinois will not disgrace herself by the adoption of any such policy."

WHAT ONE MAN DID FOR INTERNA-TIONAL COPYRIGHT—A TRIBUTE TO PROF. E. L. YOUMANS.

WE copy the following deserved tribute to the late Prof. E. L. Youmans from the Toronto Globe of August 30. It was written by Mr. George Iles, apropos of the meeting of the American Association in that city.

"Old-time members of the American Association will recall with regret one of their number, whose kindly face was never missed for thirty years at a meeting until 1885, although his mortal illness was not to end until two years after-

"Who that knew Professor Edward L. Youmans can ever forget him? A man no other than a scientific revivalist, who went up and down the continent making vivid the truths which so many intelligent people are wont to hold in a languid, lukewarm way, little realizing their worth and meaning. In the field of popularizing science he was the pioneer and chieftain in America, beginning forty years ago as a lecturer of singular power and impressiveness, and then writing his 'Chemistry' and other manuals, models all of what such books should be and seldom are—clear, interesting, suggestive.

"Professor Youmans was the first of American

"Professor Youmans was the first of American students of science to appreciate the genius of Herbert Spencer. A correspondence which commenced long before evolution was generally discussed, and, indeed, very shortly after it was formulated, led to a friendship between the English philosopher and the American teacher, which has been one of the most valued of Mr. Spencer's life.

"While in the vanguard militant of science, an ardent reformer in education and politics, it was only to be expected that Professor Youmans should have deeply at heart the bringing about interna-tional copyright. To the zeal and glow of a reformer he joined the wide-awake intelligence of a man of affairs. He saw that a reform never thrives so well as when some substantial business enterprise is behind it. In 1871 copyright was as actively discussed as in 1887 and 1888—and with the same general results. While the agitation went on, now ebullient, now almost quiescent, he created and developed a plan which for nearly twenty years has bestowed the practical benefits of international copyright on a wide circle of scientific authors. He selected a series of topics requiring popular elucidation, and engaged the best writers upon them, taking his men wherever he could find them, in England, Germany, France, Italy, or the United States. In times prior a scientific theme, though important, might interest so few readers that it remained without popular exposition—no single nation's demand warranting a publisher's risk. By simultaneously issuing editions in New York, London, Paris, Leipske, Milan, and St. Petersburg, not only were needed volumes of comparatively small sale placed upon a remunerative basis, but works appealing to a large reading public enjoyed a demand without precedent in the annals of scientific publication; the material results of this enhanced demand being in all cases shared with authors. The enterprise was unique, and success has attended it. What library does not display the scarlet volumes of the International Scientific series, the latest of which, 'The Primitive Family,' by Prof. Starcke, of the Copenhagen University, comes to hand, numbered LXV.?

"Books which have left their mark on the thought of the century have come in that series. Among these may be named Spencer's masterly 'Study of Sociology,' written on Professor Youmans' special suggestion, a work which has appeared in twelve British editions, ranking next in popularity to its author's 'Education.' With the 'Study of Sociology' as a serial, Prof. Youmans established the Popular Science Monthly, a magazine without a peer in its field of making new knowledge clear and inviting.

"No volume in the International series ever awakened more discussion than Draper's 'Conflict Between Religion and Science,' a weighty contribution to a debate the end of which approaches as science becomes religious and religion becomes scientific. Then, to single out a capital specimen of difficult things made plain, there was Cook's 'New Chemistry,' a book which was a revelation when it first appeared, being nothing less than simple proof that chemistry is a department of mechanics. But why go on cataloguing? The series, continued under the able editorship of its founder's brother, Dr. William J. Youmans, traverses with illumination the whole round of science, never engaging as expounder anybody dull of style or unattractive in theme."

COMMUNICATIONS.

QUESTIONING THE SIGNIFICANCE OF A BOOK EXHIBIT AT THE WORLD'S FAIR. Newport, Aug. 29, 1889.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

Noting what you say about a great book exhibit at the proposed World's Fair, permit me to inquire, wherein is the significance of such an exhibit, so far as publishers are concerned? Considering a book as a product of manufacture it may rightly be exhibited by the paper-maker for the paper, by the ink-maker for the ink, by the type-maker for the type, by the printer for the impressions, by the draughtsman and engravers for the illustrations, and by the binder for the binding, but where does the publisher come in? If the publisher prints and binds his own books still it is as printer and binder that he exhibits, and not as publisher. If we go from the material of a book to its literature, then it is the author and still not the publisher that is to be considered. recently published a list of medals given by the Paris Exposition to American publishers. of the list manufacture their own books, the rest do not. For what did these firms receive medals? What did they do that deserved an award? Why must a man be honored in this way because he puts his imprint on a title-page?

ORITUARY.

SAMUEL AUSTIN ALLIBONE.

Not altogether unexpected comes the news by cable that Dr. Samuel Austin Allibone, the eminent scholar and bibliographer, is dead. For a year or more Dr. Allibone's health has been poor, so that he was obliged to resign his position at the Lenox Library and to go abroad for rest. It was in Luzerne, Switzerland, that death overtook him on Monday, September 2.

Dr. Allibone was a native of Philadelphia, having been born in that city April 17, 1816. After receiving a liberal education he entered upon mercantile pursuits, devoting his leisure to literature. His earlier published writings were mainly contributions to theological controversy.

Late in the year 1852, encouraged thereto by G. W. Childs, who at that time was one of the most enterprising book publishers in this country, Dr. Allibone commenced work on his great "Critical Dictionary of English Literature, and British and American Authors." The work proved an immense undertaking for the author, and although the first volume was published only two years after he had begun the preparation of his manuscript it was not until seventeen years afterward that the third and last volume was issued. Shortly after the issue of the first volume. Mr. Childs, the publisher, retired from the book business, leaving this enterprise in the hands of the late Mr. J. B. Lippincott. Had it not been for the latter's confidence and capital, and above all his proverbial patience, the work would in all probability have ended with the first volume. But fortunately for the literary world Mr. Lippincott possessed all the qualities necessary to carry the work through, and to him, therefore, as well as to the author, belongs a share of the praise in producing such a noble contribution to the literature of the world. The work on the Dictionary gradually absorbed so much of Dr. Allibone's time that he decided to devote himself exclusively to literature.

In addition to his "Dictionary of English Literature" Dr. Allibone compiled a "Dictionary of Poetical Quotations, British and American. "Prose Quotations from Socrates to Macaulay," an "Alphabetical Index to the New Testament" a "Companion to the Bible," indexes to a number of important publications as well as a variety of religious tracts and handbooks. At one time he was the book editor and corresponding secretary of the American Sunday-School Union for which society he wrote the largest portion of his religious essays. In 1870 he was appointed to a position in the then newly endowed Lenox Library, and he then removed to New York, where he lived until he went abroad, accompanied by his wife, his constant assistant in his literary labors. Besides his widow he leaves a daughter, the wife of Charles Carver, of the Philadelphia har.

Dr. Martin Freligh, a noted homoeopathic physician and writer of works on medicine, died at his home in Kingston, N. Y., aged seventy-seven years, August 31. Among his best known works are: "A Treatise on Epilepsy." "Freligh's Homoeopathic Practice," and "Homoeopatia Familiar" in Spanish.

THE REV. JOHN HENRY HOBART, D.D., youngest son of the late Bishop John Henry Hobart, died at Fishkill-on-Hudson, August 31, aged seventy-two years. During his ministry he entered largely into literature, having in 1859 published a work entitled "Instruction and Encouragement for Lent," another work entitled "Mediævalism" in 1877, and the same year a work called "Church Reform in Mexico." He has also edited his father's "Festivals and Fasts" (twenty-seventh edition in 1862) and the "Clergyman's Companion," 1863. He was the last survivor of his father's family of seven children. For many years he has been living at Fishkill as pastor of the Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church of that place.

BOOK CLOTH BY A NEW PROCESS.

A SYNDICATE of capitalists from Boston, Mass., are about to engage in the manufacture of book cloth on Staten Island under a new process, the invention of Mr. Edward Steers, of West Brighton. Two buildings will be erected, one 150 feet by 50 feet, and one 30 feet by 50 feet, which will be ready by early spring. The cloth to be made by the new company will, it is said, stand washing, and is not affected by heat or cold.—N. Y. Times.

A MODERN PUBLISHING HOUSE.

RAND, MCNALLY & CO.'S NEW QUARTERS.

THE publishing and printing house of Rand, McNally & Co., Chicago, started in 1856, since which date the growth of its business has necessitated several removals and enlargements of quarters, but it has always been cramped for room, notwithstanding the ample provisions thought to have been the limit when the present building on Monroe Street was built for it. The growth of its map and book publishing department has been remarkable, but in the new building, now under construction, ample provisions have been made for future expansion.

This building will be a model of size, convenience, and durability; and the owners are so confident of its fire-proof qualities that they intend to carry no insurance. The frame-work will be entirely of steel, firmly bolted and riveted, and so proportioned that the stresses will be evenly distributed.

It has ten stories and a basement, with a frontage of 150 feet on Adams Street, extending back 165 feet to Quincy Street. The two fronts are fire-proofed with dark-red terra-cotta, in handsome designs, and the interior is fire-proofed with hard-burnt fire-clay, no part of the steel being exposed.

In the centre of the building is left a court, 60 x 66 feet, having its outer walls faced with enamelled bricks.

Owing partly to its great size, and partly to the fact that it is the first steel building in Chicago, besides being one of the largest and most complete building ever erected exclusively for the printing and publishing business, it is exciting a great deal of interest. Burnham & Root are the architects.

The following facts concerning it illustrate in a striking manner the vastness and solidity of modern commercial buildings:

It will contain 15 miles of steel railway 65-pound rails in the foundation, besides the 12-inch and 20-inch steel beams. In the building there will be 12 miles of 15-inch steel beams and channels; 2½ miles of ties and angles in the roof; 7 miles of tie-rods; 10 miles of Z steel in the columns; 12 miles of steam-pipe; 350,000 rivets and hts; 7 acres of floors, the boards of which ruld reach 250 miles, were they laid end to end. If all the fire-proofing and concrete used in the ilding were made into a pyramid 40 feet square the base, and tapering to the apex, the pyramid ruld stand as high as the Eiffel tower, 1000 feet. There is sufficient glass in the building to glaze a windows of 100 dwellings of 10 rooms each.

State Street 1 mile, and if the building is converted into an office building, 2 miles.

If the cement in the building were piled in barrels, one on top of another, the pile would be 2 miles high.

There is sufficient glass in the building to glaze windows of 100 dwellings of 10 rooms each.

The plaster used in the building would cover tons of steel in this giant structure.

The foundations contain 1000 tons of steel, while the beams, etc., will weigh 2000 tons, and the columns 700 tons; making a total of 3700 tons of steel in this giant structure.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD, 743 Broadway, N. Y., have published an entirely new "Descriptive List of Musical Books." The catalogue is arranged under the following heads: General and historical works; Great composers' lives and letters; Critical and miscellaneous works; Church and sacred music; Organ; Pianoforte; Theory and practice; Violin; Voice and singing. The catalogue will be a great help to persons interested in musical literature, but who do not know what to read or where to begin. The selection is not confined to the books published by this house. but gives the leading works in each of the different branches of the subject, thus affording a large variety of choice. A special feature of the list is the addition, in a majority of cases, of an unusually full description of the contents and character of the works named, together with such critical notices and other information as may most assist the purchaser in making a selection. A short list of rare and curious books not now in print is: appended, also a full index of all the authors, editors, and translators of the works mentioned. also of the composers and artists whose lives and works have been treated. The catalogue gives evidence of careful and scholarly treatment, and reflects creditably upon the compiler. Mr. Frank Marling, as well as on his firm. (50 p., 16°.)

IOURNALISTIC NOTES.

An important article on Building and Loan Associations, in which an expert makes a comparison between the "national" and the "local" organizations, with deductions strongly in favor of the latter, appeared in the New York Evening Post September 3.

Scribner's Magasine has issued a neat little pamphlet containing twenty questions (with answers) about electricity. The twenty questions about railways, first published as a folder, are also included in this pamphlet, forming altogether a nutabell cyclopædia of information on two important subjects.

"Why so?" said the astonished publisher.

"Because the paper is all wood." Tableau!

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE CATHOLIC PUBLICATION SOCIETY Co. have been appointed agents in New York of the publications of the Catholic Truth Society of London. Hereafter a full stock of this society's books will be kept by the Catholic Publication Society Co., who will send catalogues and full particulars to those wishing them.

UNFAVORABLE comments having been recently made in England on the fact that Lord Tennyson still draws his pension from the civil list, although he is now a rich man and there are many poor and even needy authors, the London correspondent of the Leeds Mercury, a well-informed journalist, writes: "I believe that though the Poet Laureate receives the money he does not use it for his own purposes, but spends it entirely on the relief of members of the literary profession who are in distress."

F. T. PALGRAVE has completed the "Treasury of English Sacred Lyrical Poetry," with the formation of which he was entrusted by the delegates of the Clarendon Press. The selection is ranged in three books, the first dating from about 1500 to 1680 (but mainly finding its materials in the seventeenth century); the second, 1680 to about 1820; the last, thence to our own time. Short biographical notices of the writers (except a few such as Spenser, Milton, Cowper, or those still living) have been added, with explanatory and glossarial notes. The volume will be published early this month.

GRIFFITH, FARRAN & Co. announce for early publication in the coming season "The Diaries of Sir Moses and Lady Montefiore," in two volumes, with numerous illustrations. It will give a record of their life and work, from 1812 to 1883, with the addresses and speeches of Sir Moses; his correspondence with ministers, ambassadors, and representative bodies; full accounts, in his own words, of all his missions in the cause of humanity; firmans and edicts of Eastern monarchs; his opinions on financial, political, and religious subjects; anecdotes relating to men and events of his time. The work has been edited by the late Dr. E. Loewe, the Oriental scholar, who accompanied Sir Moses Montefiore on his mission to Damascus and Constantinople in 1840.

JOHN WALLACE, Jacksonville, Fla., published through the Da Costa Printing and Publishing published House last year a work entitled "Carpetbag Rule in Florida—the inside workings of the reconstruction of civil government in Florida after the close of the civil war," which he desires to issue in revised form if he can find a publisher in the North. The author was born in North Carolina and held as a slave until 1862, when he made his escape. He entered the U. S. Army and served until 1865. He had no education while a slave, and never had the benefit of any school before or since he was discharged from the army, and has acquired what knowledge he may have of letters from constant study at night. He claims to have acquired the knowledge of facts upon which this work treats by being constantly in the midst of the actors of the theatre of this period. He was first appointed a messenger of the Constitutional Convention of 1868, and upon the adoption of the Constitution, was elected Constable for Leon County, the capital of the State, serving for two He was elected twice to the lower branch of the Legislature, serving four years; and twice elected to the Senate, where he served for eight European Schools; or, What I Saw in the Schools of Germany, France, Austria, and Switzerland.

By L. R. KLEMM, Ph.D., Principal of the Technical School, Cincinnati, Ohio. Volume XII. of the International Educational Series, edited by WILLIAM T. HARRIS, LL.D. 12mo, cloth, copiously illustrated, $2.25.

In this volume the author reports to the teachers of the United States the results of a ten months' journey through the schools of Europe. The book contains truthful delineations of the present state of methodology and didactics in the public schools of Germany, France, Austria, and Switzerland. Lessons which the author beard are sketched as faithfully as a quick pencil could gather and the memory retain them. The author saw the best that Europe could offer him, and in this volume he has pictured the best results, described the most advanced methods, and gives a great number of valuable hints that will be serviceable to all teachers who wish to advance the standard of their work. Numerous devices in use in Europe are offered in sketch illustrations and copi s of pupils' work where they could be conveniently used. The manual training schools in Europe are shown in their results. The different systems of drawing and industrial training of girls are compared; each branch of study of the lower schools is represented by sketch lessons, and successful methods of teaching are illustrated by verbatim reproduction of model lessons.

NEW ART PUBLICATIONS

FROM THE PRESS OF

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY.

SEASON OF 1889-90.

The Two Brothers (Pierre et Jean).

By GUY DE MAUPASSANT. Illustrated by ERNEST DUEZ and ALBERT LYNCH. Translated by Albert Smith. Bound in paper, enclosed in cloth portfolio. $12.50. 4to. Extra cloth, gilt top. $13.50. Three-quarters levant morocco, gilt top. $18.00.

The Two Brothers (Pierre et Jess), when considered in the point of view of the concrete expression of sentiments, is perhaps the most perfect of all the works Mr. Guy de Maupassant has published up to the present day. The drama, concertated between five characters, recalls, by its sobriety, a work of antiquity. The language, remarkably fluent, cannot be of a more precise correctness, and the idea treated, though passionate and fierry, contains nothing that can grate on the delicacy of feminine sentiments and feelings. Mr. Ernest Duez and Mr. Albert Lynch are the two artists who have been chosen to fluctrate the work. The former, in a series of water-colors, among which each chapter will find its heading and tail-piece, has interpreted the maritime sites so well known to him; whilst the latter, in eighteen most superior compositions, has endowed the characters with their physiognomy, their manners, and their life.

The Low-Back'd Car.

By SAMUEL LOVER. With Twelve Illustrations by WILLIAM MAGRATH, printed by Photogravure from Copper Plates, with Plate-Mark; also Twelve Initial Vignettes engraved on Wood by C. H. REED. Size of volume, 9½ by 11 inches. Handsomely bound in cloth. $5.00. Also an Édition de Luxe, with all the Illustrations reproduced by the Forbes Photogravure Process from the Author's Original Drawings. All first Proofs on Japan Paper. Text in Red and Black. Folio, 11 by 13½ inches. $15.00.

An English critic, referring to Lover's "Songs, Legend, and Stories," says, "We see the people, we hear them; they are tramatized as they exist in nature, and all their peculiarities are touched with a master hand."

Legend Laymone.

A Poem by M. B. M. TOLAND. With full-page Illustrations by MOWBRAY, CHURCE, RICHARDS, BOLTON JONES, FRANK JONES, DE QUELIN, SWORD, MAUD HUMPHREY, HAMILTON GIBSON, and HERBERT DENMAN, reproduced by the Forbes Photogravure Process; also Decorations in the Text from Designs modelled in clay by JOHN J. BOYLE Square 8vo. Elegantly bound in cloth, with gilt top and rough edges. $2.50. Ivorine. $3.00. Turkey morocco. $5.00.

The scene of this poem is laid in California, at that early day when the Franciscan monks held many missions stretching along the whole length of the country. The author has written a story lending itself with the best results to the arisist embellishment presented, and the volume will be one of the most attractive of the coming holiday season.

The Miller's Daughter.

By Alfred Tennyson. Illustrated with Original Designs by H. WINTHROP PEIRCE, EDMUND H. GARRETT, HARRY FENN, J. APPLETON BROWN, and J. D. WOODWARD. Engraved on Wood. One volume. 8vo. Cloth. $3.00. Ivory surface covers. $3.50. New style leather. $3.50.

No pains or expense has been spared to make this charming poem of the greatest of living poets an attractive and artistic volume. The illustrations are by eminent artists, and the fine character of the work will rank it among the handsomes books of the year.

Tales of Woman's Trials.

By MRS. S. C. HALL. New Edition, with Illustrations. 12mo. Cloth extra. $1.50. Crown, gilt. $2.00.

"There is about them ('Tales of Woman's Trials') a still and a holy beauty that is worthy of the sacred subject with they illustrate; and what subject is better fitted to appeal to every generous sympathy, to every tender emotion of man's nature? What subject better fitted to be delineated by woman's pen?"—Dublin University Magazine.

Half-Hours with the Best Humorous Authors.

Selected and arranged by CHARLES MORRIS. Complete in Four Crown Octavo Volumes of about Five Hundred pages each. Cloth, gilt top. $6.00 Half morocco. $10.00. Three-quarters calf. $13.00.

This work, uniform with "Half-Hours with the Best American Authors," "Half-Hours of American History," and "Half-Hours with the Best Foreign Authors," embraces some of the Choicest Writings of the best American, English, and Foreign Humorists, and completes the Half-Hour Series commenced a few years ago.

J. B. Lippincott Company's New Art Publications.—Continued.

By JOHN BROWN, M.D. With Eight Illustrations by HERMANN SIMON and EDMUND H. GARRETT, and a Portrait of the Author engraved on Wood. Small 4to. Neatly bound in two-color cloths. $1.50. New style leather. $1.75. Also an Edition de Luxe. Large 4to. One Hundred and Twenty-five Copies printed. Large 4to. Neatly bound.

"Written with a quiet, unaffected power worthy of the pathetic and touching scenes it describes."—Saturday Review. "A veritable gem, it is true, simple, pathetic, and touched with an antique grace."—Fraser's Magazine.

Christmas Stories and Poems.

For the Little Ones. By C. Emma Cheney, Sydney Dayre, Miss V. Stuart Mosby, and others. Illustrated by the best Artists. An Octavo volume. Bound in neat illuminated cloth. $1.00.

A delightful collection of stories for Christmas, selected with superior taste, from the works of favorite authors. The strations are excellent, and will constitute no insignificant feature of the attractiveness of the book for juvenile readers.

" And for all those that happen To pass us on our way
We have a smile, and wish them
A merry Christmas-day."

Diego Velazquez and His Times.

By CARL JUSTI, Professor at the University of Bonn. Translated by PROFESSOR A. H. KEANE, and revised by the author. With Fifty-two Magnificent Wood-cuts, a Frontispiece of Velazquez's own Portrait, etched by Forberg, and a Plan of the old Palace at Madrid. 8vo. Half leather. $10.00.

A sumptuous volume with numerous illustrations of Velazquez's finest works after Brend'amour and other famous en-ravers. The exhaustive and thoroughly critical treatment of the subject renders this blography of the master one of the fore-test creations of modern art literature, an indispensable aid to the study of Spanish art, and of its most brilliant exponent.

Manual of Ancient Sculpture.

By Pierre Paris. Edited and augmented by Jane E. Harrison. Upward of Two Hundred Illustrations. 12mo. Cloth, gilt top. $3.00.

In Search of a Son.

Sandy, a Scotch lad, who has learned to be a Christian, goes to work in the coal-mines of Pennsylvania. His fellow-workmen of the baser sort hate him for his upright and faithful life, and because he will not join any of their secret organizations. He believes that his employer's interests are his own, and that the latter can be best served by a faithful regard for the former. The story tells how the plots of his enemies were frustrated, how Sandy won the respect of his superiors, how his kind heart prompted him to care for the humble ones about him who needed his help, and how, at last, his fortune was won. won.

with special reference to the lives and deeds of great Americans. N. Y., Appleton, 1889. c. 7+203 p. il. D. hf. cl., 70 c.

"The main peculiarity of the present book is that it aims to teach children the history of the country by making them acquainted with some of the most illustrious actors in it." By relating the main facts in the life of Columbus, John Cabot, Captain John Smith, Henry Hudson, William Penn, Dr. Franklin, Boose, Jefferson, Lincoln, and others, the student receipes a very comprehensive and consecutive outline of Americas history. The personal element in it makes it particularly attractive to young readers. Mr. Eggleston's fresh and entertaining way of putting his facts is not the least of the many good points in this text-book. It is an us usually handsome book in the mechanical details, the pictures having been made for it, and being from the pencils of artists. A new system of maps, which the author has patented, affords a striking object-lesson upon country's development.

The story of a young girl with a noble but undeveloped character, who, under kindly direction and encouragement, grows into a strong and helpful Christian. She studies medicine and becomes a physician, and through it all is so gentle and womanly that her influence tells for much with all with whom she is brought in contact. Life on a farm, students' life in a college town, the busy life of a country physician, are all admirably portrayed, and, with the many incidents of the plot, grave and gay, thrilling and pathetic, make a book of peculiar interest.

A sequel to "The Ladies Lindores," by the same author. "Lady Car" or Lady Caroline is the daughter of Lord Lindores, who married Mr. Thomas Torrance—or rather was persuaded to marry him for his money. In this story the reader finds her married a second time to the only man she had ever loved, Edward Beaufort, Mr. Torrance having kindly died, leaving her with two children and an immense fortune. Beaufort has only his love to offer her, being quite content to share her fortune. Mrs. Oliphant skilfully pictures Lady Car's gradual disenchantment with her second husband, and shows that the "sins of the father" live after him in the Torrance children, who help to break their mother's heart.

A group of boys at a boys' school, what they did there, and what they became in later years, the help their young teacher gave them, and how they learned to "look up and not down, to look out and not in, to look forward and not back, and to lend a hand." The school is in one of the Rastern States, but several of the boys go West, and their free life upon a cattle ranch is vividly depicted. The boys are real boys, with boy faults which they meet as overcome in boy fashion. The book does not preach he every boy, and every girl as well, in the reading of it, will learn how better to resist the temptations peculiar to boy and girl life.

Sutherland, Edwin. The destiny of America: the inevitable political union of the United States and Canada. Wash., D. C., W. H. Lowdermilk & Co., 1889. 60 p. O. pap., 25 c. This essay is divided into three parts—the first relats to the United States, its area, physical resources, capbilities of its people, etc.; the second treats of Canada the same manner; the third aims to show the effect Christian civilization will have on the whole hussa nac, the part the American people are to play in this process of civilization, and the results which will spring from the political union of the United States and Canada.

Swett, Sophie. Captain Polly. N. Y., Harper, 1889. c. 5-306 p. il. sq. S. (Harper's young people's ser.) cl., $7.

The story takes place at a seaport town on the coast of Maine. A party of children are left to the care of trassel servants and mild Aunt Katherine, during a year's absence of their father and mother. Polly, though assog the younger ones, is a born leader, and unusually clera and winning. She is the heroine of many adventurs, at one time being carried out to sea on an old wreck. Her intelligence saves her life in this episode, which gains ther the title of "Captain Polly." A young English lod carrying a note-book and studying American characters a clever sketch. The Damers throughout, from the cite to the youngest, have each a strong individuality and make h story rapidly.

S. S. and Pub. Soc., [1889.] c. 371 p. ll. D. (Pilgrim prize ser.) cl., $1.50.

"My Lady Nell" is a little lady in her teens, of the olden time, wearing stiff frills and satin dresses hanging in heavy folds, with a heart as proud as her title and coume indicate, yet, withal, so lovable and interesting that she makes a host of friends in spite of her faults. See learns by some bitter experiences to be more humble. The scene is laid in England in the time of John Roges, and the atmosphere of the story fits well the prind. There is a quaint flavor of antiquity which is admirably sustained throughout.

SEPTEMBER 14-21, 1880.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

STEMMING THE FLOOD.

Our Fall Announcement Number, as our readers make their way through the extended descriptive summary of forthcoming books which occupies so many of its pages and requires so much of the time and inexhaustible patience of our editorial staff at this season, will almost remind booksellers on the Atlantic coast of the great storm outside their windows which has been deluging them during the past week and bringing destruction right and left., Water is a good thing in its way, but the deluge -! It is our deliberate judgment, after consultation with many publishers and many booksellers, that the great number of books now turned out in this country or imported in quantities is an additional cause of serious demoralization throughout the trade, from publisher and printer to retailer and reader. Quantity, both in number of publications and in sales by the ton, is more and more sought instead of quality, with the result that buyer and seller lose sight of the literary character of books, and profits are reduced so close to a manufacturing minimum that even under enormous sales the publisher gets scarcely sufficient to pay him a living salary for the demands made upon him by the excessive complications which such a business involves.

Said a bookseller who is among the most experienced and enterprising in the trade, "Too many books are being issued. When I get a pretty good book that I find I can recommend as interesting, I have hardly time to offer it before a number more tumble in and crowd out all idea of the acceptable one. Still other books may be worth recommending, but there is no time to consider their claims. They must simply take their chances. Their chances are of course less than they were on account of the greater number issued.

"Unless the publishers are issuing smaller editions than formerly they must be laying up a stock larger than the demands call for, and will feel tempted to throw the surplus on the market at any price. I don't believe that publishers are making money on the bulk of their publications, any more than I believe that they do business on their own capital. What I mean is that I don't believe that most publishing houses make enough money out of the few books that happen to get to enable them to get up the many that do a pay, and that, consequently, they must be a ning in debt either for borrowed capital or witheir printers, paper-makers, and elsewhere.

"In going over the new 'Trade List Anna to make up the orders for the books we as carry in stock during the fall and holiday seas I found that many of the houses with whom have accounts had so few books that we felts must have, that we did not care to have the charged, but sent the money with the orders. are obliged to carry the 'cheap Johns,' but don't order more than we can possibly bels."

Another bookseller, speaking of a previous nouncement Number, said, "I have gone thruthe number and have laid it down with a beheart. How is the trade to manage such a at such a time? and what truck a deal of it is

A well-known publisher, who, while sending in recent years a great number of volumes, nevertheless succeeded in keeping their lists and mechanical quality high, has been taken serious counsel as to the policy of hereafter stricting his house to a dozen or twenty book the year, making only such as he feels sure be pushed on their distinctive qualities to per nent and profitable sale.

From whatever point of view we look at question the present method seems equally fortunate. The leading printers have begun to out that the multiplication of reprints cannot on without disaster to them, as has been as in more than one case of bankruptcy in the few years, where printers and paper-makers are ally borne the loss in the final adjustment reckless publisher's accounts. Paper and cost money, and somebody must pay the particle is no longer to the interest of the mechant trades to force manufacture in the way which been going on of late years.

When it comes to the publisher, the ca much the same. But happily there are indications that the tide is changing. cheap quartos no longer exist: two or of the more important "cheap and nasty" I series have formally or practically ceased; most of the existing issues, though not very in quality, are no longer cheap in "publis price." In the Munro series, for instance, books of any size are issued in two 20c. p and although the large discount reduces the the actual price, the basis of 40c. for a non-ci right novel in paper is certainly not so bad to from. The tendency of prices on repris therefore upward, though the need of prog public demand by supply at a reasonable; will act to prevent too much of a reaction i direction of high prices. This cannot yet be of another class of books-the raft of it hich the competition is as to who can give most pounds of printed paper with the gaut binding for the least money. But in this profits are already reduced to a close manutring basis, and here also a reaction must n. Travellers go out earlier and earlier, they e closer and closer prices, countermands folas the next traveller shows his stock, larger larger amounts of capital or credit are rend, the interest account gets bigger as the is get smaller, and by and by the reaction come. The same is likely to be true in the ellaneous lines and "novelties," which also looding the market to an extent that renders mition by title almost impossible, and puts a almost entirely on the "grocery" basis y publishers are too good business men to this state of things, but they feel it necessary e in with the swim for the sake of utilizing plant and keeping great establishments go_ The result is that publishers of the better have begun to look to channels of distribuoutside the book trade, and to pander more more to the demands of the bazaars and map Johns," to the demoralization of the e and staple part of their business. this flood also the jobber finds it practically esible to keep full lines of these hundreds. even thousands, of issues, and the retailer is nped and discouraged by the impossibility sping anything like a full assortment of L He too is forced to give up the notion ding books as literary products, and to offer in competition with his bazaar competitors he basis of cut prices and pound weight. repeat that this is a real discouragement skilled bookseller. Moreover, he begins espair of keeping even a fairly representstock, and to fall back on "we'll get this : from the publisher by next mail," which myer may as well do for himself. The ince cannot be avoided that the distributing tinery of the trade is every day more and : curtailed as the result of this mistaken 7 on the part of publishers. The remarks h we quoted at the beginning of this article ment the opinions of probably the majority e really capable men in the retail book trade ly. Travellers who have been on the road hirty years agree that, along with the multition of books, there has been an actual reion both in the number of trade purchasers in the quantity actually sold.

saily, the reading public is demoralized not as to prices but as to the literary qualities of s. In juveniles, for instance, bating a few known authors who really sell on their own ts, buyers can no longer discriminate between h, and they buy books with less discriminaas to quality than they would buy soap.

This does not tend to increase the trade in the long run. There is, of course, a silver lining to the dark cloud in the fact that the cheap reprint system and the extreme competition in prices have brought good books as well as poor to large classes of readers; but that period has passed for this generation, and it is now time to train those very readers into buying better reading and better-made books.

We believe that the entire trade will be benefited if the leading publishers will look at the present situation carefully and set themselves to stem the tide. The first remedy is to publish fewer and better books, books that will not die the very season of their birth. It is on repeated editions that money is really made. The present craze to swell lists has already hurt author, printer, bookseller, and the reading public more than at first sight appeared, and all classes are ready for the reaction. Publishers should be as particular in the production of books as they were in old times. They should consider more closely the character of the books they are deciding to undertake, and especially be more fastidious in the matter of putting the firm-name on books for which the author pays, and for which the seeming publisher is responsible chiefly as a manufacturer. The old Harper firm made a boast which still presents the ideal of the publishing trade, that they were never ashamed of seeing their name on any book sent out by their house. Scarcely any publisher, from their own successors down, could say that to-day, for nearly every house in the trade has been driven, in the competition, to issuing books which it admits are not up to the standard, either literary or mechanical, with which it would wish to identify its name. The bookseller, on his part, should set himself carefully to discriminate among the books offered him, and use his enterprise in pushing the best books and editions.

It may be supposed that in this somewhat frank diatribe the Publishers' Weekly is cutting its own throat by cutting down the supply of titles for its advertising columns; but, as a matter of fact, a representative trade journal must suffer with its trade. We continually hear from publishers that they cannot afford to advertise books at the present margin, and at Christmas-time from booksellers that they cannot circulate our Christmas issues because they name such hosts of books that they cannot keep in stock. We believe that this paper is no exception to the rule, and that with fewer books steadily and continuously published, in place of the thousands of ephemeral books-books which are pushed and advertised once and never again-we should all be better off. Every one would gain-and oh, how the reading world would bless the day of the making of fewer books!

THE RE-IMPORTATION OF BOOKS: A CUSTOM-HOUSE CURIOSITY.

From the New York Times, September 8.

IT is of the nature of the present tariff that its enforcement should lead to all sorts of absurdities, even at the hands of those who do not approve of the principle on which it is constructed. The purpose of the tariff being to exact a certain penalty for importing goods into the United States, it becomes necessary to surround importation with as many difficulties as in the wisdom of the legislative power or within the discretion given to the administrative officers may be necessary to secure the penalty. As the exporter abroad and the importer at home are urged by the strongest motives to reduce the penalty to the lowest point or to avoid it, sometimes honestly and sometimes otherwise, the precautions required from the government are inevitably strict and exacting in any case. But the administration of the tariff laws having been for years in the hands of a party that has been urged by its wealthiest and most interested supporters to make the most of the tariff exactions, there has grown up upon the laws themselves a vast body of rulings, instructions, and regulations that not only make honest importation extremely difficult, but that sometimes wholly prevent it, and occasionally this embarrassment extends to American exports as well.

An instance in point is the experience of American publishing houses exporting American books to England or elsewhere. Of course, such goods differ from silks or wines or cotton, in that the demand for them is confined to certain indefinite limits that cannot be known in advance, and when that demand is satisfied the goods must either be sent to another market or the sale of them be lost. Thus it happens that American publishers send abroad such quantity of their goods as they think the market will take, with the expectation of bringing back whatever may not be sold to this market, where the demand is naturally more continuous. Under the law such reimportation of American goods is free from duty. But as in some kinds of goods there is danger the reimportation may cover actually new importations, and duties thus be evaded, certain requirements have been made general as to proof of the original export from the United States. Under Collector Magone, who certainly was not a protectionist, but who was a very keen and careful lawyer, these requirements in the case of reimported books were interpreted in a way to work great injustice and to become essentially He insisted, first, that in the case of any given invoice of books the exact date of export should be given, and then that the steamer by which they were shipped should be named, and, finally, that the original bill of lading or some equivalent proof of specific shipment should be produced before the returned books could be allowed to cross the Custom-House barrier. All of these requirements were annoying, some of them it was absolutely impossible to comply with, and all of them were, in fact, entirely unnecessary. A book is not, in such cases, an article that can be counterfeited with any possibility of profit. It is wholly American, written, printed, bound, published, and copyrighted in America. It bears the name of the author, publisher, and printer, and the mark of the binder, which afford complete means of identification.

Now the publishers who wish to reimport these goods are precisely those who are most strongly interested in any evasion of the law, if that were possible, for it would be a fraud upon and an injury to themselves. Yet when in the course of their regular business they wish to get back the own goods, which they have themselves and out, they are practically prohibited from doing so. The goods may have been sent in scattering amounts and by various methods, some, perha by express. They may be returned in one shi ment of a dozen different publications, and the copies of each publication may have been shine at different times. To find out the exact da and the names of the steamers is itself sufficient troublesome, but if the books have been sent express, to produce, in addition, the invoice W. A bill of lading is simple impracticable. not pretend to know how far the requirement enforced by Mr. Magone are really imposed law, or by Treasury orders having the force law; but it is evident that they are actually necessary to 'the purpose of the law, verati unjust, and ridiculous. We hope that when case arises before Collector Erhardt he may able to make an interpretation of the res ments that will avoid these consequences. cannot, the sooner the competent authorid make the needed changes the better.

THE ESTES PRESS BUILDING.

Among the most notable of the many fine b ings recently erected in Boston, the Estes P occupies a prominent position. It is on that it is one of the largest, and best adapt the purposes for which it was intended, of a the country. Situated in the heart of the ness portion of Boston, it is but above five ntes' walk from the Post-Office, or from the o of Washington and Summer Streets, and k the advantage of being bounded on all side streets or ways, thus securing light and a every direction. It is practically two buil separated by a heavy fire wall, but joined or by a series of very heavy balconies, which a the double purpose of connecting the premise business purposes, and of fire-escapes in case fire in either building. / Both buildings are structed on the most approved system of combustion, mill finish, there being no conce spaces, consequently no chance for the spread fire. WATER-MARKS UNRELIABLE IN DE-TERMINING DATE OF DOCUMENTS AND BOOKS.

From the Nation.

FOR nearly a century the subject of the water-marks in paper has been studied with increasing zeal, in the hope of being able thereby to approximate with some degree of certainty the date of documents and books. Vast collections of these designs have been made and classified. Sotheby, in his "Typography of the Fifteenth Century" and "Principla Typographica," reproduced 1100 of them. Longhi, in "Le antiche Carte fabrianesi," described 1887 belonging to Fabriano, which was one of the oldest and most active centres of paper manufacture. M. Briquet, in the work before us, has figured 597 gathered in the archives of Genoa, where the dates of the documents enabled him to arrive with some degree of certainty at the probable age of the paper. These he has accompanied with a chronological table and a descriptive list, in which, under each design, he enumerates the other places where it has been found. The industry bestowed on the preparation of the volume is most praiseworthy, and the preliminary account of the introduction of the paper industry into Europe from China is interesting; yet one can hardly help concluding that the industry has been misapplied, and that the utility of these researches amounts to little.

In certain limited fields the study of water, arks may yield satisfactory results. The series marks may yield satisfactory results. of prints known as the Iconographia of Van Dyck presented many puzzling questions to collectors, for the "states" are numerous, the coppers passed through many hands-indeed, they are still in existence—and it was not always easy to distinguish between the different impressions. In 1877 Dr. Wibiral, after a patient examination of some 15,000 prints, published his "L'Icono-graphie d'Antoine Van Dyck," with fac-similes of nearly a hundred water-marks which he had noted in the papers employed, and he succeeded in classifying, with wonderful accuracy, the succession in the different stages of the plates during the period of about thirty years in which they have interest for collectors. We have found his results almost uniformly correct, though we have met with several water-marks which had escaped

When applied, however, to paper-making throughout Europe during the course of some six hundred years, the unlimited magnitude of the field and the elements of uncertainty pervading it, render hopeless the effort to coordinate and systematize the infinite variety of designs. The water-mark is produced by a wire bent into a pattern and soldered on the fine laid wires of the mould with which the pulp, in hand-made papers, is dipped from the vat. This mould, M. Briquet informs us, wears out in a year or two. As every workman must have one, it is easy to see how many moulds a single paper-mill would use in ten years. It might be the intention to have the same design on all, and yet no two might be exactly alike, for many of the designs are exceedingly crude, and betray the utmost carelessness in bending the wires as they were soldered on, while, in the progress of wear, distortions and partial breaking away must have undoubtedly occurred. Thus the minute and infinite variations which are found in favorite designs, such as the pot, or the crown, or the foolscap, may have no significance, or may indicate a century difference in time and the distance between Venice and Antwerp, for certain designs remained in use for hundreds of years and were employed all over Europe. Besides, they frequently signified not so much the individual paper-maker as the size and quality of the paper. Then the question is still further complicated by the currents of trade. Italian papers were carried all through Europe, while each land had, besides, its own mills using virtually similar watermarks, so that a Barcelona or Nürnberg Ms. on paper bearing the favorite bull's head may represent a local manufacture of one century or a Genoese or Venetian make of another. When Wibiral, in his limited field, reproduces twentyseven varieties of the folie or foolscap—and we have met in the Van Dyck series three or four additional—it will be readily seen how vast is the material, and how completely absent are the factors which would enable the investigator to educe from it trustworthy principles serviceable to the archæologist or historian. In isolated cases, when some peculiar water-mark may reasonably be presumed to have been used by a single maker during a limited period, some assistance may be hoped for, as well as in the rare instances where the name of the maker was employed; but with the great mass of papers the investigation, however interesting as an amusement, will never, we fear, produce results of scientific value.

We have compared with M. Briquet's plates the water-marks of a number of fifteenth-century books and MSS., Spanish, French, Italian, and German, without being able to identify a single one, though they consisted of the bull's head, the gauntlet, the balance, and other favorite marks. Of course, a limited experiment such as this proves little, but yet a single identification would have been a satisfaction. In this investigation one fact proved the inherent impossibility of reducing the study of water-marks to a science. The Seville, 1491, edition of "Las Siete Partidas" is printed on paper bearing the well-known mark of the gauntlet with a star. Now of two sheets gathered together in the same signature, one happens to have a star with five points and the other one with six—thus relegating them into two dif-ferent types. Evidently the workmen who fash-ioned and soldered the wires followed their own devices, with cruel indifference to the antiquarians who, four hundred years later, were to endeavor to deduce laws from their careless vaga-

THE MERIT OF PUBLISHERS.
139 WEST 82D STREET, NEW YORK.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: To answer O. B. B.'s interrogation in the issue of Sept. 7, as to why publishers receive medals for fine publications, which are accompanied by his rather invidious reasons why they should not—let me ask him why an architect gets the credit for a fine building? He does not make the materials, nor cut the stone or wood, nor construct it by his manual labor, nor, in fact, do anything about it but use his intelligence, taste, and skill to design it; yet, if the result is harmonious, handsome, striking, and successful, the credit of the whole work is his. Int it about the same with the publisher of a face book?

OBITUARY.

SAMUEL H. MOLLESON, the well-known paper dealer and senior member of the firm of Molleson Brothers, of New York, died suddenly on the 18th inst. Mr. Molleson was born in Brunswick, N. NOTES AND QUERIES.

I. WHO is the publisher of "The Philosophy d History," by Hugh Daverly?

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

As T. B. Peterson & Bros., Phila., Pa., will not sell their books at Trade Sale this fall they will give extra discounts on all orders placed with them this month.

A. J. HOLMAN & Co., Philadelphia, have just issued their handsome illustrated catalogue of Standard Bibles and Photograph Albums. They show an even larger variety of new and attractive styles this year both in the bindings and general get-up of their family and pulpit Bibles. The styles of last year are put on the cheaper grapes of Bibles this year. This firm asks that booksellers who failed to receive their catalogue will notify them so that they may be supplied.

DEAN & SON, London, have in preparation a translation of the new volume of Madame Carette's "Souvenirs of the Tuileries." The author, who was reader to the Empress Eugénie, treats of the period of stirring events which led to the fall of the Empire, embracing the declaration of war with Prussia, the departure of Napoleon the Third for the seat of action, the Regency, and the final collapse. The translation is called "My Mistress the Empress Eugénie, or, court life at the Tuileries."

T. FISHER UNWIN, 26 Paternoster Square, London, has begun the publication of a remarkably pretty and cheap series of novels. The series will include reprints of some of the best writers of the day, as well as original novels, tales, and sketches by new writers. Though the series will consist chiefly of fiction it is intended to reprint from time to time interesting books in other classes of literature not easily accessible otherwise. The volumes are handy sixteenmos, averaging 300 pages, printed on excellent paper and put up in cloth jackets at two shillings the volume.

HENRY ALTEMUS (The Philadelphia Bible Warehouse) has added many attractive original designs and features to his popular lines of family, pulpit and reference Bibles, as well as to his albums. In the latter he has made especial efforts to meet the want for the better grades—though the cheaper line has not been overlooked. In the department of Illustrated Books he offers a low-priced quarto edition of Dante's "Purgatory and Paradise," illustrated by Doré, uniform with the "Inferno" and others offered by this house last year. He has also made arrangements for similar editions of Coleridge's "Rime of the Ancient Mariner," and Tennyson's "Idyls of the King," also illustrated by Doré, and handsomely printed and bound.

GOOD WORDS FOR THE "TRADE LIST ANNUAL."

L. J. WRIGHT, Lockport, N. Y.

I find it more convenient, and get more satisfaction and profit from it during the year, than from all other trade publications.

G. B. GROSVENOR, Dubuque, Ia.

One copy of this isn't enough for us. We take one at home into our "den," where we semi-occasionally burn the midnight oil in digging among catalogues for "sweets," unappreciated save by those who are warriors "old in the perfeshun."

COLEMAN & GRUNINGER, San Francisco, Cal.

DESCRIPTIVE SUMMARY OF THE FALL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

THE descriptive summary which here follows presents as usual, in its alphabetical arrangement by publishers, a survey of the entire field, so far as the necessary information is at hand. Other books, not yet fully determined upon, will find mention in subsequent issues. Brentano's. New York, will publish shortly a new novel by an anonymous author for which they expect an immense sale. The title will be "Priest and Puritan," and the book will tell the story of the gradual increase of the Roman Catholic population in a Puritan New England town, the anxiety this caused Rev. Mr. Foster. the Puritan minister, his shock at discovering that his son loves the niece of the priest in the newly dedicated Roman church, and the various incidents by which all finally learn that Roman Catholicism and Puritanism are quite subordinate to true Christianity. A second edition will be issued of "Le Bleuet: an Alsatian romance," by Gustave S. Haller, translated by M. de Lazare, which has met with great success. Two new volumes will be added to Brentano's "Views of American Cities," one being "Views of Central Park," and the other "Views of Washington City." For children there will be the Sommerville Series, a collection of "history jingles" in the style of "Mother Goose Melodies" designed to impress historic facts on childish minds which find sound so great a help to memory.

THE BURROWS BROTHERS Co., Cleveland, are preparing a sumptuous holiday edition of Blackmore's masterpiece, "Lorna Doone." It will be printed from new type, with several hundred original illustrations, for which the publishers have paid liberally and the engravers and reproducers will also receive a great share of the capital invested in this undertaking. The best artists in the country have been employed, including Harry Sandham, Wharton Edwards, Harry Fenn, Hamilton Gibson, Charles Copeland, Harriet Thayer Durgin, and others. Their work will be engraved by hand and process by A. V. S. Anthony, Geo. T. Andrew, Goupil, Kurtz, etc. A map of Exmoor, the scene of the story, engraved in several colors, is a new feature in a novel. The book will be made ready in cloth, half morocco, and full morocco.

ROBT. New editions are also made of all the various series, and special attention is called to The One-Syllable Series; "Bible Stories for Little Ones;" The Instructive Library in five volumes; and Cassell's royal octavos, at reduced prices.

S. E. Cassino will re-shape his most popular holiday books and add some fine works to his long list of art publications and holiday souvenirs. "Hawthorne's Legends of the Province House" will contain four tales illustrated by Frank T. Merrill, who is said to have done even finer work than in "Rip Van Winkle" and "The Mahogany Tree." "Howe's Masquerade," "Edward Randolph's Portrait," "Lady Eleanore's Mantle," and "Old Esther Dudley" are the stories selected. An edition of fifty copies will be made with larger plates, printed on Japanese paper, with wider margins, which will be sold only by subscription. "The Burial of Moses," a poem by Mrs. Alexander, has been illustrated by A. S. Cox, and will make a very showy book. Uniform with the "Whittier Gems," published last season, will be the "Longfellow Gems," containing extracts from the earlier and more popular poems, illustrated by fourteen illustrations by William Goodrich Beal, six of which appear as etchings. The volume also contains a fine portrait of the poet, and is gotten up in cloth, torchon, and full seal bindings. "The Everlasting Hills" and "Living Waters," with texts by Alice L Williams and illustrations by Louis K. Harlow, will be the new additions to the pretty and popular Beacon Light Text-Books, all of which will be put into fresh dress for the new season. The Art Series, also edited and illustrated chiefly by Louis K. Harlow, will receive some new volumes, each to contain six etchings. Among the self-explanatory titles are "Dikes and Windmills," showing Dutch scenery, "River Scenes," "Palmetto Scenes," Florida Scenery, etc., etc. In calendars the house announces: "Little People of the Year;" "Youth and Beauty for Every Day." compiled by Mrs. A. N. Bullins from the writings of Canon Farrar; "Golden Words," etc. Full titles of all his publications in preparation will be found in the classified list, chiefly under the headings of Art and Illustrated Gift-Books, and Birthday-Books, Bible Text-Books, Booklets, Calendars, Almanacs, etc.

THE CATHOLIC PUBLICATION SOCIETY Co. bave in press the "Illustrated Catholic Family Annual for 1800," which is said to be even better this year than usual. They have also in preparation new editions of a number of standard books, some of which have been out of print a long time. The titles of these will be found in our classified list elsewhere in this issue under their proper head-

THE CENTURY Co. announce the third and fourth volumes of "William Lloyd Garrison," of which the first two volumes appeared in 1885. This now completed important work is a history of the anti-slavery movement in America, as well as one of the most important of American biographies. It goes without saying that, bearing the Century Co.'s imprint, type, paper, presswork, and illustrations are what they should be in a monumental work of this kind. Readers of the Century Magasine, who from month to month have read with growing interest Mary Hartwell Catherwood's "Romance of Dollard," will be glad to know that this novel of Canadian life will be ready in book-form early in the season. Francis Parkman has written a preface for this notable novel, in which he says, "The exploit which forms the basis of the story is one of the most notable feats of arms in American annals." illustrations by Harry Sandham will be a feature of the book. "Two Runaways, and other stories," by Harry Stillwell Edwards, illustrated by E. W. Kemble, will bring together for the first time, in permanent form, some magazine stories showing unusual talent. Besides the title story, the volume includes "Sister Todhunter's Heart." "Elder Brown's Backslide," "Minc, a Plot," "Tom's Strategy," "De Valley an' De Shadder," and others of equal merit. A new book of Joel Chandler Harris' stories will bear the name of the initial story, "Daddy Jake, the Runaway," first published as a three-part serial in St. Nicholas Magasine. A few of the stories in the volume are printed for the first time, and some were originally published in the Atlanta Constitu-tion. The book is to be illustrated by E. W. Kemble.

THE CONGREGATIONAL S. S. AND PUB. Soc. have just published their Pilgrim Prize Series, a set of six books for which the publishers paid a thousand dollars for the best two, and generous prices for the others, which are all said to be far above the average Sunday-school story.
"Rose and Thorn" is a New England story, telling of the struggles of a deformed boy and his faithful sister; "A Titled Maiden" is the story of a young girl who studies medicine and becomes a useful country physician; "The Hermit of Livry" is a French story, telling of a young monk who breaks away from the Catholic Church; 'A Knot of Blue" tells of a boys' school and how the scholars made their way in the world; "My Lady Nell" has a quaint flavor of antiquity; and "How He Made His Fortune" is a story of the Pennsylvania coal-mines. For older readers the house announces "Notes on Difficult Passages of the New Testament," by Elias Riggs; "Asa Turner: a home missionary patriarch and his times," by Rev. George F. Magoun; and "The Childhood of Jesus," a series of sermons by Adolph Monod, translated by Rev. J. H. Myer.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co., in addition to the translations of foreign works and juveniles, of which they make specialties, announce three or four volumes in general literature of English and American origin. "A Century of American Literature," selections chosen and arranged by Huntington Smith from one hundred authors from Benjamin Franklin to James Russell Lowell, has been prepared with special reference to use in the classroom, and in mechanical make-up and literary merit is fitted for a text-book. "A Dictionary of Prose Quotations," by Anna L. Ward, will be a companion volume to "Dictionary of Quotations from the Poets," arranged on the same general plan of subjects in alphabetical order, a complete index and much biographical matter add to the value of this collection of pithy extracts; and "The Cambridge Book of Poetry and Song," selected from English and Amercian authors, and edited by Charlotte F. Bates, will be issued in a new and revised edition with new matter and all the old attractions of illustration, print, and binding which have already made it a popular gift-book. In "Convenient Houses, and How to Build Them." Mr. Louis H. Gibson, a practical architect, will give a large variety of plans, photographic designs, and artistic interiors and exteriors of homes varying in cost from $1000 to $10,000. Mr. Gibson believes that housekeeping conveniences should command the special attention of the architect. and shows a complete understanding of what is wanted in kitchen and cellar as well as in exterior ornamentation. The book will be well printed and profusely illustrated. In translations from the French "A History of France," by Victor Duruy, abridged from the seventeenth French edition by the translator, Mrs. M. Carev, has just been issued with an introductory notice and a continuation to the year 1889 by J. Franklin Jameson, Professor of History in Brown University: and a Library Edition in eight volumes of Victor Hugo's novels will be ready early, to be sold only in sets. The illustrations are the same as in the expensive fifteen-volume edition the paper is a little lighter, but the binding is neat and durable, and the edition will be a good one for library use. In fiction the publishers feel confident they have struck the epoch-making novel of the year. The author's name is not given, but, considering the plan of the work, it may be safely supposed it is written by a man. The title, "Metzerott—Shoemaker," conveys no idea that, on the line of "Robert Elsmere" and "Looking Backward," the writer has attempted a picture of life among men and women who work, suffer, and think. He also presents an ideal which he claims is "realizable," actual, and inspiring. The Astor Library of Standard Fiction, to be published by this house, will include one hundred and forty-one of their favorite volumes in attractive and durable binding, including the best known names in French and English fiction. Several little books suitable for gifts and souvenirs are also in preparation, such as "Ad Lucem," selections of prose and poetry for suffering ones, a dainty volume which can be had in parti-colored cloth or flexible leather, and " Talks About a Fine Art" and "The Children's Wing," two little booklets by Elizabeth Glover, in which the central figure is a smart little dressmaker, whose wise views of life appeal to heart and reason, and teach profitable lessons. For boys and girls there will be " Jed," a boy's adventures in the army of "'61-'65," by Warren Lee Goss, fully illustrated; "Famous Men of Science," by Sarah K. Bolton; "A Short History of the French Revolution," by Lydia Hoyt Farmer; "Rolf and His Friends," by J A K, and "Walks Abroad of Two Young Naturalists," translated from the French of Charles Beaugrand, by David Sharp, President of the Entomological Society, London, also fully illustrated, and in the excellent translation preserving true French humor and delicacy in the manner of conveying much information and instruction. These publishers are identified with Tolstol's Works, and by the publication of "War and Peace" in two volumes, with a valuable resume added by the able translator, Nathan Haskell Dole, of the scope and principal characters of this great historical novel, the edition of the great Russian reformer's novels is substantially complete. All their extensive list of Crowell's Poets are again ready in the Woodbine, the Sparrow and the flexible scal leather editions.

DE WOLFE, FISKE & Co. announce some new books and new editions, besides the entire list of publications purchased from Messrs. Cupples & Hurd, from whom they also bought plates, sheet and bound stock, copyrights, etc. W. H. H. Murray and Miss S. P. McLean, author of "Cape Cod Folks." are among the popular authors whose books will now bear their imprint. Mr. Murray's well-known books, "Daylight Land," "How Deacon Tubman and Parson Whitney Kept New Year's," 'The Story the Keg Told Me" and "The Story of the Man Who Didn't Know Much," "Deacons," and the "Adirondack Adventures" and " Adirondack Tales" will all be ready for the autumn season, with all the former illustrations, and in very tasteful new styles of binding. In the department of arts and sciences they announce "Electricity," by Thomas Kirwan, telling what it is, where it comes from, and how it is made todo mechanical work; and "The Essentials of the Metric System," by George Jackson, a handbook for self-instruction, with full explanations of its theoretical principles and numerous examples for practice. In biography there will be "Ancestral Guest Leaflets," blanks with printed questions for use in compiling family records, biographical notes, etc.; and new editions of "Salomon Maimon," an autobiography translated from the German by Prof. J. Clark Murray, and of "Arthur Penrhyn Stanley," by Grace A. Oliver. Educa-tion will be represented by "The National Kindergarten Manual," consisting of practical model lessons, rules and lectures, by Mrs. Louisa Pollock. In fiction there will be "The Aspen Shade," a romance by Mabel Louise Fuller; "Cleopatra's Daughter," a romance of a bunch of roses, by William Armstrong; and they have already sent to press the third volume in 7 he Fleetwing Series, another of Dr. C. M. Newell's fascinating combinations of fact and romance. This one is entitled "The Wreck of the Greyhound, or, the romantic love of the earl's daughter, story of a veritable wreck on Prater's Shoal. in the China Sea, we are informed by Mr. Newell, to which he has added a love-story. The earl of St. Clare and his daughter were rescued, after many lives were lost, by Captain Lawrence. who, the story goes, was knighted and married Lady Seymour, the earl's daughter. will be new editions of Robert Timsol's "An Alien from the Commonwealth" and Miss Mc-Lean's "Cape Cod Folks;" "Last Chance Junction," and "Towhead," the story of a girl.

New editions are also in preparation of the "Best Hundred Books;" Grimm's "Essay on Literature" in Mrs. S. H. Adams' translation; "John Brown," by Herman Von Holst; "The Business Man's Assistant," by Isaac R. Butts; Matthew Arnold's "Civilization in the United States;" "Boating Trips on New England Rivers," by Henry Parker Fellows; J. Clark Murray's "Handbook of Psychology;" Bandelier's "Mexico;" Byers' "Switzerland and the Swiss;"
Kimball's "Midnight Sunbeams;" Winslow's "Yesterdays with Actors;" and Johanna Spyri's juvenile, "Veronica and Other Friends."

DICK & FITZGERALD announce Isaac Pitman's "Manual of Phonography," also a key thereto; "Calisthenic Training and Musical Drill," by George Cruden; a similar work for young children by Alexander; a new series of "Funny Dialogues," by H. Elliott McBride; "Dick's Stump Speeches and Minstrel Jokes;" a treatise on the art of distilling, by Leonard Monzert; "Robertson's Guide to the Game of Draughts;" a new edition of Anderson's work on the game of checkers. revised and corrected by Robert M'Culloch; "Gossip's Chess-Players' Text-Book," and new issues of "Dick's Common-Sense Letter-Writer," and "Frost's Twenty-five Cent Letter-Writer."

DODD. MEAD & Co. will have a new volume of "Etchings" for the Christmas trade, giving twenty-five samples of the work of Jacquemart, Daubigny, Lepage, Bicknell, Detaille, Gilli, Burnand, Le Conteux, Bouverie, Casanova, Nehlig, Jazet, Ballin, Applan, Vans Gravesende, Martial, etc. Their sumptuous edition of Halévy's "Abbé Constantin" will be reprinted with illustrations reproduced by the Ives process from the idition de luxe of last season. A handsome two-volume edition of Austin Dobson's poems is to be published by special arrangement with the author. These will contain "Old World Idyls." " Vignettes in Rhyme," and " At the Sign of the Lyre," besides a goodly number of poems appearing in this country for the first time. "The Diary of Philip Hone," edited by Bayard Tuckerman, in two volumes, with portrait, will be a mine of information to the students of the history of New York. The diary extends from 1828 to 1845, during which time, as vestryman of Trinity Church, trustee of Columbia College and the Bloomingdale Asylum, President of the Bank for Savings and the Clinton Hall Association, this member of an old Knickerbocker family was closely identified with many different interests in his native city. "The Letters of the Duke of Wellington to Miss J.," dated from 1834 to 1851, give the correspondence of the all-conquering Iron Duke with a young woman devoted to a religious life, who felt called upon to do a great work with the great public man of his day. These letters will be brought out in substantial style early in the season. A new volume will be added to the edition of the late E. P. Roe's novels, made up of "Taken Alive, and other stories," which were found chiefly among Mr. Roe's papers after his death, or have appeared in the magazines. A very handsome edition of George Sand's "Consuelo," in four vols., in F. H. Potter's translation, will be brought out, and a small number of large-paper copies will also be made ready. Mrs. Amelia E. Barr will have a new story called "The Feet of Clay," the scene of which is laid in the Isle of Man, which will be brought out uniform with her well-known books already published by the house. For young people the publishers will provide a companion volume to their Blue-Jacket Series called "The Batthe to their Dissergances Series Canada Land Left Bissergances Series Canada Land Left Bissergances of '61," also written by Willis J. Abbott and illustrated by W. C. Jackson; Frank R. Stockton will furnish "What Might Have Been Expected," which is certain to be full of his rare, sunshiny humor; and the "Golden Days of '49, a story of the opening of California and the discovery of gold, by Kirk Munroe, will have ten double-page illustrations by Jackson. All the favorite books of the house have been put into new and fresh bindings of original design.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. are, as usual, among the first to get their fall novelties into shape for inspection, and have already announced a long line of color-books, art-books, and juveniles. The exquisite finish and daintiness of the Dutton publications are known in the trade. This year a specialty will be made of "cut-out" or "shaped" books, which have already been manufactured astonishing quantities in expectation of the great run their novelty and beauty cannot fail to insure. These booklets will range in price from ten cents to fifty cents retail, and will include sails, robins, pussies, oyster-shells, and a great variety of leaves and flowers. Between their artistically shaped covers they will hold from eight to ten pages of perfectly printed monotint color and type. Fred Hines and Walter Paget, who have already done so much fine work for this house, have improved, if possible, on their former efforts of taste and execution. Most of the work published by the Duttons is printed in Nister's printing establishment at Nuremberg.

"Nister's Art Calendar for 1890" is even more beautiful than the preceding ones. The publishers have not as yet succeeded in half meeting the demand for these calendars, and the trade should make sure to lay in a good supply. The celebrated line of "Hymns and Poems," which have grown to twelve volumes, are brought out in lapanese calf and cloth as heretofore, but have also been put this year into a rich dress of antique vellum padded covers sure to attract the eye of Christmas shoppers. Their supply of fine art children's books is as lavish as ever, and it is quite impossible to go into detailed description of the long list of books for girls and boys of which the titles appear under the heading of Iuvenile Literature in the preceding classified list. Several theological and miscellaneous books are also promised, but the great feature of the fall business of these publishers is their holiday literature.

JAMES H. EARLE, Boston, has in preparation "Madonna Hall," an anonymous story, discussing the relations of the Roman Catholic Church to the country and the public schools; "The Life of Franklin," by Wm. M. Thayer, in the Log Cabis Series; "The Child by the Sea," an interesting volume, by an English lady; and "Horner's Tales," an American reprint of forty good stories, which have had quite a run in England.

George H. Ellis, Boston, has in preparation a volume of social essays, entitled "Problems in American Society," by Joseph Henry Crooker, author of "Jesus Brought Back." It will contain six chapters: "The Student in American Life," "Scientific Charity," "The Root of the Temperance Problem," "The Political Conscience," "Moral and Religious Instruction in the Public Schools," and "The Religious Destitution of Villages." The chapter on scientific charity, along with other interesting matters, will describe Mr. Crooker's discovery of the origin of associated charities in Hamburg a century ago, while the next to the last chapter will treat the question at issue between the secular schools and the Catholic Church from a fresh point of view.

ESTES AND LAURIAT announce fewer fine art books than usual, but will put all the old favorites into good condition for the gift season. The trade has already seen two pretty holiday novelties in "Giotto's Sheep," a story of Florence, the home of painting and sculpture, and "The Rosebosh of Hildesheim," a story of an old German cathedral city, both of which are by Mary E. Wailer. A cheaper edition of Owen Meredith's "The Earl's Return," with illustrations by W. L. Taylor, is also in preparation. "Hudson's Complete Shakespeare" in a cabinet edition will be added to the long list of standard works in sets.

Among books suitable for gifts may also be mentioned "Self-made Men," by Harriet Beecher Stowe, of which a new edition is brought down to date: "The Beauties of Shakespeare," by Rev. William Dodd, fully illustrated with fine steel engravings; and "Other Men's Minds," by E. Davies, seven thousand extracts in alphabetical order on history, science, philosophy, religion, etc. For the young people the provision is large in quantity and of instructive quality as a rule. In "The Red Mountain of Alaska," Willis Boyd Allen has written an exciting narrative of adventure. for which F. T. Merrill and others have prepared quantities of original illustrations. "Feathers, Furs, and Fins" will be stories of animal life for children by C. Emma Cheney, Kate Tannett Woods, Mrs. D. P. Sanford, etc., all illustrated by well-known artists and engraved by Andrew. F. A. Ober's "Travels in Mexico" has just been issued, and he will also have a new volume in the Knockabout Club Series, in which these indefatigable travellers will go through Spain. "The Vas-sar Girls in Russia and Turkey," the "Zigzag Journeys to the British Isles," and "Great-Grandmother's Girls in New Mexico" will all be ready shortly. "Oliver Optic's Annual for 1880 volume 8 of "The Little Ones' Annual," also edited by this favorite author, are in active preparation. There will be an edition at reduced price of Prof. J. Russell Soley's "The Sailor-Boys of '61," and the publishers call special attention to "Oueen Hildegarde," by Laura E. Richards, illustrated with original designs by Garrett.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT will publish at once "An Appeal to Pharaoh," said to offer a radical solution of the negro problem and to be a startling discussion of the future of the African race in America. Still another contribution to the religious discussions of the day will be "Unto the Uttermost." by James M. Campbell, who holds the position of a reverent agnostic, acknowledging no authority but the truth, but conservative in his dependence on the Bible, of which he makes new and striking interpretations. In November will be issued " The Inspiration of the Scriptures, the Plymouth League Lectures delivered by Rossiter W. Raymond. There will also be new editions of "Bullet and Sheli," by George F. Willlams, a description of war as a soldier saw it, which at the time of its publication was declared correct history by Gen. Geo. B. McClellan, Gen. Sherman, and Gen. Grant; of "Tenants of an Old Farm," by Dr. Henry C. McCook, and of "Tour-gee's Novels."

THE FOWLER & WELLS COMPANY have ready for early publication "Every-Day Biography, Amelia J. Calver, a book containing about 1500 brief biographical sketches, arranged according to the day of the year on which the birthday occurs; "Ready for Business," a series of papers for boys on choosing an occupation, by Geo. J. Manson, a well-known journalist of this city; "Human Magnetism," by Dr. H. S. Drayton, editor of the Phrenological Journal, which considers the latest phases of this subject, including modern hypnotism, and all of the interesting phenomena in connection with it, as well as its practical bearing in the treatment of disease, etc.; a unique work by Mrs. Hester M. Poole, on the preparation and use of all kinds of fruits, foreign and domestic, cooked and raw; and a new, revised and enlarged edition of Fowler's "Self-Instructor in Phrenology."

Funk & Wagnalls announce "Beneath Two Flags," by Mr. Ballington Booth, wife of the General of the Salvation Army, giving the story of the Salvation Army. They have also in course of preparation a new Encyclopædia of Missions. The need of such a book has long been felt, and has become imperative : not only on account of the great number of missionary societies actually at work in all parts of the world, but because of the general interest which missions are exciting among all classes. The encyclopædia proposes to give-what is essential to an idea of any great movement-the history, geography, ethnology, biography, and statistics of missions, from the apostolic times to the present. There will be full maps, diagrams, and a copious index. Nothing will be wanting to make it a complete book of reference for all interested in this great work of the Church.

GEBBIE & Co., Philadelphia, announce a new translation of the "Imitation of Christ" twenty photogravure illustrations selected chiefly from the old masters in the Louvre; "Babylon Electrified" a scientific romance giving an account of an expedition undertaken to restore ancient Babylon by the power of electricity, by A. Bleunard, translated from the French by Frank L. White, profusely illustrated by Montader; a handsome illustrated edition of the work on "Christopher Columbus and the Discovery of the New World" which the Marquis de Belloy wrote for the instruction of his nephew and which was at once raised to the rank of a classic in France and other countries of Europe; "The Laughing Philosopher in the Middle of the 19th Century," edited by Alfred Crowquill, a volume of rare fun, illustrated by Crowquill, Cruikshank, and John Leech; a new series of "Character Sketches from Dickens," by F. Barnard and other artists; a new translation of Dumas' "The Lady with the Camellias," with thirty-nine photogravure illustrations by Albert Lynch; R. E. Francillon's "Romances of the Law." a collection of twelve tales in which are brought out in broad relief the many peculiarities of the English law; a new and modified edition of Thomas Bridges' "Burlesque Translation of Homer," with all the original humorous illustrations; "Half a Century of Music in England." by F. Hueffer; a "Compendium and Concordance to Shakespeare," with illustrations by Howard, uniform with the Dr. Johnson Edition of Shakespeare's works in seven volumes also in preparation; a new edition of Prof. J. W. Hill's book on "The Dog—its management and diseases;" Arsène Houssaye's "Seven Years at the Comédie Français," with twelve photogravure portaits of eminent French actors and act-resses: "Indian Life, religious and social," by John Campbell Oman; a library edition in four volumes of "Taine's History of English Literature;" and new editions of Francis C. Turner's "Short History of Art" and Gilbert White's "Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne, both profusely illustrated. For children they have "Wonderful Stories of Daring, Peril, and Adventure," by Dr. Macaulay, editor of the Leisure Hour; "The Story-Telling Album for our boys and girls," and Emma Marshall's" Our Own Picture-Book of Many Places and Many .People," all very fully illustrated.

books will be found in the classified list in this issue under the heading of Education, Language

S. C. Griggs & Co. will publish early in Ortober a timely volume in a translation from the Danish by Prof. Julius C. Olson, of the University of Wisconsin, of Peter Lauridsen's work, entitled "Vitus Bering, the Discoverer of Bering Strait." The author was granted unusual privileges for research among the archives of the Russian Admiralty, and the present volume, while being both a biography and a defence of Bering, is also a record of the Russian explorations made between 1725 and 1743, all of which were under the direction of this Danish explorer, who carried his expedition six thousand miles across a wilderness, and launched it on the shores of an unknown Lieutenant Frederick Schwatka, our own well-known explorer, has prepared an introduction for American readers, and the book will be further enriched by four maps, one of which coatains a fac-simile signature of Bering's, obtained from Russian archives, which contains no "h." By the acquisition of Alaska the people of this country have been brought close to the field of Bering's labor, and the translation into English of a work thus connected with American geographcal interest should prove a welcome addition to our literature.

HARPER & Bros. intend to bring out some fee illustrated work this season. "Cathedrals and Abbeys in Great Britain and Ireland," with Rev. Richard Wheatley's vivid descriptions and illustrations by world-famous artists, will be a sumpuous holiday book; "The Quiet Life" will consist of poems from various authors, between a prologue and epilogue by Austin Dobson, the text for elaborate drawings by Edwin A. Abbey and Alfred Parsons: "London: a pilgrimage, have Blanchard Jerrold's text and Gustave Dores illustrations; "Winters in Algeria" are described and illustrated by F. A. Bridgman, in a book already in press; "City Legends," by Will Carleton, will be a handsomely illustrated volume; and the name of Thomas Nast will again appear on a volume of "Christmas Drawings for the Ha-man Race." These six illustrated volumes are all of popular character and will be given an ex-terior appealing to popular taste. "The Life of Martin Van Buren," by George Bancroft, and "Chita: a memory of Last Island," are just ready. The sixth instalment of "The Frankis Square Song Collection," which, under the able. editorship of J. P. McCaskey, has become so popular in homes and nurseries, will be issued at a lower price than previous volumes. Theodose Child's travelling notes of European travel will be brought out as "Summer Holidays;" "A History of the Kansas Crusade," by Eli Thayer, will have an introduction by Edward Everett Hale, giving the gist of the "free soil, free pen, free men" movement so familiar in our childhood. "Man and His Maladies, or, the way to health," by A.E. Bridger, will be a popular handbook of physiology and domestic medicine up to the times in medical science. William J. Rolfe, who has done so much good work to make the you understand good literature, has edited "The Select Poems of William Wordsworth," and plied them with explanatory notes full of eru cople," all very fully illustrated.

dion and information. For the young people never forgotten by this house, there will be new volume by Thomas W. Kaoz, "The Be Travellers in Mexico;" "Redeeming the Republic," by Charles Carleton Coffin, treating of the third period of the war of the rebellion, in the year 1864; "City Boys in the Woods," by Henry P. Wells, describing a trapping venture in Maine; "Captain Polly," by Sophie Swett, in the Young People's Series; and "The Princess Liliwinkins, and other stories," by Henrietta Christian Wright. All these books for boys and girls are fully illustrated and attractively bound. Many of them are made up of stories from the ever-popular Harper's Young People.

D. C. HEATH & Co. announce a number of interesting additions to their already important list of German and French text-books, the titles of which will be found under the heading of Education in our classified list elsewhere.

THE HISTORY Co., San Francisco, announce the twenty-sixth volume of their uniform edition of Hubert H. Bancroft's historical works. This rolume will be "The History of Utah, 1540-1886," one of the most interesting of Mr. Bancroft's works. This territory was founded to make room for a new religion, and the political organization of Utah was entirely subject to the Mormon religion. Most descriptions and statements concerning Utah are partial and passionate, whether written by Mormons or outsiders, but his experienced American historian tells us that 'those who desire a knowledge of people and wents impartially viewed and dispassionately resented, I am confident, will find them here." The works of H. H. Bancroft are sold by subcription only.

HENRY HOLT & Co.'s announcements are almost wholly educational. A full list of titles will e found in the classified list under Education, anguage, etc. The books are on every subect, although many of them are for the study of inguages, from ancient Greek to modern German. The manuscript of Alexander Johnston's A Shorter History of the United States," which eached the publishers during the author's last liness, will be sent to the printers at once. In tyle and matter the present version of Prof. ohnston's well-known book appeals to younger upils, as the dates to be learned have been reuced to a minimum and the book depends on istorical connection rather than dates. Early the season will be published "A Handbook of sychology," by James Mark Baldwin, of which he first volume will be on "The Senses and Intelxt." "The Emotions and Will "will be treated la separate volume later on. A cheaper edition I Part v. of Symonds' "Renaissance in Italy" overs "The Catholic Reaction" in two handme volumes. This house year by year brings ut a small number of novels, chosen with skill ad care, but thus far no titles have been anounced.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co.'s announcements re in many respects very similar this year to use of their announcements in former years, in-inding quite a large number of books in biography, some important works in history, several stractive novels, some promising holiday books, few quite important religious books, and several ew editions which are likely to attract public ivor. In the department of Biography are romised a "Life of R. H. Dana, Jr.," author of Two Years Before the Mast," by Charles Frans Adams, who cannot write a dull book, and ho is likely to make this an exceedingly interesting one: a "Life of Richard Steele," by George A. Aitken, a work in two volumes with several portraits; in the series of American Religious Leaders, lives of Jonathan Edwards, by Prof. A. V. G. Allen; Wilbur Fisk, a leading Methodist, by Prof. George Prentice; Rev. Dr. Muhlenberg, by Rev. W. W. Newton, of Pittsfield, Mass.; Dr. Charles Hodge, by President Patton, of Princeton; Dr. Francis Wayland, by Prof. Murray, of Princeton; Archbishop Hughes, by John Gilmary Shea; and Theodore Parker, by John Fiske : in the series of American Statesmen. lives of Benjamin Franklin, by John T. Morse, Jr. ; John Jay, by George Pellew; Lewis Cass, by Prof. A. C. McLaughlin, of Ann Arbor; an autobiography of Mary Howitt, in two volumes, with several portraits and many other illustrations; a most important work, the "Life of Harriet Beecher Stowe," by her son, Rev. Charles E. Stowe, in a single octavo volume, which will be embellished with portraits of Mrs. Stowe and her nearest illustrious relatives, with several pictures of the homes where she has lived : " Portraits of Friends," papers on Thomas Erskine, Arthur Hugh Clough, and others, by Principal Shairp, with a sketch of Shairp's life by Prof. Sellar, and a portrait; and last, a series of biographical sketches, entitled "Six Portraits," devoted to Lucca della Robbia, Correggio, William Blake, Corot, George Fuller, and Winslow Homer, by Mrs. M. G. Rensselaer. In the department of History new volumes will be added to the series of American Commonwealths: New Jersey, by Prof. Austin Scott, of Rutgers College; Illinois, by E. G. Mason, a lawyer of Chicago; and Pennsylvania, by the Hon. Wayne MacVeagh; and important work on "The Genesis of the United States," by Alexander Brown, of Virginia, who has made a very careful examination of the secret archives of Spain, and found a vast number of documents which throw light on the contest in the early part of the 17th century for the possession of this continent; "Recollections of Mississippi," a book partly biographical, partly his-torical, portraying life in the South before the Civil War, by the Hon. A. LOVELL & Co. will publish immediately an interesting and valuable contribution to the literature of the Civil War in Thomas S. Townsend's "The Honors of the Empire State in the War of the Rebellion." The volume will be dedicated to the memory of the eleven hundred commissioned officers of the volunteer regiments of the State of New York who lost their lives in the army. For nearly thirty years Mr. Townsend has made a study of the records of the war, both North and South, from which comes this volume, which will be of national value as well as interesting to the fellow-citizens of his native State. About the same time will be issued "Hobbs' Preparatory Academic and High School Arithmetic," containing 1000 problems and examples used in examinations for admission in leading colleges, including West Point and Annapolis.

Frank F. Lovell & Co. announce a series of three books for boys to be called The Wild Adventure Series, all written by Lieut. R. H. Jayne, who has christened them "On the Trail of Geronimo," "The Land of Mystery," and "The White Mustang." A. C. McClurg & Co. announce a volume on "Thiers," by Paul de Rémusat, the French senator, which is still another of the admirable translations by Prof. Melville Anderson, of the Ohio State University, which the publishers are having specially made for them, the English translations not proving satisfactory. A descriptive work of interest will be "In and Around Berlin," by Mrs. Morton, an American lady who should know the region well and who claims that next to Paris Berlin is the most interesting of European cities. In fiction there will be "The Story of Tonty," by Mrs. Catherwood, a tale of French exploration in America two hundred years ago, Tonty being imagined the faithful lieutenant of the intrepid La Salle. This will be illustrated. Mrs. Catherwood's other story of this period, "The Romance of Dollard," has been one of the great attractions of the Century Magazine during the year and earned the praise of Francis Parkman for its historical accuracy. A second illustrated story which is just ready is "Opening the Oyster," by Charles L. Marsh, who, inspired by the well-known words, "The world's mine oyster," tells how two young men setting out from New York afoot and penniless, visited forty cities in all quarters of the globe, and in five years met with strange adventures and secured their fortunes. A collection of choice quotations on music will be entitled "Musical Moments," and the poems selected refer not only to the music of the voice and of instruments, but to all sweet sounds in nature. Their provision for children will be "Theresa at San Domingo," by Madame Fresneau, of which a translation has been made that will give children a vivid idea of the great negro insurrection in 1789, made clearer by numerous illustrations. A new translation of the "Poem of Job," by Dr. George H. Gilbert, of the Chicago Theological Seminary, said to preserve not only the poetic form but also the rhythmical move-ment of the original, will be forthcoming, and is said to have met with the praise of the learned Old Testament scholar, Dr. Franz Delitzsch. "Familiar Talks on Astronomy, Geography, and Navigation." by Captain W. H. Parker, a veteran teacher and navigator, will present elementary principles of astronomy with great clearness. For purposes of illustration the author has analyzed the voyage of Columbus in a chapter referring to the coming celebration of 1802. Numerous simple charts and diagrams add to the value of the work. Still another is to be added to the large number of reference handbooks. It is compiled by Mr. H. F. Riddell and will be issued under the title "Fact, Fancy, and Fable." It is intended to meet the wants of the average read-There will also be a new inexpensive edition of Ruskin's "Sesame and Lilies." house calls special attention to a story, to be entitled "Alexia," by Mrs. Mary Abbott, of Chicago, said to be of the bright and sparkling order of Mrs. Howard's "One Summer," and to a dainty new cook-book, which will masquerade under the title of "Seven Days After the Honeymoon." In a series of decorated pages it will give bills of fare for every day in the week and good recipes for the dishes chosen. That the honeymoon's duration on the man's side depends upon a neat pandering to his "cupboard love" has probably been the author's reasoning in choosing her title.

DAVID MCKAY. Philadelphia, calls attention to his wonderfully cheap American Classic Series, which already contains two of the best stories of the pioneer American novelist, Charles Brockden Brown—"Arthur Mervyn" and "Wieland;" two volumes of Emerson's most popular essays; Hawthorne's "Mosses from an Old Manse" and "Twice-Told Tales," and Bayard Taylor's "Views Afoot." Other volumes will be added later. These volumes are printed from large, readable type on good laid paper, and are neatly and substantially bound. The series, as its name indicates, will include only such books as have really taken their place as classics in our literature

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have just issued an edition of "The Imitation of Christ" "in rhythmic sentences according to the original intentions of the author," a handsome piece of book-making, with its cover of rich ecclesiastical purple, with vellum corners and back and gold lettering; "How They Kept the Faith," a tale of the Huguenots of Languedoc, by Grace Raymond; "Unknown Switzerland," a translation of Victor Tissot, by Mrs. Wilson; "Fishin' Jimmy," by Annie Trumbull Slosson; and an American edi-tion of "The Thumb Bible," with a little sketch of John Taylor, the water-poet. All these books are ready for fall orders. In the immediate future they will publish several volumes, chiefly of a religious nature. An essay concerning "Supernatural Revelation," by C. M. Mead, lately Professor in Andover Theological Seminary, the course of lectures delivered at Princeton Theological Seminary on the basis of the Christian faith, promises to be among the important theological books of the year; the new volume in the Epochs of Church History will be "The Aryan Controversy," by G. Watkins; and in the Men of the Bible Series the new volumes will be entitled " Jesus, the Christ," by F. J. Vallings; "Samuel and Saul" and "David," by Wm. J. Deane; "Daniel," by H. Deane; and "The Kings of Israel and Judah," by Canon G. Rawlinson. A selection from the sermons and writings of Walter R. Brooks, a clergyman in the interior of New York State, will be published under the title of "God in Nature and Life;" the old favorite, "Stepping Heavenward," by Mrs. Prentiss, will be brought out in a 25c. paper edition in response to many demands from buyers who wish to use this little classic as a tract for distribution; "Christ and His Teachings" will be the second volume of sermons by Alexander Gardiner Mercer; and "Believing and Doing" will be the collective title of sermons by Lewis H. Reid. The great work on the Pulpit Commentary goes steadily on, and the next volumes will be the second volume of "Commentary on St. Luke," of special use for the International S. S. Lessons for 1889, and the volume on the "Catholic Epistles." The Biblical Illustrator Series, edited by I. S. Exell, will also bring out three volumes on "St. Luke's Gospel." In secular literature the announcements mention "A Handful of Monographs," by Margaret J. Preston, a volume chiefly composed of sketches of continental and English travel; "Driftings in Mid-Ocean," by Miss Rose Porter, a sort of sequel to her "Sum-mer Drift-wood" and "Winter Fire," telling a story of ocean travel full of incident and useful thoughts; and a new edition of "Wilfred, a story with a happy ending," by Alice T. Winthrop, first published in 1880, to which the publishers now call special attention as suitable for the admirers of "Little Lord Fauntleroy." No bookseller need be told that the publications of this house always attract buyers by their neatness of get-up, and that many of their little booklets are specially adapted for holiday sales.

FLEMING H. REVELL, Chicago and New York, announces a number of books of special interest to ministers, Sunday-school teachers, and students. CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS' announcements inchide half a dozen or more books of the first importance, and several others of scarcely less interest. First in the list stands the long-heralded "Viking Age," by Paul P. Du Chaillu, the famous traveller and explorer. The work is in two octavo volumes and has upwards of 1400 illustrations, making it a holiday book of rare value. Mr. Du Chailh's great popular work is the product of many rears of incessant labor in the collection and arrangement of facts which throw a flood of light upon the character of the progenitors of the Engish-speaking race. Besides material testimonies to the greatness of these Northmen, we have the iterary and historic records of the Sagas and Edlas, and by testing the evidence of one with the ther we can obtain a wonderfully vivid idea of the nanners, customs, laws, traditions, and domestic ife of a bygone age. A book which is a wonderful ecord of the industrial energy of the United States s "The American Railway: its construction, deelopment, management, and appliances," with nore than 225 illustrations, and with an introducion by Judge Thomas M. Cooley, Chairman of the nterstate Commerce Commission. The authors f the papers that constitute this handsome volme are among the best-known authorities in the ountry, both as theorists and as practical railway sen, each man having been selected for his unsual eminence in the department he was asked describe. They are Thomas Curtis Clarke, ohn Bogart, M. N. Forney, E. P. Alexander, H. i. Prout, Horace Porter, Theodore Voorhees, enjamin Norton, Arthur T. Hadley, Thomas L. ames, Charles Francis Adams, and B. B. Adams. r. These articles have been revised and expanded nce appearing in Scribner's Magasine, and a umber of new illustrations have been added. . feature of the volume is a series of maps raphically showing railway development in the United States from 1830 to the present ıy. Valuable statistics have been specialy arnged, with ingenious diagrams showing at a ance phases of railway progress. A complete id thorough index makes the volume of unusual orth and convenience as a reference-book. On s artistic side this work has commanded the serces of the leading artists and engravers. cond volume of the "Cyclopedia of Music d Musicians," which will be ready shortly, stains, besides scores of text portraits of usicians and singers and fac-simile scores and tographs, full-page etched portraits of Gounod, andel. Haydn, Lasso, Liszt, Lully, Mendelssohn, Meyerbeer, Mozart, Paine, Palestrina, and One of the most popular of this firms elaborately illustrated holiday books will be "Among Cannibals." which is an account, by Carl Lumboltz, of four years' travels in Australia, and of camp-life with the aborigines of Queensland. The translation from the Norwegian is by ex-Minister Rasmus B. Anderson; and the volume will be richly embellished with a portrait, maps, four chromo-lithographs, and 100 woodcuts. N. S. Shaler's "Aspects of the Earth" includes all the papers that have appeared in Scribner's Magasine, and one additional chapter. Under the title "The Stability of the Earth," the whole subject of earthquakes is discussed with the greatest richness of anecdote and illustration, and a special reference to their occurrence and probability in the United States; "The Stability of the Atmosphere" in a similar way treats of cyclones, hurricanes, and all the phenomena of winds and air currents. "Volcanoes" and "Cav-erns and Cavern Life" are two chapters full of striking facts new to the majority of readers; in "Rivers and Valleys" the great river basins like those of the Mississippi and Ohio are especially discussed; and "The Forests of North America is a contribution to a subject of pressing importance. The paper on "Soils" is not less important to every agriculturist. The illustrations and designs by some of the foremost American artists are of special beauty and interest. The first two volumes, covering "The First Administration of Thomas Jefferson." will be issued of Henry Adams' "History of the United States." Mr. Adams' work when complete will cover one of the most important periods of American history—that embraced in the two administrations of Jefferson and the two following of Madison-from 1801 to 1817. A new book by Donald G. Mitchell is also announced—"English Lands, Letters, and Kings," the sub-title being "From Celt to Tudor." The whole field of English literature, from its shadowy beginnings in Celtic times to that epoch-marking event, the death of Elizabeth, forms the theme of Mr. Mitchell's new volume. Two of the most popular of Mr. Mitchell's books, "Reveries of a Bachelor" and "Dream Life," are also to be issued in a dainty and beautiful 16mo style called the Cameo Edition. Each volume will contain as a frontispiece an etching by Percy Moran. A limited edition on Holland paper of 200 numbered copies of these two books, representative of the highest style of artistic manufacture, will also be issued. That truth is indeed stranger than fiction is well illustrated in the group of stories comprised in a new volume by George W. Cable. "Strange True Stories of Louisiana," with illustrations and fac-simile reproductions.

The titles are "The Young Aunt with the White Hair," "Françoise and Suzanne," "The History of Alix de Morainville," "Salome Müller," "The Haunted House in Royal Street," "Attalie Brouillard," and "A Union Woman's Diary in the War." In the introduction the editor tells the entertaining story of how the old manuscripts from which several of these tales are transcribed fell into his hands, and of how the other narratives were obtained by him. "The Master of Ballantrae: a winter's tale," by Robert Louis Stevenson (with 10 full-page illustrations by William Hole), has appeared in Scribner's Magazine and supplies fresh proof of the extraordinary versatility of Mr. Stevenson's genius, which expresses itself in new literary forms with the case and surety of a past-master in the art. The Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke in "The Poetry of Tennyson" discusses various aspects of the Poet Laureate's genius, with delicate artistic sense and a fine feeling for literary form. The volume has a chronology of the great events in the poet's lifetime which have, or may have, influenced his song, and a list of the Biblical quotations of which Tennyson has made use. "Whither? a theological question for the times." by the Rev. Charles A. Briggs, is the product of more than twenty years of study in the history of Puritan theology and especially of the authors of the Westminster Standards. Another new book is "Foreign Missions: their place in the pas torate, in prayer, and in conferences," by the Rev. A. C. Thompson, D.D. A new book by Dr. Philip Schaff is promised—" Literature and Poetry," a volume of popular essays on the English language, the poetry of the Bible, and kindred subjects. Several new editions are announced. Lester Wallack's volume of reminiscences, the limited edition of which was sold in a few days last spring, will be published at a popular price. "A Collection of Letters of Dickens" is practically a new book, though compiled from already published materials. It is uniform in style with the "Collection of Letters of Thackeray." and the two volumes will be popular as a holiday gift. Ex-Minister Washburne's "Recollections of a Minister to France" will also appear. with all the original illustrations, in a new and cheaper edition. "The Dawn of History: an introduction to prehistoric study," edited by C. F. Keary, has so much fresh matter, about 100 pages, that it is really a new book, rather than a new edition. This standard work now embodies the result of the researches of the last decade. A full Index is added. Of the juveniles of this house the chief is "Personally Conducted," by Frank R. Stockton, with 46 illustrations by Joseph Pennell, Alfred Parsons, and others. This is a fascinating volume of travel by the famous story-teller. "Children's Stories in English Literature," by Henrietta Christian Wright, aims to bring to the attention of young readers a summary, set forth in simple, attractive language, of the lives and works of the great men of English literature. Especial stress is laid upon popular literature, the old British and Saxon songs, the romantic episodes of King Arthur's reign in its relation to learning, Robin Hood, etc. "The Adventures of Captain Mayo, or, a Phœnician expedition, B.C. 1000," by Leon Cahun, with 73 illustrations, is a new and cheaper edition of a remarkable popular romance—an imaginary story of travel and perilous adventure, based in the narratives of exploration of the time and presenting a remarkably graphic and life like p cture of the then known world. Finally there is a new and cheaper edition of an old favorite "Poetry for Children, by Mary and Charles Lamb.

SCRIBNER & WELFORD announce among illustrated and standard works for the season of 1889-90, "Memoirs of Count Carlo Gozzi" (Italian dramatist 1722-1806), translated into English by John Addington Symonds, with essays by the translator on Gozzi's life, Italian impromptu Comedy, The Dramatic Fables, and Pietro Longhi, illustrated with portrait and six original etchings by Adolph Lalauze, and eleven subjects illustrating Italian Comedy by Maurice Sand, engraved on copper by A. Manceau and colored by hand. No English edition of Gozzi's Memoirs has yet appeared, and Mr. Symonds name as editor is guarantee for the excellence and literary quality of the translation. Another biographial work of importance will be "Fanny Burney (Madame D'Arblay) and Her Friends," select passages from her diary and other writings edited by L. B. Seeley, with nine illustrations after Revnolds, Gainsborough, Copley, and West, to be issued uniform with "Horace Walpole and His World." A. H. Bullen, the experienced editor of many volumes on the list of the house, has now ready "Lyrics from the Dramatists of the Elinbethan Age;" Lady Jackson's volume on "The First of the Bourbons," 1595-1610, will be brought out in two volumes; the third series in the Illustrated Biographies of the Great Artists will be begun, and among the early volumes will appear memoirs of Corot, Rousseau, Millet, Diaz. Daubigny, Cruikshank, Van de Velde, Mulready, De Wint, etc., and a limited edition will be issued of "Poems and Translations," by W. J. Linton, whose fame as a wood-engraver has somewhat obscured his talent as a poet. "Russian Pictures" will be the new volume in the Pen and Pencil Series; volumes VII. and VIII. are the new and concluding volumes of the Henry Irving Shakespeare; the new volumes in the Il-lustrated Gift-Book Series will be a revised edition of Napier's "History of the Peninsular War." 1807-1814; and the Bohn Library will have many additions, of which the most important will be "Young's Travels in France" during the years 1787-1789, with an introduction and biographical sketch by M. Betham Edwards, a book of which John Morley has said: "Worth a hundred times more than Burke, Paine, and Mackintosh all put together;" "Josephus' Works" in five volumes; Johnson's "Lives of the Poets;" the second volume of "Hoffmann's Tales," etc., etc. This house are agents for T. & T. Clark, of Edisburgh, and offer some valuable theological works published by them, at the lowest possible prices, among them "The History of German Theology in the Nineteenth Century," by F. Lichtenberger, translated and edited by W. Hastie; "The Commentary on the Book of Genesis," by Frant Delitszch, translated from the revised fifth edition, by special arrangement with the author; Witherow's "Form of the Christian Temple;" and Blackie's "Preachers of Scotland." There is a long list of announcements in the department of Juvenile Literature in the preceding classified list of this issue. Henty's new volumes are "With Lee in Virginia," a story of the American Civil War; "By Pike and Dyke," a tale of the rise of the Dutch Republic; "One of the 28th," a story of Waterloo; and "Tales of Daring and Danger." There is a specially good list of books for girls.

WILLARD SMALL, Boston, has in preparation "Geometry in the Secondary School," by J. W. MacDonald, Principal of the Stoneham High School; the "Address on the Laying of the Corner-Stone of the Bunker Hill Monument, June 17, 1825," by Daniel Webster, in paniphlet form; "Shakespeare's Select Plays—Julius Cæsar," in which the text of William Akis Wright is used; a hamly edition of "Though to Marcus Aurelius Ant ninus," translated by Rev George Long, and "Cæsar's Gallic War."

E. & F. N. Spon have just ready some very valuable books, of which full titles will be found under the heading of Arts and Sciences in the classified list preceding this department.

FRED. A. STOKES & BRO., as always, make quantity and quality balance in their announcements, and the first view of their catalogue for the season of 1880-90 is bewildering. To classify even seems impossible, and we therefore follow the alphabetical arrangement of the publishers. "Between Times," by Walter Learned, will be the seventh volume in the series of American Verse, a collection of verse which has appeared in The Century and other prominent periodicals, consisting chiefly of vers de société fully up to the standard of the other volumes in the series. This year the series receives a new binding of half crushed levant, gilt top, French style, with wide raised bands on back, and also a new half cloth binding, with vellum cloth backs and half sides covered with tracery in gold, and outer half sides in delicate blues and grays. "A Birthday-Book of Birds" will be the new volume in The Bird Song Series, and the old favorites of this series will be put into new "illuminated binding," backs and half sides in plain colors, delicate tints and lettering in gold; outer half sides in new designs of cherubs, flowers, etc., in many colors. "Cards" will be a little volume on one of the most intricate and puzzling subjects connected with social etiquette, the significant and correct uses of visiting-cards, as governed by the usage of the best New York society; and "Child Lore," a collection of folk legends and rhymes, will be printed upon a very small page and put up in new enamel binding with gold lettering. The new number in the Choice Photogravure Series will be "Etchings of Places," a collection of four etchings on Japan paper, neatly matted, com-prising Gloucester, Mass., Madison Square, N. Y. City, In Central Park, N. Y. City, and Near Newport, R. I., which are accompanied by titlepage, and bound in leatherette cover tied with ribbons. The three volumes in The Familiar Birds Series are now offered in a new edition at reduced price in new styles of binding of white vellum cloth and white enamel stamped in gold and colors. The Finger-Post Series is a novel and attractive series in small size, each volume designed to illustrate the words "run and read." so printed that when the covers are open the type stretches across both pages. The six little books will be "Ambulance Hints," giving valuable information for action in case of sun-strokes, cuts, fainting-fits, etc.; "Daily Bread for Daily Life for Three Months," selections of a religious mature; "Odd Minutes with the Imitation of Christ," selected from Thomas à Kempis, by T. M. Lindsay; "Some Old Scotch Songs," compiled by W. Moodie; and "Wit and Humor," in two volumes, one poetry, one prose. "Flowers from Field and Woodland" will be the new volume in the Flowers from Hill and Dale Series; and this series is also this year dressed in white enamel and gold. "The Golden Treasury," by Francis Turner Palgrave will be brought out in a Family Edition, illustrated with border printed in tints, designed by W. St. John Harper and engraved by George T. Andrew; "Gondola and Palace," a collection of fac-similes of celebrated Venetian photographs, will be elegantly gotten up with elaborate cover representing a Florentine frame of white and gold, with background of Nilegreen, tied with heavy silk cord; the sixth series of "Good Things of Life" will contain the latest illustrations and witty sayings from that bright American comic paper. "Hayes, Garfield, and Arthur," by William O. Stoddard, will be the new volume in the Lives of the Presidents Series;

"The Imitation of Christ" the new volume in the Duodecimo Series; the Handy Volume Standards will all again be in stock with several additions and fresh bindings; and "Kingsley's Select Works," in four volumes, will be in various styles of binding, including wine-colored vellum cloth. half calf, half crushed levant, etc. Three new series of "Leaflets" will be ready, each containing twelve pretty booklets, tied with ribbons in separate envelope, very suitable for Christmas A new sixteenmo edition of "Lyra Elegantiarum," edited by Frederick Locker, will be ready, and each volume is offered in many styles of binding, ranging in price from $1 to The Patriotic Song Series will contain national songs, each illustrated by six leaves in full colors, and three vignettes of American scenery, two pages of music, and four leaves in monotints, and they are to be brilliantly bound in double covers of illustrated metals. The Old Song Series will contain four volumes devoted to English, Irish, and Scotch songs, each ribbon-tied and appropriately illustrated. The Sixteenmo Edition of the Poets will be increased to fifteen volumes, the last entry being the "Poems of Sir John Suckling," which will also be issued in the Westall Edition. "Salads and Sauces," by Thomas I. Murrey, seems decidedly prosy among all these things of poetry and beauty. The dramatic works of Oliver Goldsmith and Sheridan will be added to the Select Dramatic Series in four volumes; the Thistle Series will have three poems of Walter Scott's bound in enamel covers with Scotch Tartan design; the Tiny Folk Series will have additions of "Children;" "Tiny Folk of Sunny Days;" and "Tiny Folk of Wintry Days," each having verses by Edith M. Thomas, illustrated by Maud Humphrey, gotten up in irresistible bindings. "The Seasons," by Thomson; "The Poems of Oliver Goldsmith" and his "Vicar of Wakefield" will be issued in the Westall Series-so called because each volume is illustrated from the original steel-engravings of the early part of this century after the famous de-signs by Westall. If we have overlooked anything, the titles will be found fully classified in the preceding list. As usual all the Stokes publications are dainty and delicate in style and exe-

TICKNOR & Co. will publish in October a reprint of Charles Wickes' famous works on "Spires and Towers of Mediæval Churches of England." This will be issued in one folio volume, including the plates. Owing to the great skill and care exercised by the Heliotype Printing Company, the prints have lost nothing of their original force and delicacy in reproduction, and the reprint will be almost as valuable and useful as the original. A certain portion of these plates have been republished in the Imperial Edition of the American Architect, but even subscribers to that edition will probably be glad to find a place for the work in its enlarged and completed form, as the plates then printed were scattered through the issues of that journal during a period of nearly two years, and therefore are not readily accessible when an architect, who is about to begin upon a new ecclesiastical design, desires to gain ideas from the inspiring study of completed masterpieces. Moreover, the present edition contains in full the valuable notes and criticisms of the original, making forty pages of text and notes, not less valuable than the plates.

THE UNITED BRETHREN PUBLISHING HOUSE (W. J. Shuey) will publish for the coming Christmas "Gospel Tidings," a new Christmas service by I. and W. S. Baltzell, said to be full of new ideas and unusually good music; and they will again have ready their popular Sunday-school selections, "Messiah's Star," the service by Rev. I. Baltzell; "Christmas Selections, Nos. I and 2," bright songs for all forms of holiday occasions, by E. S. Lorenz; and "Songs of the Morning," a much favored music-book in which Mr. taltzell and Mr. Lorenz combine their good work.

THE UNIVERSALIST PUBLISHING HOUSE announce the fifth issue in their Manuals of Faith and Duty, which will be "Salvation," by Orello Cone, of Akron, Ohio, giving the various schemes of salvation taught from the Old and New Testaments, and deducing from Bible statements the creed of his sect on the universality of salvation.

J. H. VAIL & Co.'s announcements will be found in the preceding classified list under the heading of Medical Science.

Marcus Ward & Co., who make specialties of booklets, calendars, and colored picture-books for the little ones, have in preparation some unusually pretty things. Longfellow's "Flower de Luce" and the quaint old legend of "Rip Van Winkle" will be combined in a booklet illustrated by Thomas Goodman. An appropriate holiday volume will be "The Magnificat," illuminated in colors, containing, amongst other fine pictures. colored reproductions of Raphael's most noted Madonnas-the Madonna de San Sisto, the Madonna della Sedia, and the Madonna della Seggi-"Where Lilies Live and Waters Wind Away" will be a book of pictures of children at play, gathering lilies and wild-flowers; and there will be illustrated "Nursery Legends," "Mother Goose Rhymes," "Christmas Carols and Hymns," etc. The calendars of last year—"The Shake-speare," "Day unto Day," "The Every-Day," and "To-Day"—are all made new for this year; and the new-comers will be "Our Daily Portion," a sacred calendar, and "The Seasons' Calendar" -all gotten up with that dainty perfection that distinguishes everything bearing the imprint of the house, from a sheet of writing-paper to a fineart gift-book.

WARD, LOCK & Co. announce the 19th edition of Haydn's "Dictionary of Dates," revised to the autumn of 1889, containing eighty pages more matter than the 18th edition. They will add to their Minerva Library Galton's "South Africa," "Travels on the Amazon," by Alfred R. "Wallace, and "The Betrothed Lovers," by Alexander Manzoni. "The Conquerors of the World" will be a popular account of the peoples and races of Europe, their history, ethnology, manners, and customs; and "The Teeming Millions of the East" will be the history of the people of Asia, both by J. G. Bettany. The eighth volume of "Amateur Work," edited by the author of "Every Man His Own Mechanic," will be ready, fully illustrated; and there will be a new edition of "Our National Cathedrals" with 69 steel plates. Walter Scott's "Old Mortality" will be brought out in an dition de luxe as a gift-book. In juveniles the announcements include "The Blackman's Ghost," by John C. Hutcheson, a story of buried treasure, illustrated by W. S. Stacey, who also will illustrate "The Mids of the Rattlesnake," by Arthur Lee Knight; six books for girls by Sarah Tytler will be put on their list; "Weird Stories," by Sir Gilbert Campbell, will contain tales of Russian, English, and Mediterranean country life and legends; a new series of gift-books in attractive bindings will take is "Grimm's Fairy Tales," "Robinson Crusoe." "Sandford and Merton," "Andersen's Stories," etc. "Willis the Pilot," said to be a sequel to "The Swiss Family Robinson," has been specially translated by Henry Frith; and "The House of Rimmon" is a story by Jeanne G. Bettany.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. announce an edition of "Shakespeare's Works" in twelve volumes, to be known as the Bedford Edition. It will have a life and glossary edited from the best texts, including the celebrated First Folio of 1623 and the quartos. The page, type, and red-line border are very neat. The size of the volumes will be 31/4 by 5 inches, and they will be offered in cloth, French, Venetian, Persian, and turkey morocco limp, in cases to match; in Cabinet style in polished walnut cabinet with glass front; in russia limp, etc., and will made a dainty little presentation series in all. The Universal Edition of "Shakespeare" at one dollar has been well received by the trade. The Imperial Edition of the poets will include Milton, Wordsworth. Buns. Hemans, Byron, Shakespeare, Scott, Shelley, Hood, Moore, and "Gems of National Poetry," each volume illustrated with six choice full-page photographs of the scenery described in the poems, gotten up in various styles of binding suitable for presentation. In color-books there are a limited number remaining of last year's favorites. "Over the Hills" and "Young America's Nursery Rhymes;" and the chief attractions this year will be "Old Mother Goose's Rhymes and Tales," consisting of fifty pages color-work, "Young America's Painting Book," giving thirtytwo pages in outline and their counterpart in color, and "The Palette Painting-Book," also designs in outline and color shaped like a palette, with striking cover design. The Stanley Library will consist of four volumes of stirring incident and adventure for boys, by Dr. Gordon Stables, Rev. J. N. Malan, R. André, and J. Stables, Rev. J. N. Maian, R. Andre, and J. Gordon. Mrs. L. T. Meade has written a new tale for girls to be called "The Lady of the Forest;" and Angelica Selby a story for children, "On Duty," a copy of which in the English edition was sent to Queen Victoria, who accepted it approvingly. "The Captain-General" will be a story of the attempts of the Dutch to colonize Australia; and a new edition will be ready of their popular "On the Trail."

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. will issue during the fall season the ninth volume of their Library of American Literature, edited by E. C. Stedman; "The Life and Letters of Roscoe Conkling," edited by his nephew, A. R. Conkling; and a new book by Samuel L. Clemens ("Mark Twain"), to be entitled "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court," said to be a satire on English royalty and nobility, which will be illustrated by Daniel Beard.

WHITE & ALLEN announce a variety of well-chosen and tastefully executed books. Sheridan's "Rivals," always his favorite play in the United States, will be brought out in sumptuous style. Mr. Gregory, late Secretary of the Salmagus-di Club, the successful illustrator of Goethe's "Faust" last season, has a talent adapted to the work, and has chosen the scenes to be portrayad with nice taste and feeling. There will be five ull-page designs in water-colors, superbly reproinced in fac-simile by the photo-aquarelle process. nd forty-five black and white illustrations printed rom photographic cliches made in Vienna and Paris. A limited large-paper edition of 150 opies will be a valuable addition to the libraries if collectors. The publishers intend to publish n their Aldine Edition a series of reprints of the tandard works of fiction which have appeared in he English language, well and profusely illusrated, and the text as typographically perfect as ossible. The first four volumes of the new eries will be "The Arabian Nights Entertainsents," from the text of Doctor Jonathan Scott, his being the first and most approved translation f the stories ever made directly from the Arabic tto English, and containing a number of minor les not generally printed. These books will be rinted at the Chiswick Press, where all the volmes of the old "Aldine" editions were printed. a specially prepared paper, and the illustrations ill be by Stanley L. Wood. There will be an lition of "Macbeth" from the text of the first olio edition (1623), with notes to indicate the chief terations adopted in modern editions. troduction contains a description of the costume. rmor, furniture, decoration, and architecture of cotland during the period of Macbeth, supposed) be the eleventh century. There will be venty-seven etchings and other illustrations by Moyr Smith. The publication will be limited 1300 copies; 50 in the Artist's Proof Edition, ich copy signed by the artist, with the etchings various suitable colors in Japanese vellum aper, and 250 handsomely bound in cloth. here will be new volumes in the Ballad Series, hich has made a great success. "The compson Street Poker Club Lectures" will be continuation of and a companion to the Thompson Street Poker Club." In calendars house announces a new edition of "The Life Christ Calendar," and "The Little People's lendar," a series of twelve quaint designs illustrating the chief amusements of a year's life of a child, beautifully printed in colors in fac-simile of the original aquarelles painted by Julius Schledorn. A companion volume to "Log-Book Notes Through Life," Miss Elizabeth N. Little's great success of last season, will be "Off the Weather-Bow on Life's Voyage," full of new ideas executed with the artist's well-known skill. For children two art books have been prepared by George W. Brenneman, of the Salmagundi Club, which will find a large market: "Cinderella, or, the little glass slipper," and "The Sleeping Beauty in the Wood;" these most popular of old fairy tales will be illustrated with fullpage water-color designs, reproduced by the photo-aquarelle process, and the books will be triumphs in their mechanical perfection of the combined arts of the photographer, printer, papermaker, and binder. There will be three new stories particularly suitable for girls: "Witch Winnie," by Elizabeth W. Champney, a story of a "King's Daughter," and "Deb and the Duchess," by L. T. Meade, the author of "Daddy's Boy," "David's Little Lad," etc. All the old books on the list are again ready for sale, and certainly this house issues some of the daintiest books that pass through our hands.

THOMAS WHITTAKER announces for the fall and holiday trade a "Mrs. Browning's Birthday-Book," compiled by E. W. H.; "A Year of Golden Days," a book of daily texts, illustrated by Harriet M. Bennett; "What to Read at Entertainments," a selection of poetry and prose, edited and arranged by Frederick Longbridge; and five sets of the Camelot Series in fine half bindings, boxed, comprising the best issues in this They have also prepared a new excellent series. series of cards which, they name "Intaglio Texts." These are on fine enamelled card-board. There are eight sets, each set containing twelve pieces, the texts or mottoes of six being stamped in silver on garnet background and duplicates of each on dark green, with silken cord for hanging. They are especially suitable for wall decoration. In addition to the foregoing they have prepared a number of books for the young, four volumes in their Home Library, and six sets of books suitable for Sunday-school libraries, the titles of which will be found under the heading of Juvenile Literature in our classified list elsewhere in this is-

JOHN WILEY & SONS have in preparation several valuable works in their special line of books on applied science, full titles of which will be found in the preceding classified list under heading of Arts and Sciences.

THE WORTHINGTON Co. this year will have an entirely new edition of the "Memoirs of Count de Grammont," that world-famous history of the dissolute court of Charles II. which will appear verbatim and unabridged, printed in large octavo size, in clear type on paper made specially for the edition, and illustrated with photogravures of etchings by Delort and steel-plate portraits of all the most famous beauties of the court. A new edition of Taine's "English Literature" will be brought out with a copy righted introductory essay by R. H. Stoddard. It is printed in fac-simile of the English large-type library edition on especial hand-made paper, and is illustrated with photogravures and steel-plate portraits of eminent authors. They have in preparation a translation by Mrs. J. W. Davis of "Lora, the Major's Daughter," a new novel by W. Heimburg, which has not yet appeared in Germany in book-form. This talented author grows steadily in public favor, and the publishers are gratified by their large advance orders. They have also secured for America an edition of the supplementary new volumes of the Villon Society's version of "The Book of the Thousand Nights and One Night." The Arabic text of two favorite stories in the collection. "Alaeddin, or, the wonderful lamp," and "Zeyn Al Asnam and the King of the Genii," has at last been discovered in MSS. recently purchased by the Bibliothèque Nationale at Paris. Much disappointment was caused by the omission of these stories from the original nine volumes, and in compliance with many requests Mr. Pavne has translated the tales, and they will appear in a three-volume supplement, for which the publishers desire early orders. There will also be éditions de luxe of Macaulay's "Lays of Ancient Rome" and Main's "Treasury of English Sonnets," and of Daudet's "Wives of Men of Genius." Their Banner Library will receive additions of European and American classics and bright modern novels. In juvenile literature, a great specialty of the house, there will be a new work of art by Mary A. Lathbury, called "April Skies," a series of twelve entirely new fac-simile hand-painted water-color designs, on extra thick superfine drawing-paper showing pretty children of all kinds, enclosed in handsome covers. The book is entirely of American manufacture, a fact of which the publishers are especially proud.

"Worthington's Annual for 1890" will hold its own with former volumes. Many of the old favorites have been put into new shape, and for full list of the juvenile announcements we refer to our classified list under Juvenile Literature.

E. & I. B. Young & Co. have made lavish preparations for supplying the trade in good season with new monochrome and color-books for the holiday season. Texts, illustrations, and manufacture are to be of the very best. Mrs. Molesworth, Rev. J. G. Wood, Prof. Schrieber, Manville Fenn, and other writers of this calibre are mentioned among the authors; Mrs. J. P. Sunter. Kate Greenaway, E. M. Jessop, Gordon Browne, and artists of like merit will illustrate the texts; and the execution of color printing will be divided among European firms excelling in their special lines, thus securing originality and variety of style. The several books made out of the texts of the "Ingoldsby Legends" published by this house are a delight to literary and artistic eyes. Mr. Jessop has once more taken a hand at "The Jackdaw of Rheims," and furnished it with many new illustrations, and he also tries his practised pencil this season on "Netley Abbey." It will pay the trade to examine thoroughly the stock of this firm. they study their localities and probable buyers they can certainly spread these color-books, which range from three cents to one dollar and a quarter, in such a way that they will tempt every age and taste. The Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, of which this firm are agents, also will have some attractive books, among which "The World of Natural History" in three volumes, translated from the German, with 850 illustrations, is an important work. Their well-known magazine, Sunday, for 1889 will be just as good and just as much called for as its predecessors, and orders should come in promptly. Two volumes of sermons are also almost ready, "The Incarnation as a Motive-Power," a volume of sermons by William Bright, Canon of Christ Church, Oxford, and "Sunlight and Shadow in the Christian Life," sermons by Canon Knox-Little, preached chiefly in Trinity Church during his visit to America, and dedicated to Dr. Morgan Dix and other American clergy.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

BEGINNING with the new volume in October. the English Illustrated Magazine will be printed in a new type, and the letterpress will be printed across the page; the magazine will also be increased in size. ANNOUNCEMENTS FOR 1889.

LOUISA M. ALCOTT: Her Life, Letters, and Journal. Edited by EDNAH D. CHENEY. With portraits and view of the Alcott Home in Concord. One volume, 16mo, uniform with "Little Women," $1.50.

This volume might with truth be called a biography of the "Little Women," for through her letters and jourasis Mrs. Cheney has allowed Miss Alcott to tell her own story, which is largely a picture of the Alcott family, and k lays open the inner life of this favorite writer in a way sure to increase the interest and admiration in which she is aniversally held. Two new portraits of Miss Alcott are introduced, one taken at the time she went into the service of her country as a hospital nurse, the other when she was in the full maturity of her popular career.

FALL ANNOUNCEMENT

The Viking Age, by Paul B. Du Chaillu.

The Early History, Manners and Customs of the Ancestors of the English-speaking Nations. Illustrated from the Antiquities Discovered in Mounds, Cairns and Bogs, as well as from the Ancient Sagas and Eddas. By Paul B. Du Chaillu. With 1,400 illustrations. 2 vols., 8vo, $7.50.

Mr. Du Chaillu's great popular work is the product of many years of incessant labor in the collection and arrangement of facts which throw a flood of light upon the character of the progenitors of the English-speaking race. Recent researches have made it clear that those Northmen who at the decadence of the Roman Empire overran and settled in Britain and the Northern coast of Germany and France, were not barbarians, as long has been erroneously supposed, but a most highly civilized and accomplished people. Vast quantities of objects, including arms and armor, gold and silver ornaments of the most skilful workmanship and refined beauty; wood-carving, filigree work, agricultural and domestic implements, magnificent carriages, etc., have been unearthed. But besides these material testimonies to the greatness of these Northmen, we have the literary and historic records of the Sagas and Eddas, and by testing the evidence of one with the other we can obtain a wonderfully vivid idea of the manners, customs, laws, traditions and domestic life of a bygone age.

Cyclopedia of Music and Musicians. Second Volume.

Edited by John Denison Champlin, Jr. Critical Editor, William F. Apthorp. With over 1,000 illustrations, including 36 full-page etched portraits. 3 vols., 4to, parchment binding. This Edition limited to 500 numbered sets for this country and 50 for Europe. $25.00 per volume net.

This work is comprehensive in scope, being biographical, bibliographical, and descriptive in character. The second volume contains, besides scores of text portraits of musicians and singers and fac-simile scores and autographs, full-page etched portraits of Gounod, Handel, Haydn, Lasso, Liszt, Lully, Mendelssohn, Meyerbeer, Mozart, Paine, Palestrina, and Purcell. Like the well-known Cyclopedia of Painters and Paintings, the first of the important works of reference having this plan and scope, the Cyclopedia of Music derives special value from its simplicity for consultation—artists and their works being arranged in the same alphabetical order; from the great value of its references to original works, and from the great amount of original biographical and other material included.

The American Railway.

Its Construction, Development, Management and Appliances. By Thomas Curtis Clarke, John Bogart, M. N. Forney, E. P. Alexander, H. G. Prout, Horace Porter, Theodore Voorhees, Benjamin Norton, Arthur T. Hadley, Thomas L. James, Charles Francis Adams, and B. B. Adams, Jr. With more than 200 illustrations. With an Introduction by Judge Thomas M. Cooley, Chairman of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. Large 8vo, $6.00 net.

This volume contains the only complete popular account of the construction, development, management, and appliances of American Railways ever published. Leading authorities, both as theorists and practical railway men, are the writers of the series, each man having been selected for his unusual eminence in the department he was asked to describe. The list includes two railway presidents, two vice-presidents, a superintendent, two expert civil engineers, three editors, an ex-postmaster-general, and a distinguished author and professor. These articles have been revised and expanded since appearing in Scribners' Magazine, and a number of new illustrations have been added. The series as now arranged gives the most logical idea of the railway world extant, and describes the life of railroad men from president to firemen and trackwalkers. A feature of the volume is a series of maps graphically showing railway development in the United States from 1830 to the present day. able statistics have been specially arranged, with ingenious diagrams showing at a glance phases of railway progress. A complete and thorough index makes the volume of unusual worth and convenience as a reference book.

On its artistic side this work has commanded the services of the leading artists and engravers. It contains more than 225 illustrations of original subjects collected with great discrimination. There are twenty-five full-page pictures. Fine paper, large type, and durable binding combine to make a volume of remarkable beauty and elegance.

An Account of four Years' Travels in Australia and of Camp Life with the Aborigines of Queensland. By Carl Lumholtz, M.A., Member of the Royal Society of Science of Norway. Translated by Rasmus B. Anderson, Ex-United States Minister to Denmark. With portrait, maps, 4 chromolithographs, and 100 wood-cuts. 8vo. In Press.

Professor Lumholtz set out for Australia in 1380 with the object of spending four years in making collections for the museums of the University of Christiania, and in making researches into the customs, habits of life, etc., of the little known tribes that inhabit that continent. The entertaining results of his researches are detailed in a style which is at once thoroughly popular and admirably terse. The greater part of the volume is devoted to descriptions of the authors' life in the camps of the northern cannibals. He presents a faithful picture, based on his own observations, of the life, manners, and customs of these savage Australian aborigines from their birth and infancy to their old age and death.

Aspects of the Earth.

By NATHANIEL SOUTHGATE SHALER, S.D., Professor of Geology in Harvard University. With 100 illustrations. 8vo, $4.00.

Professor Shaler is one of the few great authorities upon this subject who succeed in conveying to the reader its peculiarly strong human interest. As Professor of Geology at Harvard, he has for years enjoyed the reputation with his students of giving lectures perhaps more generally interesting and suggestive than those in any other branch of natural science; and the same enviable power marks this popular survey of the earth's surface and some of its peculiarities. The papers include all those that have appeared in Scribne's Magazine, and one additional chapter. Under the title "The Stability of the Earth," the whole subject of Earthquakes is discussed with the greatest richness of anecdote and illustration, and a special reference to their occurrence and probability in the United States: "The Stability of the Atmosphere" in a similar wav treats of cyclones, hurricanes, and all the phenomena of winds and air currents. "Volcanoes" and "Caverns and Cavern Life" are two chapters full of striking facts new to the majority of readers; in "Rivers and Valleys" the great river basins like those of the Mississippi and Ohio are especially discussed; and "The Forests of North America" is a contribution to a subject of pressing importance. The illustrations and designs by some of the foremost American artists are of special beauty and interest.

History of the United States, by Henry Adams.

THE FIRST Administration of Thomas Jefferson. 12mo, 2 vols., $4.00.

Mr. Adams's work, when complete, will cover one of the most important periods of American history—that embrace the two administrations of Jefferson and the two following of Madison—from 1801 to 1817. It is an epoch to which Mr. Adams has devoted many years of study, aided by the papers of his family and by many other original and valuable sources of information, and concerning which he speaks with authority.

The two volumes of the work here announced are devoted to the first administration of Jefferson and to the great political, financial, and international questions that arose after the transfer of the control of the Government from the Federalists to the then-called Republican Party The first half dozen chapters are given over to a masterly review of the economic, social, and intellectual status of the country at the beginning of the century, the domestic and foreign policy of Jefferson's administration being then taken up.

Mr. Adams's work is of a character to arrest immediately the attention of students of American history. It is a dignified, scholarly, brilliant work, the fruit of many years of labor, fresh and virile in style, and revealing in every line the care and thoroughness with which the author has made the subject his own. The work is crowded with remarkably subtile and descriminating character portraits of famous Europeans as well as Americans, entertaining descriptions of historic scenes and lucid analyses of political questions and political crises.

Donald G. Mitchell.

English Lands, Letters and Kings. From Celt to Tudor. 12mo, $1.50. The whole field of English literature, from its shadowy beginnings in Celtic times to that epoch-marking event, the death of Elizabeth, forms the theme of Mr. Mitchell's new book. It is a combined chronicle and commentary, treating of English letters, the chief figures therein, the places associated with these—towns, castles, taverns, universities, their birth-places, haunts, and the various scenes through which they passed—and also of the succession of Monarchs, the annals of whose reigns make up the history of the time.

But of the treatment itself a description of the subject gives very little idea. None of the book's predecessors by the same hand surpasses it in charm. It has all the warmth and sympathetic sentiment of Ik Marvel's earlier writings, and an added maturity of eloquence, sustained and felicitous figures, and sonority of diction. The heroes of English literature and the secondary writers as well, stand out perfectly alive in these pages, and move about among their native surroundings and in their own atmosphere in a way perfectly sensible

OR, A BOOK OF THE HEART. 16mo, $1.25.

Dream Life.

A Fable of the Seasons. 16mo, $1.25.

No books are better worthy of an exquisite setting than these two volumes. The art of dainty and beautiful book-making finds full expression in this Cameo Edition. The cameo head set in the centre of the cloth cover explains the name of the edition. The paper is heavy, the margin wide, and the type clear. The flat back and the gilt top combine to make the volume precious to a genuine book-lover. Each volume will contain as a frontispiece an etching by Percy Moran. A limited edition on Holland paper of 200 numbered copies of these two books ($7.00 per set), representative of the highest style of artistic manufacture, will also be issued.

A Collection of Letters of Dickens.

1833-1870. Uniform with "A Collection of Letters of Thackeray." 16mo, $1.25.

This collection of letters of the immortal author of "Pickwick" and "David Copperfield" is compiled from already published materials, and is issued in a uniform style, both in binding and in press work, with the popular edition of the "Collection of Letters of Thackery." The two volumes contain the brightest and most characteristic letters of the two great novelists, and will make a popular gift set for the holiday season.

Ex-Minister Washburne's Recollections.

RECOLLECTIONS OF A MINISTER TO FRANCE. By the Hon. E. B. WASHBURNE. Fully illustrated. New and Cheaper Edition. 2 vols., 8vo, $5.00.

The new and cheaper edition of this famous work contains everything that was in the earlier edition, including the sixteen full-page and numerous text illustrations.

Strange True Stories of Louisiana.

By George W. Cable. With illustrations and fac-simile reproductions, 12mo. In Press.

That truth is indeed stranger than fiction is well illustrated in the group of stories comprised in this new volume by Mr. Cable. The titles are "The Young Aunt with the White Hair," "Françoise and Suzanne," "The History of Alix de Morainville," "Salome Müller," "The Haunted House in Royal Street," "Attalie Brouillard," and "A Union Woman's Diary in the War." In the introduction the editor tells the entertaining story of how the old manuscripts from which several of these tales are transcribed fell into his hands.

They are, as Mr. Cable says, and as the fac-simile reproductions of the manuscript show, "strange true stories that truly happened, all partly, some wholly, in Louisiana," and they possess a certain sequence and coherency that add greatly to the reader's interest. The earlier stories relate to French and German refugees and emigrants, some of aristocratic lineage, who left their homes in the turbulent times that brought the last century to an end and sought new homes and fresh adventures in America. Their narratives are full of a romantic charm, and bring vividly to mind the wild picturesqueness, not to say danger, of life in Louisiana at the close of the last and early in the present century. The tales are tragic, pathetic, humorous, and are told with artless naïveté.

The Poetry of Tennyson.

By the Rev. Henry Van Dyke, D.D. 12mo, $1.50.

The foregoing list indicates the scope of Dr. Van Dyke's volume, and the general aspects of Tennyson's genius which it touches. No one who is familiar with the author's writings need be reminded of the fine artistic sense which he brings to work of this character, or of the fine feeling for literary form which his essays display. By study, temperament, and sympathy, he is excellently well qualified to analyze the poems of the Laureate. A chronology of the great events in the poet's life-time which have, or may have, influenced his song, and a list of the Biblical quotations of which Tennyson has made use, are also given.

Literature and Poetry.

By Philip Schaff, D.D. 8vo. In Press.

The essays in this volume on the English Language, the Poetry of the Bible, and kindred subjects, attest the extraordinary breadth and thoroughness of Dr. Schaff's learning, and his ability to impart the entertaining information which he has gathered from all sources. His intimate acquaintance with the structure of European languages lends especial interest and value to his popular account of the composition of the English tongue, while the paper on the Poetry of the Bible is a wonderfully rich store of suggestive and instructive facts.

Robert Louis Stevenson.

THE MASTER OF BALLANTRAE: A Winter's Tale. By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON. With 10 full-page illustrations by WILLIAM HOLE. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; paper (without illustrations), 50 cents.

Mr. Stevenson's new novel which has appeared serially in Scribner's Magazine is unlike any of its predecessors from the same hand, and yet it bears from first to last the stamp of the author's vigorous personality and unique individuality. In theme and in style it is a work of a wholly uncommon interest, displaying a brilliant imagination and a strength of diction that are associated only with the master-pieces of fiction. The cloth edition is enriched by a series of ten

The critic of the Boston Post, speaking of the novel, gave it this high praise: "It is only when Alan Breck and Davie Balfour are at their highest best that they are better than Mackellar and the Master in the hour of his peril; and Mr. Hole has been more than usually successful with his drawings. Mr. Stevenson never suffers the pungent Scotchness of old Mackellar to be for a moment forgotten." And the Providence Journal referred to it as: "A most charming piece of workmanship and altogether remarkable for its easy assumption of 18th century style. It is a delight in its characterization of Mackellar and the Master, weird, quaint, thoroughly individual and original."

Lester Wallack's Reminiscences.

MEMORIES OF FIFTY YEARS. By LESTER WALLACK. With an Introduction by LAURENCE HUTTON. With numerous Portraits, Views, fac-simile Reproductions, etc. 12mo, $1.50.

The limited, large-paper edition of 500 copies of this book was entirely sold within ten days of the date of publication, last spring, and this popular edition will now for the first time bring the volume within reach of the thousands of additional admirers of Wallack. All of the text, all of the illustrations and portraits, and the more interesting of the fac-simile reproductions, are retained in this edition. The New York Sun referred to the book as "an interesting collection of anecdotes, told in charming fashion—delightful reading throughout."

Poetry for Children.

By Mary and Charles Lamb. To which are added Prince Dorus and some Uncollected Poems by Charles Lamb. Edited, Prefaced, and Annotated by Richard Herne Shepherd. New and Cheaper Edition. 16mo, $1.00.

Originally published in 1808, and republished in 1877 after being for fifty years out of print, this famous book is now issued in a cheaper form, and will appeal to a larger constituency than ever before. The Boston Post called it "a delightful little book, in all respects excellent for children,—wholesome, amusing, edifying. Not only to little people, but to children of a larger growth, the book will be welcome."

Whither? A Theological Question for the Times.

By Charles Augustus Briggs, D.D. 8vo, $1.75.

Dr. Brigg's book is bold, radical, almost startling. It is the product of more than twenty years of study in the history of Puritan theology, and especially of the authors of the Westminster Standards. The work is written and published in view of the agitation in the Presbyterian Church regarding the revision of the Confession of Faith, and presents facts and arguments which everyone interested in this question must heed. The work, however, has a far wider scope. The author's main contention is that all Christian denominations have drifted from their moorings. "The process of dissolution," he says, "has gone on long enough. The time has come for the reconstruction of theology, of polity, of worship, and of Christian life and work. The drift in the Church ought to stop. The barriers between the Protestant denominations should be removed and an organic union formed. An Alliance should be made between Protestantism and Romanism and all other branches of Christendom."

Foreign Missions.

Their place in the Pastorate, in Prayer, and in Conferences. By Augustus C. Thompson, D.D. 12mo, $1.75.

The success of Dr. Thompson's "Moravian Missions," and other work foreshadows an equally wide popularity for this volume, the broad scope of which is well indicated in the title. The volume is addressed to clergymea, and has to do with their relation to foreign missions. But it has a deep interest for laymen as well, for the subject involves the relation of the congregation to the question of foreign missions. The author's style is easy and fluent, rich is anecdote and allusion.

The Dawn of History.

An Introduction to Pre-Historic Study. Edited by C. F. KEARY, M.A., F.S.A. New and enlarged edition. 12mo, $1.25.

CONTENTS.—The Earliest Traces of Man; The Second Stone Age; The Growth of Language; Families of Language; The Nations of the Old World; Early Social Life; The Village Community; Religion; Aryan Religions; The Other World; Mythologies and Folk Tales; Picture Writing; Phonetic Writing; Conclusion; Appendix (Notes and Authorities).

This edition is a considerable enlargement of the original work, the intention of which was to acquaint the general reader with the results of scientist investigations in the realm of pre-historic archæology. It became immediately a standard popular work in this branch of learning. The present edition contains more than a hundred pages of fresh matter in which are embodied the investigations of the last decade. The work is revised so that it is abreast of the latest researches, and has a full index.

Frank R. Stockton.

Personally Conducted. By Frank R. Stockton. With 46 illustrations by Joseph Pennell, Alfred Parsons, and others. Square 8vo, $2.00.

A fascinating volume of travel by the famous story-teller, whose route is outlined with characteristic quaintness. The chapters are a series of pleasant, informal talks with an imaginary party of young people to whom the author is showing the curious and interesting sights of the old world,—a fancy that Mr. Stockton works out with his customary ingenuity and cleverness.

The two-score and more of illustrations by Joseph Pennell, Alfred Parsons, and others, enriching the pages with many beautiful old-world views, give the book a high artistic quality and make it a volume admirably suited for a holiday gift.

Children's Stories in English Literature.

Taliesin to Shakespeare. By Henrietta Christian Wright. 12mo, $1.25. Miss Wright's aim in this new volume has been to bring to the attention of young readers a summary, set forth in simple, attractive language, of the lives and works of the great men of English literature. Especial stress is laid upon popular literature, the old British and Saxon songs, the romantic episodes of King Arthur's reign in its relation to learning, Robin Hood, etc. The book is written in a charmingly winning style, and is both entertaining and valuable as a first book of English literature; well designed to create in the minds of young readers of both sexes a desire for more extended study. The scope of the volume is indicated above, and it promises to rival in popularity the author's other books, the Children's Stories of "the Great Scientists," of "American Progress," and in "American History."

The Adventures of Captain Mago.

Or, A Phoenician Expedition, B.C. 1000. By Leon Cahun. With 73 illustrations. New and cheaper edition. 8vo, $1.50.

Here we have one of those audacious stories which Frenchmen alone seem to have enough originality to invent. The narrative in itself is of thrilling interest, but the real value of the book consists in the graphic and accurate picture which it gives of the world as it was a thousand years before the Christian Era. King David, King Salomon, the Queen of Sheba, and even Homer are among the characters.

Church, College; and Cathedral, from the earliest times to the present day. By J. CAMERON LEES, D.D., LL.D., Minister of St. Giles's, etc. Illustrated, 4to, half leather, $7.50 net.

In this work many particulars are now for the first time brought to light, such as the Bull of the Pope, founding the Collegiate Church, and also that which exempted it from Episcopal jurisdiction. The deeds endowing the various altars are also noticed, and generally an endeavor has been made to give the reader a picture of the appearance and inner life of the church before the storm at the time of the Reformation swept down upon it. Its associations in later times have also been traced, and may enable the reader to form some idea of the strange alterations of Scottish ecclesiastical history.

Cinderella; or, The Little Glass Slipper,

The favorite old-time fairy tale, illustrated with ten full-page designs in colm, and eighteen in Monochrome, reproduced in the very best style of lithography.

Quarto, boards, covers in color (8½ x 11 inches in size), wrapped $1 g

 The first time this old favorite, dear to the heart of every child, has been all quately illustrated and produced in worthy form.

The Sleeping Beauty in the Wood.

The most popular of the old fairy tales, illustrated with six full-page water-wood designs, reproduced in fac-simile by the Photo-Aquarelle process, and twenty-two black and white sketches printed in various delicate tints from photographic cliches made by Messrs. Angerer & Göschl, of Vienna.

Quarto, boards, with beautiful cover in purple in fac-simile of the original Aquarelle $1.50

 This, the first worthy edition of the sweetest of all fairy tales, is the wost elaborate color-book ever published. The designs are most artistic, and the mechanical perfection of the book is a triumph of the combined arts of the fib-tographer, printer, paper-maker, and binder.

Lithography, hitherto the universal method employed for the production of colord pictures, is here superseded by the Photo-Aquarelle process, the most successful and heartiful of the processes for reproducing colored work.

The trade will do well to send their orders in early for the above, as a large proportion of the editions are already taken up.

FOR THE

Memoirs of Count Carlo Gozzi, Italian Dramatist (1722-1806).

Translated into English by JOHN ADDINGTON SYMONDS, with essays by the translator on Gozzi's life, Italian Imprompts Comedy, The Dramatic Fables and Pietro Longhi. Portrait and six original etchings by ADOLPHE LALAUER.
Also eleven subjects illustrating Italian Comedy, by MAURICE SAND, engraved on copper by A. MANCELU, and colored by hand. 2 vols., small quarto, limited edition, handsomely bound in cloth, uniform with the first edition of Symonds' "Memoirs of Benvenuto Cellini," $12.00, or calf back, $13.50; also a few copies in large paper,

$2.00. Ref.

Count Gozai was a citizen of Venice, and his Memoirs are thoroughly Venetian in scene and character. He had the reputation of being one of the wittiest members of the distinguished literary society of that city, and his life is interesting from an historical as well as a dramatic point of view. His writings on Italian Drama are of the greatest importance, and are indispensable to every reader of Dramatic Literature. His theatrical pieces obtained great paralarity in his day, and have won high praise from Goethe, Schlegel, Madame de Staël, and Sismondi. No Engist edition of his Memoirs has ever appeared, and Mr. Symonds' name as editor is a guarantee for the excellence of the translation, as well as the literary quality and value of the work.

The Life of Benvenuto Cellini. New Edition.

One volume, octavo, handsomely bound in cloth, uncut, gilt top, $3.00.

This is the third edition of this work which the publishers have found it necessary to issue. The previous continuous were both rapidly taken up and have gone out of print. Copies of them now only to be secured at much sevenced prices.

The Book:

Its Printers, Illustrators, and Binders, from Gutenburg to the Present Time. By Henri Bouchot, of the National Library, Paris. With a Treatise on the Art of Collecting and Describing Early Printed Books, and a Latin-English and English-Latin Topographical Index of the Earliest Printing Places. Edited by H. Grevel. Containing 172 fac-similes of Early Typography, Book-Illustrations, Printer's Marks, Bindings, etc., etc. Limited edition. Royal 8vo, roxburghe, $7.50.

The Heimskringla; or, The Sagas of the Norse Kings.

From the Icelandic of Snorre Sturlason. By Samuel Laing, Esq. Second edition. Revised, with notes, by Ramus B. Anderson, LL.D., United States Minister to Denmark, author of "Norse Mythology," "Viking Taies of the North," and other works. With two maps. In 4 vols., 8vo, cloth, net, $20.00.

"The present edition has been carefully revised by Prof. Anderson, with the aid of the latest Norwegian scholarship and criticism, and the editor's notes to the text of the sagas appear to be sufficiently full and accurate to bring the work down to a level with recent discoveries.

It is principally as a record of human activity at a remote and barbarous period that the work is interesting and valuable, and its importance from that point of view is so great that this edition ought to be heartily welcomed."—N. Y. Tribune.

Fanny Burney (Madame D'Arblay) and Her Friends.

Select Passages from Her Diary and Other Writings. Edited by L. B. Sebley, M.A. With nine illustrations albas Reynolds, Gainsborough, Copley, and West. Crown 8vo, uniform with "Horace Walpole and His World," cloth, $2.50.

næum." 8. "Lucinde." 9. Auguste Bonmer. 10. Divoice and Raining."

"The story of Caroline Schlegel is chiefly interesting because of the relation it bears to the history of the Romantic School in Germany—and the history of this school has a special significance at the present time, because in some respects the last quarter of the nineteenth century is repeating the experiments which gave so strange an aspect to the last quarter of the eighteenth. . . . It is written with insight and knowledge, and affords a glimpse into a very strange, chaotic, and revolutionary state of society."—N. Y. Tribune.

WAR WICK BROOKES' PENCIL PICTURES OF CHILD-LIFE With Biographical Reminiscences. By T. Letherbrow. It is strange, in these art-loving days, that a man whose pictures of child-life are unrivalled by old or modern masters—in ideal innocence and artistic charms of artlessness—should be almost unknown.

The career of Warwick Brookes as set forth in these pages shows us a remarkable man—one of great strength combined with that child-like simplicity so essential to the great artist—the sufferings and trials that he endured are far removed from the sweet drawings of child-life that won for him a foremost place among contemporary artists, and are so beautifully reproduced in this little book.

Charles Francis Adams.

LIFE OF RICHARD H. DANA, JR. By CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS. Portraits. 2 vols. crown 8vo.

Mr. Dana is best known to the world of readers as the author of "Two Years before the Mast," which has been read wherever the English language But he was also one of the foremost members of the Boston bar, an authority in international law, a prominent and influential leader in the Republican party, a citizen zealous for the good name of his country, and a gentleman intimately acquainted with a host of the most distinguished men of his time in this nation and in Europe. Mr. Adams has undertaken to write the Life of Mr. Dana, and his authorship guarantees a work of unusual interest, aside from the intrinsic attractions of his subject. It will give views of many illustrious persons, sketches of many important events. political and other, and will contain a large number of valuable letters.

Myron Adams.

THE CONTINUOUS CREATION. An Application of the Evolutionary Philosophy to the Christian Religion. By Rev. Myron Adams, of Rochester, N. Y. I vol. crown 8vo.

CONTENTS: Evolution; The Continuous Creation; The Idea of God; The Function of Science as related to Religion; The Bible the Record of the Gradual Growth of Religion; The Problem of Evil; The Consummation of Evolution is Immortality; Resident'Forces and the Divine Personality; The Philosophy and Faith of the Christian Church; Christianity included; Prayer; Miracles and Scientific Thought; Divine Inshinings; Social Development and the Survival of the Fittest; Social Consolidation; Socialism and Individualism; Faith and Intuition; Conditions attending the Progress of Truth.

The titles of the several chapters of this book sufficiently indicate that it is a carefully considered work on a great theme. It is one of the most successful attempts yet made to interpret the theory of evolution in harmony and cooperation with Evangelical Christianity, - or perhaps it were better to say that the author finds Christianity a culminating feature of the Divine rder of Evolution; and the arguments and illustrations by which he sup-his view commend his work to all thoughtful readers.

George A. Aitken.

THE LIFE OF RICHARD STEELE. By GEORGE A. AITKEN. With several Portraits, two of them engraved by Whymper. 2 vols. 8vo.

Mr. Aitken claims to have written the only adequate Life of Steele, incorporating in it the fruit of researches in the Public Record Office and the Probate Registry, and a large number of letters never before printed. He claims to have vindicated Steele's memory against Macaulay's assaults and Thackeray's exaggerated compassion, and is "confident that the result of the fuller study of his life which is now rendered practicable will be the conviction that . . . Steele's character is more attractive and essentially nobler than perhaps that of any of the greatest of his contemporaries in the world of letters. Lovers of The Spectator and The Tatler will be glad to have this full biography of one of the writers to whom these owed so much of their value and fame.

American Commonwealths.

A series of volumes devoted to those States of the Union which have a noteworthy political, social, or economical history. Edited by HORACE E SCUDDER.

NEW JERSEY. By AUSTIN SCOTT, Ph. D., Voorhees Professor of History, Political Economy, and Constitutional Law in Rutgers College. ILLINOIS. By E. G. MASON.

PENNSYLVANIA. By Hon. WAYNE MACVEAGH, late Attorney-General of the United States.

Each with Map. 16mo, $1.25.

Three additional volumes in a series which contains admirable histories of several of the States. The authors are residents in the States of which they treat, and fully acquainted with their annals, illustrious men, and distinctive political, social, and industrial facts.

American Religious Leaders.

A series of biographies of men who have exerted great influence on the religious thought and life of America.

This series is designed to serve the same purpose with regard to the religious history of America which the series of American Statesmen serves—with regard to its political history. It will include biographies of eminent men who represent the theology and methods of the various religious denominations of America; yet the object of the series does not contemplate emphasizing personal character and history except as these are related to the development of religious thought or the quickening of religious life. It is hoped that the series, when completed, will not only depict in a clear and memorable way several great figures in American religious history, but will indicate in some adequate degree the leading characteristics of that history, the progress and process of religious philosophy in America, the various types of theology which have shaped or been shaped by the various churches, and the relation of these to the life and thought of the nation

The writers will not be champions or apologists of those whose hey portray, but will aim to set forth clearly and impartially what they were and what they did.

The following volumes will be among the earlier issues in the series:—

JONATHAN EDWARDS. By Professor A. V. G. Allen, author of "The Continuity of Christian Thought."

WILBUR FISK. By Professor George Prentice, of Wesleyan University.
WILLIAM AUGUSTUS MUHLENBERG. By Rev. WILLIAM WILBERFORCE
Newton, author of "Summer Sermons," etc.

CHARLES HODGE. By President Francis L. Patton, of Princeton.

Francis Wayland, By Professor J. O. Murray, of Princeton.

ARCHBISHOP JOHN HUGHES. By JOHN G. SHEA, LL. D., author of "The Catholic Authors of America," etc., etc.

THEODORE PARKER. By JOHN FISKE, author of "The Idea of God," "Outlines of Cosmic Philosophy," etc.

In uniform volumes, 16mo, $1.25 each.

Others to be announced later.

American Statesmen.

A series of biographies of men eminent in the political history of the nited States. Edited by John T. Morse. Jr.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. By JOHN T. Morse, Jr., author of the volumes on John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, and John Quincy Adams, in this series.

JOHN JAY. By GEORGE PELLEW, author of "Woman and the Commonwealth," etc.

Lewis Cass. By Andrew C. McLaughlin, Assistant Professor of History in the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Each in one volume, 16mo, gilt top, $1.25; half morocco, $2.50.

Without question, Franklin and Jay should be included in any series of ninent American Statesmen, for the noble contributions they made to the sportant discussions of their time and for the great public services they ndered. The books written by Mr. Morse for this series assure the excelnce of his volume on Franklin; and Mr. Pellew's writings have proved s competence to write an adequate book on the great Justice to whom is related, and for whose work and memory all good Americans cherish very hearty respect; while Professor McLaughlin's volume on Cass will ing forward a new writer, whose studies, and connection with the great siversity of Cass's adopted State, will put him in touch with his interesting bject.

Jucia T. Ames.

Memoirs of a Millionaire. A Novel. By Lucia True Ames, author of "Great Thoughts for Little Thinkers." 16mo, $1.25.

Miss Ames's novel will in some respects appeal to the same class of reads as Mr. Bellamy's remarkable story "Looking Backward." It is distinctly novel with a purpose, and one purpose is to emphasize the responsibilities helpfully used. Yet, though Miss Ames writes with a philanthropic motive, and utilizes the practical knowledge she has gained of special methods and agencies for lightening the burdens and woes of the wretched and forlom, her book is not a sermon, or a tract, or a fancy, but a genuine story of actual men and women, lighted up by humor, made interesting by lovers' experiences, and none the less readable because it abounds in noble suggestions and presents beautiful ideals.

Jane G. Austin.

STANDISH OF STANDISH. A Novel. By JANE G. Austin, author of "A Nameless Nobleman," "The Desmond Hundred," "Nantucket Scraps," etc. 1 vol. 16mo, $1.25.

Those who have read "A Nameless Nobleman" understand with what fullness of knowledge Mrs. Austin writes of the Pilgrims and their life. Like her brother, Hon. John A. Goodwin, author of that very valuable work "The Pilgrim Republic," she knows thoroughly the character of the Plymouth Pilgrims, their views and habits. Plymouth, as it was two and a half centuries ago, is hardly less familiar to her than the Plymouth of her own lifetime, which she knows so intimately. In her new story, the famous captain of the Pilgrim band, Miles Standish, is the central figure, and her portrayal of his marked personality, his military achievements, and the more romantic passages of his life, with glimpses of many other notable personages, makes a book of positive historic value as well as personal and dramatic interest.

Maturin M. Ballou.

THE NEW ELDORADO. A Summer Journey to Alaska. By MATURIN M. BALLOU, author of "Due West," "Due North," "Under the Southern Cross," etc. 1 vol. crown 8vo.

Mr. Ballou, who has traversed nearly every country on the globe, and described his travels in books which have gained him a host of readers, has recently visited Alaska. He crossed the Continent by the Yellowstone Park, the wonders of which he graphically describes. His large experience and observation as a traveler enable him to present a very interesting account of the vast size of Alaska, its marvelous wealth in gold, furs, fisheries, coal measures, and timber. The great development of its mining interests warrants the title he has chosen for his book. He tells also of its great rivers and glacial marvels, and describes the peculiarities of the native race, the manners, domestic usages, and superstitions. On his return trip he became acquainted with the marvelous country traversed by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Altogether Mr. Ballou's book will be of much interest to those who purpose visiting Alaska, and also for those who must stay at home.

Edward Bellamy.

LOOKING BACKWARD. 2000-1887. By EDWARD BELLAMY, author Miss Ludington's Sister," etc. New Edition, from new plates 12mo, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

This remarkable story has excited a popular interest greater th other American story since "Uncle Tom's Cabin" appeared. It has been welcomed by many as a prophecy of a good time coming, and as indicating he possible solution of the complex struggles and dissatisfactions of our resent social and industrial order. The scope and aim of the book are well lescribed in this paragraph from The Nation:—

"He who reads it expecting merely to be entertained, must, we should hink, find himself unexpectedly haunted by visions of a golden age wherein ll the world unites to do the world's work like members of one family, there labor and living are provided for each man, where toil and leisure lternate in happy proportions, where want and therefore greed and jeal-usy are unknown, where the pleasures of this world are free to all, to cheer ut not enslave."

EIN RÜCKBLICK. A translation into German of Edward Bellamy's "Looking Backward." By Rabbi Solomon Schindler. In Riverside Paper Series. Extra Number 3. 16mo, paper covers, 50 cents.

Special interest in the topics discussed by Mr. Bellamy in "Looking Backard" is felt by German-speaking Americans, as also in Germany itself; and in response to the demand for "Looking Backward" in German, this anslation was made by Rabbi Solomon Schindler, one of the leaders in the Nationalist movement. "Ein Rüblick" has met with a hearty recepon, receiving cordial praise from the German-American press and public.

Alexander Brown.

The Genesis of the United States. A Narrative of the Movement in England, 1605–1616, which resulted in the Plantation of North America by Englishmen, disclosing the contest between England and Spain for the Possession of the Soil now occupied by the United States of America; the whole set forth through a Series of Historical Manuscripts now first printed, together with a Reissue of Rare Contemporaneous Tracts, accompanied by Bibliographical Memoranda, Notes, Plans, and Portraits, and a Comprehensive Biographical Index. Collected, arranged, and edited by Alexander Brown, Member of the Virginia Historical Society and of the American Historical Association, Fellow of the Royal Historical Society of England. With Maps. 2 vols. 8vo, $15.00, net.

No historical work for many years has attracted such attention as is sure be given to this. Its peculiar significance consists in the fact that it conins so much important matter never before printed in any language. Mr. rown's researches, pursued through many years and at large expense, were warded by the discovery, in the secret archives of Spain, of numerous docnents throwing light on the contest in Europe for the possession of this ontinent. These documents, with rare tracts of that period (in all 365 ipers, of which 294 are now for the first time made public), accompanied bibliographical memoranda, notes, plans, portraits, and a comprehensive ographical Index, lend special value and importance to this work. In sponse to a circular sent out to patrons likely to appreciate such a work, arly four hundred advance orders have been received.

Clara Louise Burnham.

DEARLY BOUGHT.

No Gentlemen.

A SANE LUNATIC.

Three Novels, by CLARA LOUISE BURNHAM, author of "Young Maids and Old," and "Next Door." New Edition. Each, 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

Readers of Miss Burnham's later stories will welcome a new and attractive lition of her earlier ones. Of "No Gentlemen" the Springfield Republication of the summering of a half dozen Posts.

Readers of Miss Burnham's later stories will welcome a new and attractive edition of her earlier ones. Of "No Gentlemen" the Springfield Republican said: "It is a bright narrative of the summering of a half-dozen Boston girls just out of school, at Red Farm, in Pineland, with Miss Hopeful Bounce, who advertises for summer boarders, but 'No Gentlemen.' In order to make a novel, of course this prohibition must be broken down; and as the girls, particularly the heroine and her special friend, are pleasant company, the story is as readable as if it were a 'No Name,' as it is in fact." The Chicago Tribune pronounced this a good novel, but "A Sane Lunatic" a better one, and the New York World called this last "one of the cleverest of summer novels." The Boston Home Journal ranked "Dearly Bought" as "a story of genuine interest and of fine literary merīt."

Mary E. Burt.

LITERARY LANDMARKS. A Guide to Good Reading for Young People, and Teachers' Assistant. By MARY E. BURT, Teacher of Literatume in the Cook County Normal School at Englewood, Illinois. With Charts. 16mo, 75 cents.

Miss Burt's experience as a teacher of literature, in which she has been singularly successful, has enabled her to prepare a little handbook which is not merely a guide to the best books for young people, but an economical system of reading, good for all ages, which well illustrates the following a tract from her preface: "It is because I have spent many years and hundreds of dollars to get a small knowledge of books, when, by taking a direct road, I might have had a much larger knowledge at less expense, that I offer the results of my twenty years' work in the school-room to the public." Her book contains interesting chapters on theories of children's reading and the various classes of books best suited to their tastes and needs; also ten plans or courses of reading for children of different ages and for teachers: a literature chart: diagrams suggesting modes of fixing in the child's memory what he has read, and of showing its proper relation to what he has read before; and a valuable list of books, with helpful remarks. The little work cannot fail to be of great service to students and teachers, and will aid one to select a really good book for a gift to a child.

Calendar Books.

Each of these booklets contains the choicest passages from the writings of one of the six illustrious authors above named. These passages are are ranged for the several days of the year, but are good for any year. The little volumes are full of sentences and lines which one is glad to have

Reuben Davis.

RECOLLECTIONS OF MISSISSIPPI. By the Hon, Reuben Davis. I vol. 8vo. $3.00.

In this book, which has many features of autobiography, the Hon. Reuben Davis of Mississippi gives a very graphic description of life in the South for the half century before the Civil War. Its social life, its lawlessness and thivalry. its political and professional contests, are portrayed very effectively. Mr. Davis's forceful nature, which gained him a high reputation in the South, his conspicuous legal triumphs, and his experience in Congress and in the councils of the Southern Confederacy, lend to his book a peculiar nterest. Mr. Davis writes with great frankness, taking the reader into his ill confidence, and his book will be found piquant in style and thoroughly readable John Fiske.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT. By JOHN FISKE, author of "The Critical Period of American History," "The War of Independence," etc. 16mo.

In this book Mr. Fiske aims to set forth the principles and methods of ivil government as understood and exemplified in the republic of the Inited States and in the several States. The book is primarily designed or use in schools, and its object is to give boys and girls, young men and oung women, a clear idea of the character and form of the government inder which they live, of its historical development, its mode of operation, ind its political significance; and to inspire them with the intelligent loylty and the sense of personal responsibility which will make them good citzens. Mr. Fiske's profound understanding of the history of the nation and be organization of the government enables him to write with authority, and is perfect clearness of statement leaves no room for ambiguity or misunerstanding. Although written for schools, this book will be found exceedngly interesting to the general reader.

Mary Hallock Foote.

THE LAST ASSEMBLY BALL. A Pseudo-Romance of the Far West. By MARY HALLOCK FOOTE, author of "The Led-Horse Claim," "John Bodewin's Testimony," etc. 1 vol. 16mo.

Mrs. Foote again avails herself of her experiences and observations in he mining districts of the Rocky Mountains, and tells a story that cannot all to interest whoever reads it. The characters are miscellaneous, some of hem very attractive, but all more or less dramatic in their mode of life and their personal histories. The hero is a refined, high-minded, impulsive oung man. The heroine is not heroic, but pretty. Story and dialogue sove briskly and ensure attention.

The Gentleman's Magazine Library.

Scientific Papers of Asa Gray. Selected by Charles Sprague Sagent.

Vol. I. Review of Works on Botany and Related Subjects, 1834-1887. Vol. II. Essays; Biographical Sketches, 1841-1886. 2 vols. 8vo.

All who appreciate the profound and exact scholarship of Professor Gray in Botany, and are interested in that science, will be grateful to Professor Sargent for collecting the forty-nine papers which form the first of these volumes. As Professor Sargent says in the Introduction: "Many of the reviews are filled with original and suggestive observations, and, taken together, furnish the best account of the development of botanical literature during the last fifty years that has yet been written." He adds: "No other naturalist of his reputation and attainments ever devoted so much time to literary work of this sort, or continued it so uninterruptedly for so many years; and in our time the criticism and advice of no other botanist has been so eagerly sought or so highly valued by his contemporaries.

The fourteen Essays in Vol. II. are mostly on subjects in Botany; the thirty-eight Biographical Sketches are devoted to naturalists, and commemorate in brief but fitting terms their achievements in science and their distinctive titles to honor and grateful remembrance.

These volumes, of much value in themselves, will form no mean memorial of one of the wisest of scientists and one of the noblest of men.

Bret Harte.

THE HERITAGE OF DEDLOW MARSH, and other Tales. By Bret HARTE. 16mo.

This book contains, in addition to the story which gives it its title, "A Secret of Telegraph Hill," "A Knight-Errant of the Foot-Hills," and "Captain Jim's Friend." They need no description; they are such stories as only Mr. Harte can write, but everybody can read, and does read with miningled wonder and delight.

Nathaniel Hawthorne.
